One of the principal causes of failure in preserving eggs is that in nearly all cases where the eggs are collected from different sourses a few stale ones get in among those that are fresh, thus injuring all. Only strictly fresh eggs can be preserved.

growth since spring need no fertilizer other than wood ashes. The object should be to keep the ground clean. Those who have attempted to grow a grass crop in the peach orchard have tound such a method a mistake. In the pear orchard, however, a grass crop will not injure the trees, as too rapid growth of pear trees is said to induce the blight.

The difficulty of curing fodder corn in its immature state, says an exchange, tempts many farmers into permitting it to become too ripe before cutting.

A man who is well thought of by the railroad fraternity is Hoyt Sherman general agent of the Tuion Pacific, of Salt Lake who arrived from that place it to become too ripe before cutting. The stage of flowering is considered the best time to cut other crops, and Land plowed deep in the fall will produce, on an average, a fully one third larger yield than the same land whose walls rose to magnificent heights plowed in the spring, besides being in a more advantageous form for cultiva-tion. Deep fall plowing mellows the land and causes it to yield up more readily the fertilizing qualities of the celled. There was something about oil and retain better the elements of plant food. Let any farmer observe the difference in the crop production over the same quality of soil plowed in the spring. Especially will the differ-ence be seen in a dry season.

The question is asked whether it isn't a great mistake for farmers to crowd all their stock, farming implements, provender and grain into their barns, so that if the barn takes fire, the flames destroy every thing at one fell swoop? Wouldn't it be better to have have Wouldn't it be better to have hay, straw and fodder under barracks at a safe distance from the buildings? And were beyond reach. Then the silverwould it not be better to have horses and cattle housed in a stable separate from the baru? In a word, is it prudent and economical to build large and costly barns and store them with in-flammable material, so that the structure and contents may be reduced to one that is not new to him now. They readers that burnt corn is a certain and speedy cure for hog cholera. The best way is to take a pile of corn on the cobs and effectually scorch it and give the affected hogs free access to it. This remedy was discovered by E. E. Lock at the time his distillery was burnt down in Lewiston, Ill., together with a lot of stored corn, which was so much injured as to be unfit for use. It was greedily eaten by the hogs, several of which were dying daily. After the second day not a single hog was lost, and the disease entirely disappeared. The remedy has been tried in a number of cases since, and has never to reconnoltre and saw a black object to reconnoltre and saw a black object that the corral. We know persons who are afraid of pienies, and even of their own gardens, on this so count. Clothing is an imperfect protection, for we have seen a chil I whose foot and ankle had been stung through the stocking so seriously that for days she could not wear a leather shoe. All this can be avoided according to our experience, and that we believe of many others, by carbolic acid judiciously used. The safest plan is to keep a saturated solution of the acid. The solution cannot contain more than 6 or 7 per cent., and it may be added to water until the latter smells strongly. This may be readily and with perfect safety be applied with a sponge. EXCITING MIDNIGHT ENCOUNTER BELATED BY A RAILROAD AGENT.

A man who is well thought of by yesterday. He was first brought into prominence by an adventure which he had on the road from Beaver Canon oorn appears to be no exception. The rule very generally observed among experienced growers is to out fodder corn for drying in the early blossom of the tassel. At whatever stage the fodder is harvested it is wise to have the crop cut before being touched by frost.

I and allowed does in the fall will be adventure the road was parintitive. Rough and rocky, it passengers and made them want to cover the distance again. But as pleasant as they were they were not free from danger. It lurked every-where. In the fissures of the rocks were skulking mountain lions watching the passage of the stage coach with gleaming eyes, while panthers, more cowardly yet fully as dangerous, perched in trees that overhung the road on which the stage traveled, would give stately rounds for meat, would cautious ly pass that way. Sometimes at night the tourists would camp for a change. It was one night that they did this that Mr. Sherman had his adventureashes?
