Editors COLUN HAN :- Many years ago amidst a forest of towering pines, along-side the two branches of little Ravencreek just above their junction, in Benton township, Columbia county, lived Charley Snyder. The rippling waters danced and played over the pebbly stones and sang elodies to meditating and sorrowing souls, and cheered and welcomed the portsman with line and rod, as he sought he "speckled beauties" skipping and shy ing in their cozy nooks-for these little treams abounded with trout. During reshets, the torrent swept by with thund ering noise and was soon lost in the marshy swamp just below, shaded by the heavy imber for which the locality was noted A saw-mill, tannery and saddler shop, all consolidated into one building were located on the western branch. A comfortable two story frame house, a small barn and other outbuildings constituted the farm appurtenances. A never failing spring, igh up the hill was led in water pipes ino the house constituting an overflowing ountain for family convenience. (These are the outlines of this more ancient home. Here, the thirsty could slake their thirst and cool their parched lips. Here, the weary could rest among salubrious suroundings. Every thing was done that ould be done for the convenience and omfort of man and beast. Here was the cognized home of the M. E. ministers whose good fortune it was to preach at Hamiline. Here lived a happy family consisting of father, mother, sister and five prothers in the full enjoyment of mutual onfidence and love under the hallowed inluence and guidance of Him in whom they trusted for the bread of life and their datly bread. Here lived a happy and pious mother, a leading spirit in the church who at home sowed living seeds of principles into young and tender hearts and watered hem with prayer and tears till they sprang up, grew and bare fruit an hundred fold in nousehold. Fair Play for the B. & S. BENTON, Aug. 23, '86. MESSES. EDITORS :- 1 noticed in las week's Sentinel an article headed "Redress" and signed "citizen" in favor of the W. & W. R. R. building a branch up Fishing creek to Benton, in which Mr. Citizen speaks very discouragingly of the Bloomsburg and Sullivan R.R. Now, Mr. Citizen, I don't think you or any other persons have any reasons for acting or talking against the B. & S. R. R. at the present time, when they are pushing the road through as fast as possible. Now the citizen first says the B. & S. Company has never given us any guarantee when we were to have a road, and then he says they promised us a road within two years from the time of subscription. Now how is this? I don't think Col. Jamison ever promised any certain time when the road would be built. He might have said he expected it to be built so and so. But Col. Jamison with the assistance of Hon. C. R. Buckalew has had a great deal to contend with. First they had to look out a route and then they had it surveyed different times which was very expensive and their efforts were untiring, for which they deserve great credit. Mr. Jamison District, at Bloomsburg, will begin the did not come through the valley begging his way or asking money of the people to pay expenses. He paid his own way. Rail roads are not built on wind and water for teaching. The steam heating apparatus or Benton would have had one long ago. Now in regard to the W. & W. the corps of engineers that was at Benton were very gentlemanly fellows. But I think it will be a long time before we hear the whistle on the branch of the W. & W. road at Benton, but I think it won't be long until we will see the iron horse on the B. & S. FAIR PLAY

Three of the Snyder brothers, viz : the Rev. E. B., William and Firman, were visiting in this locality last week. Rev. Snyder lives in Philadelphia. He preached two sermons at the Harveyville Campmeeting. We heard the one on Sabbath morning and must say it was an able and profound discourse from Matthew V, 14 15 and 16 melusive. William is a resident of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Firman of Hub. lersville Pa. Ten years ago, Charles Snyder, the father, and another son E. A. publisher of Cedar Falls Gazette, Iowa, visited this locality on their return trip from the centennial. About three years ago, C. W. Snyder, publisher of the Red Oak Express, Iowa, was also a visitor. The sister, wife of Rev. D. Sheffer, also of Cedar Falls, has not yet returned to the place of her nativity. An interesting history in connection with the above family, no doubt, will some day be written.

The Harveyville campmeeting ground is as pretty a grove of sugar-maple, large and sturdy trees as eye could wish to see. Our people seem te be divided as to railroads. The monotony of our times will soon be broken by political harangues on "tariff," 'bloody shirt," "honest government," "dishonest officials" &c.

