George Rinker, an employe at Harman & Hassert's shops, was seriously injured last Tuesday. While engaged in running a planer his hand was caught, and three fingers of the left hand were taken off, the second and third fingers, and little finger: the first finger was broken. The wounds were dressed by Dr. Willetts.

Nothing in a recently published compila tion of like definitions excels the following, said by the Norwich Bulletin to have been written by a boy in school in that city, in a language lesson in which the word "organic" was to be used in governing the sense of the sentence: "The he Italian is the most organic man on the face of the earth."

A level-headed writer has just given unblicity to the following: "One-third of the fools in this country think they can beat the lawyers in expounding the law; one-half think they can beat the doctors in healing the sick: two-thirds of them think they can beat the ministers in preaching the gospel; and all of them know they can beat the editor in running the paper."

The following interesting note is taken rom the report for June of the Department of Agriculture."The whole habit of abund ance and scarcity of even and odd years has been broken up unquestionably by the killing frost of June 15, 1884. A large porion of the trees have one side in bearing in alternate years, and in other cases portions of orchards are in full bearing in the odd year.'

A shrewd dodge, for "raising the wind," by tramps, is now being worked for all that it is worth. They invariably ask for a cake of soap at each house they visit and their request is almost generally complied with. After securing a good supply, they wrap the cakes in tissue paper, visit some suitable town or village and auction off their scap to the highest bidders, thereby ands of visitors were there, and the Milon Argus says the number of people far exceeded that of any public day the town has ever seen. At two o'clock in the afternoon a grand parade took place; 12 visiting fire companies were in line, besides the Milton fire department. There were also Milton fire department. There were also soldiers, bands, and drum corps. The town was beautifully decorated, and the whole thing was a success, with the exception of the fire works, which took place in the evening, which twere said to be a fizzle. Most of the firement that were present were those who went to the aid of the Milton firemen at the time of the great fire which took place there a few years ago.

Monday was a gala day in Milton. Thou

The contestants were Thomas Hoar, of Wirkes-Barre, and Peter Hurly, of Nanticoke. Seventy-one desperate rounds were fought, both men being badly punished. When time was called for the eventy-second round Hoar claimed he ould not see and said he "had enough." The fight was therefore awarded to Hurly by the referee, Moses Melliken.

The Fourth at Orangeville. The Fourth was celebrated in grand style at Orangeville this year. The first passenger trains were run over the Bloomsburg and Sullivan road, and every train took large crowds up the road and landed them at the platform near the town, which was used as a temporary station. The first crowded with people. The engine was prettily decorated with flags and in front were hung portraits of Col. Jameson and Chief Engineer U. S. Lutz. As the train started from the platform erected at Main street crossing, a photograph of it was taken by Frank M'Killip; only the engine and two cars could be taken, however. The trip to Orangeville was made in about 40 on. The train was welcomed to Orangeville by a large crowd, and several salutes from a small cannon were fired.

The streets of the town were at severa points crossed by arches, and at one point, the crossing of two streets, there were two arches crossing almost at right angles, and at the intersection was hung a bell of over the whole town.

The first thing on the program for the day was the parade, which took place about ten o'clock in the moraing. The procession formed at the lower end of town, marched up to the head of the street and countermarched back again. The parade consisted of two bands, fantastics, drum corps, and other features, including the wagon containing the thirtyeight little girls, representing the states, and a wagon containing a B. & S. engine in miniature. The procession was headed by George Washington, represented by Mr. John Masteller, and Martha Washington, represented by Mrs. Johnson, both on horse-

In the afternoon there were numerous attractions; a game of base ball was played between Orangeville and Shickshinny, the game being called at the end of the eighth inning, with the score standlower end of town in an unfinished house by Mr. J. F. Caldwell, Metherell's orchestra furnishing the music; but the larger portion of the crowd went to the groye to hear the speeches and other exercises that were there carried out. Patriotic speeches were delivered by Grant Herring, Esq., and Prof.

J. H. Harkins. In the evening there was a grand display f fireworks, and the dance was continued,

Mr. S. Alfonso Caswell, senior member of the firm of Caswell Bros. & Co., manufacturers of woolen goods, died suddenly of heart disease at his home on West Fifth street Wednesday afternoon about three o'clock. He had been a patient sufferer with heart disease and dyspepsia for a number of years and for the past six months was also afflicted with dropsy. He knew that the lease of life was short with him, and hence by great care in the taking of food he prolonged his days.

