In Memoriam.

DAVID LOWENBERG Opened the portals of Heaven, Descended the angel of Death; With upraised hand

At Heaven's command Robbed this mortal being of breath.

Point d this Angel upward

And spake the Lora's decree:
Thy life work is done,
Thy laurels are won,
Come thou to Heaven with me

And the beating heart was silenced, And the soul from its casement fled, And he, who was dear To his fellow men here, Was numbered among the dead. Fluttered his spirit skyward,

Returned his spirit to God. And the casement of clay Was hidden away To mould beneath the sod. Trickle our tears in unison With thy loved ones here below; For our hearts are rent And our heads are bent

To the yoke 'neath which all go.
Farewell, thou true, noble spirit,
Farewell, thou corruptible clay; In patience we wait Till at Heaven's bright gate We meet on the Judgment day.

In the name of the family of our depart ed friend, David Lowenberg, the Hebrews of this town express their thanks to the citizens of Bloomsburg for the great honor enberg.

Corn and oats are looking well, though grass in many places seems short. Several mishaps have caused a speedy repair of our bridges. A country like Benton should begin to build stone bridges. Last Saturday Wm. H. Krickbaum lost his overcoat, somewhere between Thomas Bellas' and the Ravencreek road. This room during the time of the consideration probably would not have occurred in Winter month. Let the finder see that is returned to its lawful owner.

> Said Spinnogle to his wife, "I wish I wa dead." "How you do talk, dear, why?" "Because I'd like to see whether you'd try to get another husband,"

TO PRESERVE NATURAL FLOWERS .- Di the flowers in melted paraffine, withdraw-ing them quickly. The liquid should be only just hot enough to maintain its fluid-ity and the flowers should be dipped one at a time, held by the stocks and moved about for an instant to get rid of air bub-bles. Fresh cut flowers, free from moisture, make excellent specimens in this way.