The above caption is intended to indicate that Berwick has celebrated the centennial anniversary of its settlement and still sur-In 1786, Evan Owen, who had come to this region some fourteen years before, conceived the idea of founding a village on the high gravelly plateau which borders the river where certain ripples make it navigable for boots at low water. The venture prospered, and through the ordinary vicissitudes of urban experience, the borough, in a hundred years, has reached its present "pitch of pride." No unnecessary amount of advertising was expended in "booming" the enterprise. The bills posted promised no marvelous exhibitions, and the show reached the height of its modest argument with a fidel ity unknown to the ordinary country show. Bloomsburg patronized this home effort with commendable liberality. The Friendship hose-reel and company, led by the Afton brass band and attended by some three hundred fellow citizens, went up on the ten o'clock train, a considerable number going on the earlier train. Other delegations of corresponding proportions were sent out from Catawissa, Danville and The sudden increase in local travel had the usual delaying effect on the trains, and the main contribution from the county sest arrived at Berwick about noon to find the tows swarming with sight-seers, and hardly a foot of ground to stand on, although at that early hour less was required for the purpose than later in the day. The crowded train was finally urloaded, however, and the line of march taken up through the deep dust of the incline that leads to the level. It is estimated that 10,000 people were in attendance.

The first part of the programme was set in motion soon after the arrivals from the west. The marching delegations were conducted to committee headquarters, ope development of an entire christian formally received. From thence they posite the postoffice on Front street, and were countermarched to the other end of the street and assigned positions in the

The almost immediate announcement Her they come !" passed from mouth to mouth indicated the opening of the day's attract tions, and caused the crowds on the side walks to take themselves to the available points of observation-the tall and broad. o the curbstone, and the short and slen der, to store steps and lamp posts. The fine of march brought the procession down Front street to the limits of the borough then by countermarch to Market, thence to Second, and down Second to the Fair grounds, where the jaded, dust-covered company arrived about one o'clock and were welcomed in an eloquent address by

The less distinguished visitors found their way to the same place by means of steam vachts that plied to and fro on the canal, by the various extemporized backs which formed no inconsiderable feature in the oustling scene, and by the sidewalks scarcely less remarkable for dust than the highways.

Those who were not fortunately provi of the stream, and his name ought to be ded with a basket lunch early turned their "Jamison and Buckalew" and the people attention to the business of examining the in the upper end of the county and all prospects for dinner. All approaches to along the line ought to rejoice that they he hotels were thronged by a crowd of have an outlet that has been so long needthirsty men and jaded looking women. The purveyors to the public were out dis posing dinner tickets-for a consideration -among the crowd, but the outlook was such that many considered it a lottery it which not a few of the tickets would draw planks. It was, perhaps, impossible to provide ampler hotel accommodations for the crowd, or it may be that the enterprise was successful beyond the expectation of the hotel keepers, but whatever the reason the result was a scant dinner, meager service, and a distressing jam. The Berwick hotels are all well kept houses, and are amply sufficient for all ordinary occasions, but when there are thousands of hungry people to feed, the hotels of a country town are always inadequate. The only wonder is that the Berwick land lords accommodated as many as they did. As a choice between two evils, some went to the grounds with the hope that the occasion would prompt many to open temporary dining stands, but alas! for the hungry, there was beer, beer everywhere, but not a thing to cat. The latter state ment should be so far modified as to except an ice cream stand, and a place where ba nanas and hastily constructed sandwiches were vended to an eager and not too fastidous crowd, but eyen these failed to drive road preferences. We are anxious for both l away the hungry look. Tickets to the public dinner were generally restricted to members of the various organizations, but such of the less distinguished guests as were known to bear the expense of a county paper or whose general appearance indicated a similar literary misfortune, were granted admission, so far as the pasteboard ould be thus construed. The main exhibition hall became the principal point of attack on the process-Dr. Baugh or and Rev. "substance of things hoped for," and to ome the only "evidence of things not seen." The interior was rapidly filled by dint of much squeezing effort, and, in spite of the committee in charge, it was not until the building was packed to the point of suffocation that the pressing enhusiasm of the Veterans could be abated At this point the delegation from Scrau-ton, which had been delayed by some accident to the teack, came marching into the grounds, led by Bauer's band, with its imposing drum major. The hall, which was rapidly being emptied of both food and people, was sgain packed to overflowing: again the jostling crowd spilled hot coffee on each other, and sandwiches flew around like things of life, but such enthusiasm even in the most important places of life, cannot endure forever, and the general interest began to gravitate toward the ball

