ped and adored by all; but none with hopeless intensity as by young Miguel. Cortez ran into Manuel's arms of the band, with nothing to recommend him but a handsome face and figure, and the reputation of being an unerring marksman.

At length Fortescue seems to be recovering, and fearing that the sight of the room might have an effect on his mind, he made a dash for the door, and placing his poor friend on the stairs to the little room where he had supposed. Here the fire was fortunately still light, and the landlord, who never failed to do all in his power for his guests, had a log of wood, and telling his wife to bring a can of water, left the room.

The Cost of Smoke. LOSS OF PROPERTY BY FIRE LESS THAN THE CONSUMPTION OF TOBACCO.

Last year the losses by reported fires in the United States reached a total of $120,000,000, or an average monthly loss of $10,000,000. This is regarded as an enormous waste and is largely due to inconsideration and carelessness.

How many smokers? If we deduct from the total population as non-smokers all children under 15, constituting forty per cent. of the total population of 60,000,000, it leaves 36,000,000, of whom one-half are females, deducting these gives a male population above the age of 15, of 18,000,000.

What relation the expenditure for the smoking habit bears to the consumption of a few other articles more or less of a luxury is seen by the following exhibit, the figures showing the estimated cost to the consumer, averaging coffee at 10 cents per pound, tea at fifty cents, cocoa and chocolate at forty cents, sugar at six cents:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Estimated Cost. Includes Alcoholic and malt liquors ($500,000,000), Tobacco ($250,000,000), Sugar ($180,000,000), Coffee, tea and cocoa ($100,000,000), and School ($10,000,000).

Prevention of Accidents. The whole tendency of modern industrial progress is in the direction of abolishing manual labor in manufactures, and substituting for it machinery, which is being constantly improved, and which in the not distant future may be expected to reach still higher stages of perfection.

HOW A DRUNKEN FUNERAL PROCESSION LOST THE CORPSE OUT OF A SHROUD. Mayor Jones was a resident of Tamaqua in the days when the Mollic Maquies held full sway and men's lives were worth little in the eyes of the out-throats of the hard-wood region.

Such was the sight which met Manuel's eyes, as like a mad woman she leaped through the row of French soldiers who were kneeling in prayer on the shoulders of a couple of men. On one occasion, he remembers, a funeral procession of this character started to the cemetery and the gang was so drunk that it lost the corpse.

When Manuela discovered that she was an inmate of her house a deadly resolve filled her mind. "Surely the Virgin and the saints have at last delivered him into my hands," she thought.

On one pretext and another she waited until the soldiers, having eaten their weary and hungry close to the fire, were after the death of Garcia, Manuela and Juana had fled. A violent storm had commenced, and, rendered desperate by their misfortunes, they resolved to spend the night here, trusting that the loneliness and seclusion of the spot would not be known.
