The wicked three-cent piece is to be retired. The coin was a nuisance on account of its resemblance to the dime, and people will be glad to get rid of it for this reason. That is, most people will—though those who have been in the habit of clipping in a three-cent piece on the church collection plate every Sunday and getting credit for a dime contribution will deeply regret the disappearance of their most convenient coin.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself and superior to all other preparations, in strength, economy and medicinal merit.

The eldest son of Mr. T. H. Edgar of Stillwater died Saturday last week of inflammation of the bowels, after an illness of about one week. His death was unexpected and was a sad one to his many friends in that section. He was about 18 years of age. Interment in the Christian burial ground Tuesday.

Some one either carelessly or maliciously, broke one of the large plate glass windows in the postoffice on Tuesday night. There is a clue to the parties, and some steps will be taken to ferret the matter.

Another fox chase took place last Monday afternoon. The fox, which was caught at the hunt last week, was taken to a field on Mr. Xocum's farm near the Red Rock bridge and there set free. But a few minutes were given him to get out of the way before the dogs were after him and after a long and exciting chase he was overtaken near Heller's church, not far from Jerseytown and life was quickly shaken out of him; Thomas Vannatta's hound, Sport, was the first to catch up with him, and the others were not far behind.

The chase was said by those who took part in it to have been the finest one of the season.

The improvements at W. H. Gilmore's have made his saloon one of the finest in this section of the country. The partition has been taken out between the front and rear rooms, making one large, commodious room. The woodwork has been handsomely repainted. Behind the bar has been placed a large handsome mahogany case, finely carved and containing beautiful mirrors. Gas jets with colored globes have been distributed at different points so as to give a magnificent effect. A row of mirrors with handsome walnut frames extend across the wall opposite the bar. The whole effect is brilliant and beautiful and Mr. Gilmore is to be commended for his taste and enterprise in the remodeling of his establishment.

An exchange says: If the county roads are impassable, it is the duty of the supervisors to put them in shape. The law of 1876 is explicit on this point. Supervisors are authorized to clear roads of all obstructions. Necessary to allow a resumption of traffic. Turkeys are no more exempt than common roads in this particular, and must also be kept open, not in name only, but in actual fact. To dig a single road track through a long snow drift is not opening the road. Vehicles can not pass in it, and it is not such a roadway as the law contemplates. Accidents resulting in pecuniary loss or bodily injury would undoubtedly carry damages with them if brought into the courts. It would be well, therefore, for all interested in opening blocked roads to bear this in mind.

Miss Annie Sloan, daughter of M. C. Sloan, was married to C. C. Evans Esq. of Berwick on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at St. Paul's P. E. church, by Rev. W. C. Leverett. No formal invitations were issued, but many friends of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony. Mrs. M. A. Smith presided at the organ, and discoursed some excellent music preceding the arrival of the bridal party, and the well-known wedding march at the close of the ceremony. Messrs. W. Clark Sloan, Frank Wilson, Frank Pursel and William S. Rishon were the ushers. The bride was the recipient of many very handsome presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held by Mr. and Mrs. Evans and their numerous friends. Mr. Evans took the noon train for Philadelphia and on their return to Berwick will get on once to the handsome home that Mr. Evans has recently erected. Our best wishes go with them.

Without doubt the most valuable contribution in Harper's Magazine for March, from the point of view of the greatest number of people, is Charles Dudley Warner's opening study of "The Great West—A Far and Fast Country." In his graceful, easy style Mr. Warner sweeps across the great Northwest from Minneapolis to Great Falls, and carries his reader along so pleasantly that one is never weary despite the distance. The facts and statistics presented are none the less instructive for being given in an entertaining way. Every intelligent man and woman will be interested in Mr. Warner's study—those in the East because it will teach them something, and those in the West because they will see themselves faithfully photographed therein. It follows, of course, that Mr. Warner's article is not free from criticism; but fair, generous, intelligent criticism is agreeable to Western people. The value of the contribution is further enhanced by a particularly good map, based upon a map in The Railway Age.

The following correspondence explains itself:

Death of Eliza M. Kuhn.

The death of Eliza M. Kuhn, which occurred on Wednesday evening, February 15, as announced last week, although a sudden shock to her many friends in the community, was not altogether unexpected by the members of the family. She was first stricken on January 22nd, with what seemed neuralgia of the head and spine. Soon after the family physician was called and pronounced her death. Inflammation of the bowels, and said it would be many weeks before she would recover. As her nervous system seemed to be generally affected. From the time of her prostration until she died, she was in a constant state of suffering from the influence of opiate, and she was at no time wholly conscious. Her death was a sad one, as she was just on the eve of becoming a bride and her form was enshrouded in part of the apparel that was intended for her wedding garments. The funeral services were held at the house on Saturday afternoon at half-past two o'clock, February 19, and the attendance was very large. The floral decorations were beautiful, consisting of the following designs: "The Gates Ajar," "The Star," "Broken Columns," by friends and members of the family; a "Cross" by a lady friend of Selinsgrove, "The Anchor and Cross," by gentlemen friends; a "Cross" by members of the Sunday school, and a pillow, "Resting at Home," by a friend. The casket was strewn with flowers and at her feet were conducted by the pastor, Rev. F. P. Manhart, assisted by Rev. J. P. Tustin and D. J. Waller, Jr. The pallbearers were Messrs. H. B. Clark, J. C. Wiegand, C. C. Peacock, E. V. Hartman, Chas. Funston and Frank Wilson.

For some time she had been an active worker in all of the societies of the church. She was kind and affectionate to all, and her popularity was attested by the wide circle of friends who paid their last sad respect to the departed one.

She was 27 years, 2 months and 18 days of age.

Tax Collector.

The Act of 1885 provides for the election of a tax collector. The Town of Bloomsburg, being organized under a special law, does not come under the provision of this act so far as the collection of taxes is concerned. But the voters of the town each year elect a collector, whose duty it is to collect the county, school and poor taxes. It has not been the custom thus far to duplicate the duplicate of the town in the hands of the collector thus elected, but to give it to some one specially appointed by the council, but there seems to be no good reason for this. When the electors of the town select one to whom they are willing to entrust the collection of part of their taxes, why not give him the whole of the work? If all the duplicates were placed in his hands, one man could afford to give his entire time to the business, but divided up as it is the collector must necessarily have some other pursuit or he cannot live.
