 BRUSHES No. 3 North Canal St., Near L. V. R. R. Depot. John H. Derby, PROPRIETOR. CLASS VIL .- POULTRY DEPARTMENT .- super-

straightforward, and in some instances justly indignant, terms in which his vetoes were worded. He arraigned Congress for its faithlessness in pass-ing bills indiscriminately and without investigating the facts. Patiently he did work that Congress was elected to do, and when his veloes were given to the public the nation applauded the courageous manner in which he stool between deserters, imposters, and frauds and the funds intended for the disabled soldiers of the Union. So strongly were his vetoes entrenched in right that, with one or two exceptions neither the Republican Senate nor the Democratic House dared attempt to override them.

If the Republicans insist on making an issue of the pension vetoes, perhaps they will publish some of them. That would be an honest way to attack them For instance, the veto of a bill for the relief of a man with sore eyes, brought on by chronic diarries which developed seven years after the patriot's desertion in 1864, would make great campaign material. And yet it is no exaggeration of the bogus disabilities sought to be relieved by many of the vetoed bills.

This ado about the President's vetoes must not be charged to the heroes who fought to preserve the Union. They reputiate it. They resent being pa-raded as eternally swooping down on the treasury in order to be assured of the nation's gratitude. Through their representative body at the national encampment of the Grand Army in San Francisco last month they emphatically sat down upon a proposition favoring the passage of bill to give a pension of $8 a month to every surviving soldier or sailor of the war, whether disabled or not. The vote on the proposition stood 88 for it to 327 against it. The eighty-six probably were the vote-seeking politicians present, while the majority was representative of the almost universal sentiment of the non-office holding survivors of the civil war.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27, 1886.

The President and his family have returned to the White House where they are spending their time very quiet-ly. They take an almost daily drive to the country house, overlooking Washington, which the President re-cently bought. The heavy rectangular stone mansion has been thoroughly remodeled and when completed will make an attractive country home, if indeed he rapid growth of Washington will allow it to remain long in the country. Life at the White House at present is uneventful-there will be no entertaioments until the opening of the regular season when the usual number of receptions and state dinners will be given. The President will begin the preparation of his annual message at once, so as to get it outlined at least before Congress comes back. He has few visitors now and no pressing busi-ness, so that he can take as much time as he pleases for his message. Mean while the heads of the Departments are preparing the data which he will need in his review of their operations dur-ing the first year of his administration It is needless to say that the bare statement of the facts will make an admirable showing for all the Departments. Everybody who has anything to do with them knows that they never were more honestly, economically, ably, and let it be added with emphasis, court-weeks. Save your orders.

Exhibitors will be furnished with first-class coops free of charge; all coops shall contain one cock or cockerol and two hens or pullets. Will call on dealers once [oct1 1y.
