state the other general fact that we sell such stuffs at fair prices at first, and put them down as the season wanes or they prove unsuccessful. They are not economical stuffs. They take no account of money. But we do not make them needlessly extravagant.

It is proper to say these things to you right here at home and to you within traveling distance of us. You have eyes to see with. This isn't the only store you shop at. What we say has double force if you find it impartial, and double force the other way if you find it empty brag.

All the last-year's stuffs whether remnants or not are there. All the stuffs coming in for whatever reason that hinder trade at the dress-stuff counters go to the odd-lot counter.

It's a store by itself; and it makes the rest of the store a better store by drawing the line between old and new, between fashionable and going out, between what you would like if money were plenty and what you were glad to get for half or right party. Address, three-quarters.

A needed word about Brussels and Tapestry carpets.

Brussels is Brussels and Tapestry Tapestry. We never say body Brussels for Brussels, nor Tapestry Brussels for Tapestry. That is New York.

Brussels you know all about. Tapestry you know almost nothing about, except that Roxbury Tapestry always comes first [By Tapestry carpets for 75 cents a yard with plenty of latest patterns with borders to choose 90 cents-did you ever hear of very neat room.

Tapestry carpet is an imitation of Brussels. You may or may not beable to distinguish between them when they are on the floor. You can if you happen to know the one point in which they differ, viz., sharpness, exactness, angularity of pattern. But everybody knows that the wool and colors of Brussels show through on the back; and that is the way in which you probably judge between them. You think Brussels shows its colors on the back and Tapestry doesn't. You are a year or two behind. The makers belt, Bloomsburg, Pa. sels shows its colors on the back