The presence of certain uniformed ball tossers near the "Judges' stand," indicated the probable site of the third attraction of the programme. The "grand stand" was early occupied by a far-sighted crowd who vere quick to perceive the advantages of the situation, but the long delay emphasized by the impediment to a clear view of the whole field made by the "Judges' stand, caused constant changes among the sitters and few were obliged to go away for lack fore early inclosed, several ranks deep, by great crowd who preferred to endure the conveniences of a hot sun and a dusty seat or tedious standing.

The approach of Bauer's band to the Judges' stand' was the official signal for e gathering of the few scattering crowds who cared to witness the game. One sclection from the band loft, and the game was opened with the Berwick club to the bat, and the Hazleton club in the field. The end of the first inning promised a spirited game, the Berwicks barely gaining ne run and the Hazletons getting nothing In the second innings the visiting club returned the compliment of a "goose egg" but insisted on taking two runs. In each succeeding luning, save the ninth, the Berwicks failed to add any more runs to heir score, while the Hazletons failed to do so only in the fourth. Up to the eight inning, however, the visitors only made one run in each of the successful innings but in that they seemed to "get onto" the opposing pitcher's balls, and gave the Berwicks their first opportunity to distinguish nemselves in the out field. Whether they mbraced this opportunity may be a su ect of opinion when it is observed that the Hazletons scored five runs in this in ning. In the ninth, the Berwicks scored two runs, when their opponents, waiving the last half, closed the game with the score standing 11 to 3, in favor of the

It is as unprofitable, perhaps, to discushe causes contributing to this result, as of the question who killed Cock-Robin but lest it might betray a lack of acquaintance with the reporter's duties, it may b said that the chief reason is that the Hadetons are rather more skillful than th Berwicks. The latter was supported in the right field by a one-armed player, who, alhough remarkably efficient, considering his misfortune, is none the less a cause of weakness in a closely-contested game Some rather serious errors in fielding, and n evident tiring of the pitcher in the eigth inning were conspicuous contribu ions to the final result. After all, a still reater hindrance to the success of the Berwicks is to be found in the battery o the Hazletons. They are salaried men, and make the came a matter of business. They are well sustained in the field, and it reuires very expert playing on the part of the average amateur club to vanquish them. The Berwicks concede their superiority, but the home club have nothing to be ashamed of in their game of the 19th though they played with little expectation of winning. The finest personal play of the game must be accorded to the Berwick short stop, who leaped to catch a "hot" line ball and held it securely in one hand. The matter-of-course way in which he ac omplished the feat was admirable.

The game ended, the crowd rapidly nelted and streamed toward town in sev eral jostly currents, on foot, in various ve hicles and in the yachts. Those who went by water were obliged to submit to some incomfortable crowding, but escaped the clouds of black dust, which, more or less ompletely disguised those who took the land route. Early trains had somewhat thinned the crowd before the end of the game, and other trains took more of the visitors homeward, so that at six o'clock a little persistence brought one to the surfac where it was possible to look about him Supper was not so serious an affair as there was less of a crowd. There was no grum bling: a good feeling was everywhere man ifested, and the remaining crowds viewed

A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affect and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life. — Jno. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I. II contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.—H. E. Stimpson, Rogers Prairie, Tex. Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold, which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it

Many found the side walk a too narrow field to fully display their pedestrian accomplishments, and others were rather indiscreetly confidential, but it all might have been very much worse. The trains were late, as a matter of course, and the good natured crowd about the depot stood on their tired feet for an hour or two discussing the features of the day with great equanimity. Some of the more exhibarated element formed a procession headed by the fragment of a brass band, and marched to and fro before the buildings that front the track in this vicinity. Disjointed drum corps, enthusiastic pipers, and the aforesand band fragment made the welkin resound with their discordant strains. The saving feature of the situation was the darkness which allowed one sense, at least, to rest.
