WASHINGTON LETTER

(From our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 27, 1886.

The last session of the Forty ninth Congress is shaming its predecessor by industry. There has been a good deal less talk and a good deal more work than usual so far. The passage of such bills as that to give the Indians land in severalty, that to redeem trade dollars, that to repeal the Tenure of Office act, Postal bills and appropriations, reflects high credit on Congress as a part of its second week's work.

Besides this legislation, various subjects have been briefly discussed, such as Interstate commerce, the Fisheries, the Tariff and the Beck Railroad Attorney bill. The latter measure of the Kentucky Seantor strikes at the railroad Senators and Members, and its aim is to prevent them from acting as attorneys for subsidized railroad corporations while receiving salaries from

When Col. Morrison called up the Tariff, a hush instantly fell over the House and noise in the galleries ceased. All eyes were turned upon him as he se to say, "Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into a commit tee of the whole for the purpose of considering revenue bills." The year and nays were then demanded, and during the roll call absolute silence reigned in the Hall, and many mem bers with pencil in hand were figuring up the vote. Messrs. Morrison and Randall were aparently the calmest men on the floor, each leaning back in his chair within a few feet of each other, while now and then a remark was exchanged between them. When it was announced that the motion was lost, there was applause on the Republican side. Mr. Morrison's proposition was voted down by the small majority was voted down by the small majority of five this time, while last June it was defeated by seventeen.

The Senare's repeal of the Tenure of of Office act restores to the President the right of removing Federal officers at any time. The House will probably pass the bill with but little discussion and so it will likely become a law be fore the fourth of March. The Presi dent will then be free from all restrain of a legal character in removing Re

The law was enacted when Congress was overwhelmingly Republican in both branches, to handicap the inde-pendent course of President Johnson removing Republicans from office As it was designed specially to fit, Mr. Johnson's case, few Republicans had any further use for the law after Gen. Grant became president and they made several attempts to repeal it. Or those occasions the Democrats did not urge, as was natural for them, that what was law for Johnson must be law for Grant, but contended for the repeal of the act on constitutional of last winter between him and the President which began with such a flourish of trumpets and ended so in gloriously for Mr. Edmunds, the latter becomes a monomaniac whenever the matter of Executive rights as opposed to the claims of the Senate is brought.

Weight as an ordinary cork life belt.

Fars when taken out in the fall can be made to look like new if they are wet with a hair brush, brushing up the wrong way of the fur. They should then be left to dry in the air for about half an hour and then given a good beating on the right side with a rattan. After beating comb with a coarse comb, combing up the right way of the further than the strength of recently under testa the to the claims of the Senate is brought before him. He at once begins to rant about giving the Executive the "kingly power," and the corruption that will follow his right of removal.

It would give inexpressible comfort to politicans all over the country if the letters that men write, like the good they do, were interred with their the former, on the af but 68 per cent. A fifteen year old letter of Gen. Grant's, showing his disbelief in the sincerity of Gen. Logau's republicaniem, has just come to light. wants to have his opinions published fifteen years after they were uttered? And if Gen. Grant did suspect the partisan loyalty of Gen. Logan theo, he would not now, for the Illinois Senator has changed his base since then as completely as has Senator Sherman his views on the Tenure of office act. The wily Ohio Senator is recorded in Congress and on the stump as one of the earliest advocates of 'ts unconditional repeal. This was on the ground that the only possible motto of political parties in a Republic is "to the victors belong" everything. Imagine the sur prise of his associates last Friday when Senator Sherman voted in the negative! The program of the President's New Year reception at the White House has been arranged like those of former years. The Comptroller of the Treasury looks unfavorabyl upon one of its letails, however. Just how the nine august personages who compose the U. S. Supreme Court, can on that cecasion so expand themselves as to require eleven roomy carriages, as they did last year, to take them to and from the Executive Mansion, would puzzle one more deeply versed in the mysterham. And then why Uncle Sam should be required to pay $20 for the use of each of these vehicles for two hours is another mystery. The new Democratic official sees in this time bonored custom as expenditure of the peoples' morey that is a little too ex-travagant although it is but a little item in the aggregate, and there is likely to be a reform sometime.

STUPENDOUS UNDERTAKING BY A COUPLE OF CAMPING SOLDIERS.

About a year ago a company was formed in Philadelphia called the Gettysburg Diorama Company, of which General St. Clair A. Mulholland became President, the purpose of which was to have painted a panorama of the great three days fight that decided the fate of the Union. The talent of the eminent American artist Frank D. Briscor, was seened, and he, together with an able corps of assistants, began the work which is now fast approach ing completion. The work differs from the wonderful cyclorama of Phil-apotanp, now on exhibition in Philalelphia, inasmuch as the latter shows ut one scene of the battle whilst Brisce's work covers the entire three day's fight. It consists of ten great paint-ings in oil, covering thousands of feet of canvass, the figures being life size, showing the ten principal episodes of the three days. The first scene is the opening of the battle, the death of the heroic Reynolds in McPherson's woods, Oulter's Brigade and Halls' Battery pening the fight on the right of the Railroad cut, the Iron Brigade deploy-ing in the woods where a few minutes after they captured General Ancher and his entire brigade. The fourth scene is the fight on Little Round Top, the death of Wood, Hazlett, Vincint and O'Rourk. The fifth picture is the awful fight in the Devil Den. The fifth scene is the magnificent charge of the Pennsylvania Reserve, when at sun down on the evening of the second they The last act of a disappointed lover who charged over the valley of death and morphined his way out of the world at Houston, Tex., was to send a beautiful bou- wheat field.
