The Sunday school held a Christmas

entertainment at the Zion church, Fishingcreek township, Christmas eve, for the benefit of the children. It consisted of singing, class exercises and recitations. The children did well in reciting their pieces, doing credit to themselves and their instructors. The singing was good. Some of the pieces they sang were rather difficult and a few in the choir had but little or no practice so that if there were any mistakes or discords, the blame should not be put upon the whole choir, but upon those who falled to practice. The church was crowded to overflowing, yet there was good order. Pleasant weather and good H S. Phillips, near Ulysses, Neb., or roads brought several there from a disroads brought several there from a distance. E M. Laubaugh, Supt., took E Bently, Mr. George H. Stine to Miss charge of the exercises with Miss Mirism McHenry at the organ. The opening plece was a Christmas chant sung by Mrs. Anna McHenry, Mrs. Jennie Dewitt, Miss Effie Creasy, Miss Emma Richard, Mr. Cyrus Robbins and Mr. J. L. Conner. Prayer was offered by Mr John Sutton. The following is the program: Music, "Oh, Lift up Your Hearts," by the choir; Opening address, John Sutton; Music, "Something to do," by the children; Recitation, Annie's and Willie's Prayer," Amanda Dewitt; "The Floral Cross," sung by Effic Creasy's class; The months, having names of each in wreaths, Clara Trump's class; Music "The Coming Christ," choir; "Christmas Customs," O. J. They had ladders arranged in the form of the letter A which were literally covered with presents, some beautiful and costly ones. There were over seven hundred and fifty gifts. These entertainments are r treat to the children and everybody I believe is in favor of them as far as the exercises are concerned and rewarding the S. S. children with candies, nuts, cards and small books, or teachers giving their scholers a present or scholars their teacher. But many are opposed to taking so many gifts merely to beautify the tree or for show, as it makes many a sad heart among the children. Poor children who are in need of many things, get but few presents, while those children who really have every thing they need get the majority of them. Two children will be sitting together, one will get as much or more than he can carry, the other will get nothing or a mere trifle while he is the one that is in need of these things. I believe I will be safe in saying that bree fourths of the gifts there were either given by parents to their children, or by children to their parents, or else given by one member of a family to another member in the same family. If these gifts were given at home the children would be just as happy as to receive them at a church, while the poor children, whose parents cannot afford to buy them much, not entertainment and receiving scarcely any-thing. This is not only my own opinion welcome. but the opinion of many with whom I have talked. ONE-WHO-WAS-THERE.

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Dec. 26, 1887 There's a Christmas day and Christmas week, and in keepng up the swing and shine of Christmas throughout the store until New Year's Eve we have in mind the thousands whose work and inclinations hold them fast and keep them away from the city until after Christmas day. Greetings to you all, good riends! The high compliments of the season to the busy thinkers and toilers upon whom so much depended in making it a jolly Christmas time. What would Christmas be but for those first cousins of Santa Claus who hinted to the generous old fellow the very things we were wanting?

Now, then, when all others have been happified, come along yourselves for a rest. A day or two in the city will put new life in you. A little change from the everyday work is a better tonic than quinine.

When you come to the city accept freely whatever of comfort and convenience our store affords. Five minutes after you knowing what other children get, would reach Broad Street Station you be far happier than going to a Christmas are at our door. It is not nevelcome.

> It is a good time to come to the store. All the anxiety of weeks of preparation and the from 10 to 25, will save strain of the doubly busiest days of the year are off and over. Everybody has had a sleep and a holiday, and we are all cheerier and readier to begin anew. It is like the rest at midday under the trees in harvest time: we are refreshed and at it again with a will. There's a plenty to see. The store is like a river at the foot of a mountain down whose sides a score of steady streams are pouring. While the outlet is into the ocean of people, the full and fresh. To be sure, after the jostling and hurrying of the last week before Christmas, there's a lot of things dusty and clipped and soiled. There are also things that were broken in the deliveries and returned by customers. But then these are put by themselves and sold at seldom more than half price. c Privilege of return The surge and sweep of the Christmas throngs cannot but GRAND JURORS FOR FEBRUARY do dust-damage and make breakages somewhere.

To give an idea of how i goes, take the night before we write, when the crowd was not so large as any one of the two or three nights before. Out of curiosity we counted the people hat passed a single point in ive minutes near the centre entrance on Chestnut street, and there was a full thousand of them, good humored and happy. To verify the count we repeated the experiment, and proved the thousand over again. A thousand in five minutes! and six other large entrances through which the people were coming Would they come if there was nothing at least worth seeing? If a few goods are hurt in the crowd we will not grumble, They are for sale as soon as Christmas is over for what they'll fetch, and the prices we put on them bring the customers quickly soon as the news gets around.
