SELECT STORY. THE WALLED IN ROOM. I opened my eyes and looked around me.

How to Spend Money. Many a rich man would bear testimony, I think, to the fact that my outlay has had more to do with making him rich than the mere art of making money.

A Blow Given in the Dark. Maj. Haggarty was in the city yesterday, and while seated upon one of the red-leathered ottomans at the Delaware Hotel.

Simply Wasting His Money. Dakota Bellman in the Chicago Tribune, "Yes," said a tall man dressed in black.

The Secret of Longevity. A little way beyond the ancient church at Holderness is a brick residence, whose front is half hidden by one of those massive trees.

A Flying Snake. NO WONDER THE ALLEGHENY COUNTY JUDGES ARE CUTTING DOWN LIQUOR LICENSES.

The beauty of this is twofold. First, it is the latest, and, second, it is a new version of it.

Why don't you write something about the big snake that was seen up in the air? It was the remark of a Sharpburg iron-worker to a reporter.

Oh, I know it sounds queer, but it is a fact. The thing, whatever it was, was seen by a number of men at work in Spang, Chalfant & Co's lower pipe mill.

This is the singular story of a number of men were standing outside the works one of them looked up and saw what he at first thought to be a snake about five feet long, evidently more than 2,000 feet away, in the air.

It was not until it was not long until it was over them, looking to be about 500 feet high, or about as high again as the hill at that place.

The object was more than fifty feet in length it seemed to be when first noticed. As it came nearer it looked to be a monster snake. It was jet black and in thickness looked like an ordinary keg.

The ponderous jaws of the reptile were frequently seen to open, from which emerged a large tongue. It coiled in a regular circle to a point when the jaws opened it then took a downward course and seemed as though it would fall to the ground below.

On the descent the month remained open, and after a fall of about 100 feet the jaws would close and the snake would raise its head and crawl up to its former height.

The course of this monster air snake was in a north-westerly direction. During its stay of about an hour it seemed to long for a visit to every part of Etna. From the mill it moved like a snake on land westward about a mile to a point on the Allegheny river, from where it took a back course to the place where it was first seen by the naked eye.