Wednesday morning he felt unusually well and taking the horse and carriage he called at the home of Dr. Gardner and the two started for a pleasure ride. He returned at dinner time and took his usual meal. Leaving the table before the rest of the family he went up stairs and sat in a rocking chair, intending to rest awhile before brella at least a foot in advance of their starting for the woolen mills About three o'clock his father came up from the mill and inquired for "Fon" as he was usually called. Four of the members of the Bonita Lawn Pennis Club of this place having received a challenge from four of the Danville Club to play them at the Danville grounds, a game was arranged between them for last Saturday afternoon. Invitations were extended to all the members of the club here to accompany the players to Danville and quite a number went down. The party started about three o'clock in the band wagon, drawn by four horses, and arrived at Danville at half-past four. The game was begun at five o'clock, and continued until nearly eight, six sets being played. The teams of the two clubs were as fol-

Probably, when the members of our club have had more practice, they wil be able to make a better showing against Danville than they did this time. After the game, the party returned to the Montour House, where they took supper, and shortly after 10 the start was made for home, which was reached about half-past eleven, after a delightful ride through the moonlight.

A Fountain Pen Decision.

We take the following from the American Stationer of June 30th in reference to a preliminary injunction granted by the United States Court to Paul E. Wirts After several months of exhaustive r search in obtaining evidence as to fountain pens, and after an argument of three days before Judge Benedict, in the United States Court for the Eastern District of New ship. Held that the facts fail to establish York, the printed proofs and briefs were a settlement of the pauper in her own handed up for the court to make its final right, or by derivation from her husband, decision in a case wherein Paul E. Wirt, proprietor and inventor of the Wirt foun tain pen, sued an infringer. Judgment pro confesso has been taken by Mr. Wirt in instances where partles sought to infringe, and several preliminary injunctions have been granted by the United States Court in his favor. In one instance where an injunction was granted in closing an opinion the court said :

"It is quite clear, however, that in the efendant's pen the ink is by his arrangenent of feeders fed upon the pen from above by capillary attraction, and also from below. The plaintiff's combination will make a practical pen, fed only from above by capillary attraction. It is mbination adapted to produce ertain result. The defendant uses the same combination to pro-suce the same result, and he has added a second combination which produces at the same time a result differing from that produced by the claintiff's combination only in this, that it feeds the pen from below. It is true tha the defendant in using the plaintiff's combination has shortened the shaft, but in the added combination he has a shaft which while it draws ink down to the lower side of the pen, also draws ink to the shortened upper shaft, whence it goes to the upper side of the pep. This slight modification affords no ground for the defendant to con tend that he does not use the plaintiff's combination. The most that he can pre weakening effect, both upon body and tend is that, while be uses the plaintiff's combination to feed the upper side of the doing any arduous work, and even light pen, he at the same time feeds the pen from the under side by a combination of his own. In so doing, however, he in fringes upon the plaintiff's pattern; for he uses the combination described in the plaintiff's patent, namely, to feed the pen with the ink drawn down to the nib upon the upper side of the pen, by means of capil lary attraction. It seems to me that a clear case of infringement of the plaintiff's pat ent is shown. Several patents were refer red to by the defendant to show the state of the art, but I find nothing in these pat ents calculated to deprive the plaintiff of the right asserted in the patent sued on.

The B. & S.

July 22, 1887.

Over 700 people rode up to Orangeville on the excursion trains on the 4th. The train consisted of four gondola cars with eats comfortably arranged, and with tem-porary roofs. The road bed is very smooth porary roofs. The road bed is very smooth for a new road, and the ride is a most de-lightful one. The track is laid about six miles above Orangeville, and it will not be many weeks before the whistle of the locootive will awaken the echoes in the Ben-

Two new locomotives and several handsome passenger coaches have been ordered for the B. & S. but will not be completed until about October 1.

Arrangements should be made for a big excursion to Benton as soon as the tracks are laid, and another one when the new train is put on the road.
Bridgens and Hughes have completes their contracts for grading, and their work was well done.

Dyspepsia makes the lives of many people miscrable, and often leads to self-destruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than flood's Sarsaparil la. It acts gently, yet surely and efficiently, tones the stomach and other organs, removes the faint feeling, creates a good appetite, cures headache, and refreshes the burdened mind. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. It will do you good.
