of kings, poets and philosophers. Not being satisfied with the traditional knowledge practical utility to the present generation, except to gratify a curious ambition. But we do not propose to travel east to find Salina, and it is not half so far as Rome, pended indefinitely Monday. Nearly one ing obl.ged to give employers two weeks country abounds, and give little heed whether the souls of the mythical gods live in the stars or are buried in the earth with the body, and think that the man who can see in the features of a monkey a semblence of his original preguiture must have a contracted idea of deity in establishing his relationship. The people of Salina do not use profane language, neither are they addicted to strong drink. They believe in Salina and in female suffrage. They have a soil of a most fertile quality, from two to three feet deep, which appears to be made of different strata or deposits of different periods. About two feet of the surface is a vegetable soil, immediately underneath for nearly two feet, a marl containing magnesia, under which, for about two feet, a yellowish clay, apparently rich of soil, under which is a dara or black vegetable loam, then comes a plastic blue clay. The stone used in building seems to be a red sand stone and unguesian lime stone. The latter is much used and gives a fine and durable appearance. Brick are also used which are of a yellowish appearance, containing little of iron barites, but hard and durable with smooth surface susceptible of paint. Salina lies sufficiently high for easy drainage. The streets are wide and cross at right angles, and are shaded principally with cotton wood, maple and box elder is great profusion. The houses are built of Reading, as announced last week. Besides brick, stone and wood, chiefly of Arkansas pine, a very excellent quality, built in

The several banking houses, both national and private, having liberal capital, are in excellent repute and considered safe for all business transactions. There are three flouring mills, which have a daily capacity of fifteen thousand or more barrels, and there are many factories of various kinds. The Smoky Hill River is a narrow, sluggish stream, very deep and sinuous, making about five miles for a half wile in a straight line. Its banks are high and covered with abundant shade of walnut, cotton wood and maple festooned with wild grape vines, which are being trained around the trees to form seats and lounges and to continue growing, a most desirable resort on a high day. The land surrounded by the curvatures of the river affords desirable sites for residences, parks and boulevards, for which improvement is being rapidly made. The whole country is not one level plain, as many Eastern people suppose, but is divided into valleys of many miles in extent, of the finest farming land in the world. The following dispatch from Reading, dated May 22, appeared in the daily papers of Monday: The Reading Railroad Company has directed nineteen train crews to report for duty hereafter at Catawissa. Several months ago the Catawissa road's freight usiness was diverted to the Sunbury and hamokin branch, but the change overcrowded the single track road, delayed nearly all traffic, overworked the despatchers and train runners, and caused several expensive wrecks. It also closed several usiness houses and vacated about 150 dwellings in Catawissa, paralyzing trade in that town. The officials, it is now stated, have discovered their error and issued the order referred to.

The farmers of this place have just finished planting corn. The engineers on the W. & W. R. R. finished up the final survey on last Saturday, the people are no longer in doubt in regard to the way the road is to run. I suppose the Cambra fellows are feeling badly over it. The company could never have chosen a better or more direct route from New York to Chicago. After it is rightly established it will be one of our trunk roads and a great deal of freight will be hauled on this road.

Elias Kunkle has built an addition to his ouse at Jonestown. He expects to keep a house of entertainment. Mrs. Kunkle knows how to get up a good meal. There is some talk of Benjamin Savage of Benton erecting a hotel at Forks. Mack Robbins last Saturday on his way nome from Shickshinny on top of the Nob nountain saw three young foxes. He ran after them and caught one alive. It is supposed to be about two months old. Mr. Wm. Snyder, please take notice, there will be a chance for a fox chase some time next fall if all goes right.

Dr. W. T. Greene, the Dublin naturalist, writes concerning Cage Birds in the June number of Harper's with special reference to English winged pets. He gives many useful points to the keepers of birds. The bullfinch seems to be the Doctor's favorite. "There is no animal," he says, "with which I am acquainted, not even the dog, that forms so firm, so devoted, so tender at at-tachment for its master as the naturally say and wood-loving builfirch, that almost dies of terror when first caught, but be-comes more readily reconciled to captivity than any bird I know." The English robin, the nightingale, the mocking-bird, ravens, magpies, thrushes, parrots, tits, sparrows, and several Australian, New Zealand, and Mexicas birds also receives their states of
