MEETING OF DEMOCRATIC STANDING COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the members of the Democratic Standing Committee will be held at the Grand Jury room, Bloomsburg, on Friday, March 10th, 1888, at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of choosing delegates to the State Convention, and to transact other important business.

ROBERT R. LITTLE, Chairman. E. M. TEWKESBURY, Secretary.

Col. H. B. McKean, of Towanda, has been appointed a messenger at the White House by President Cleveland.

Daniel Dougherty has permanently located in New York. He was formerly admitted to the bar in New York on Monday.

The efforts made to save the life of Samuel Johnson, the convicted murderer of John Sharpless in Chester county, were without avail, and the Pardon Board has refused to interfere. Unless the case is taken to the Supreme Court of the United States Johnson will hang soon.

One of the greatest women philanthropists, and one about whom society knows little or nothing, is Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, of Boston. Her income is about $50,000 a year which she receives quarterly, and it is said she has often pointed before the end of the quarter. She has no children, no house, does not keep a carriage, never goes to a theatre, never read but two novels in her life and never possessed but one velvet dress. She spends her entire time and fortune in charity, and she without any selfishness with the objects of her generosity.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5, 1888. After many months of hard labor, Mr. Mills and his Democratic colleagues of the House Committee on Ways and Means have perfected a tariff bill, which is now before the whole committee. It is reported to be the most liberal tariff since the war, which means that the republican members of the committee have exhausted all the methods of delay to which parliamentary usage entitles them.

The bill does not entirely satisfy every democrat, no bill would. It is not an ideal revenue reform bill, nor such a measure as the gentlemen who framed it would have presented had they been clothed with plenary legislative authority. Practical statesmanship recognizes the limitations imposed by conflicting views and opposing interests. Still it is a bill that is likely to be supported by every member of the party, as the most expedient that can be had at present. It puts wool, lumber and salt on the free list and materially reduces the duty on sugar, and it is estimated that it will reduce the revenue of the Government to the extent of $50,000,000.

Candor compels me to say that at this time there is much doubt as to whether the bill will pass the House, owing to the willingness of certain members to sacrifice the interests of the country at large as well as the democratic party because the bill would, if it became a law, injure some petty industry in their own districts. Shouldn't there be some way of whipping these men into the party traces or else out of the party altogether? The democratic party is pledged to Revenue reform, on that issue it won the last Presidential election and hopes to win the next, though. How it will do it if the House of Representatives, with a democratic majority, shall refuse to pass a tariff bill looking towards reform, is more than the most clear-headed politician can see just now. However, there is time enough for the people to be heard from on this subject, and that is demanded by the people is seldom refused by Congress. Let the democratic press bring the greatest power of modern times—public opinion—to bear on this question.

The new tariff bill is approved by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury—and I might also add by a majority of democrats.

From this time on the House will hold evening sessions on Friday for the consideration of private pensions and political disability bills. The Senate committee having in charge the District of Columbia decided against the Platt prohibition bill, and is disposed to refer the question of prohibition, high license, or no change in the liquor law, to a direct vote of the citizens of the District. In other words they are in favor of local option for the District.

The bill authorizing the issue of paper fractional currency in denominations of 10, 15 and 25 cents is likely to become a law. The House committee on Banking has ordered a favorable report thereon.

Next Thursday the House committee on Manufactures will begin testimony in its investigation of the various "trusts." Some interesting developments are expected.

The House committee on pensions has made a favorable report on the bill relating to claims for pensions by dependent parents. It will only be necessary to show that the soldier was entitled to a pension, and that he left no widow or minor children, and that the parent or parents are dependent. The committee has also made a favorable report on the bill authorizing the payment of the pensions of habitually intoxicated persons to their wives or to guardians.

The joint resolution changing the time for the commencement of the Presidential term to April 30, and changing the date for the annual meeting of Congress to Jan. 1st, has been favorably reported to the House.

Mr. Edward Cooper, ex-mayor of New York city, and brother-in-law of Mayor Hewitt, who has been accused of intriguing against Mr. Cleveland's nomination was in this city for several days last week, and most emphatically denied the accusation and at the same time said that he was for Cleveland first, last, and all the time. While here he spent much time in consultation with the President and Col. Lamont.

The Government Printing Office investigation is still slowly dragging along. Mr. Benedict was on the stand Saturday, and the republicans put him through a rigid cross examination, but failed to make a point against him.

The Taxes to go First.

The Mills tariff bill is antagonized in the monopolistic press, and will undoubtedly be met in the House by the old plea that the internal revenue taxes should be first repealed.

The proposition is un-democratic in principle and economically unsound. To abate first the taxes that bear heaviest on the greatest number of people—to tax luxuries and vice heavily and necessities lightly—is both Democratic and right.

To abolish the internal taxes on whiskey, beer and tobacco is simply to throw away revenue, and relieve manufacturers and dealers from an impost that is not burdensome. No poor man would be able to buy a drink or cheaper tobacco or a cigar any cheaper than he would be if the taxes were removed. The tax is, in nearly every case, small to the consumer, and large to the manufacturer and dealer. And if the tax were felt every consumer could abolish it for himself by the simple expedient of leaving whiskey and tobacco alone.

Very different, however, is it with the tariff taxes that it is proposed to abolish or reduce. To cheapen sugar a cent or two cents a pound, to reduce the price of clothing, lumber, glass, and hundreds of manufactured articles, is to give all the proper relief. As Speaker Carlisle says: "The people need cheap food, cheap clothing, cheap books and cheap implements to work with much more than they need cheap tobacco, cheap whiskey or cheap beer." The vast and complicated system of internal revenue has been cut down until only three articles remain. The tariff is still up to the wauwau. Down with it to a peace basis—World.

A SECOND HUSBAND KILLS HIMSELF ON THE REAR-SEAT OF THE TRAIN.

Special Telegram to the Times.

WILKESBARRE, March 3.—Thirty years ago when Mary Gotham was a pretty lassie in the town of Durham, England, she had many suitors for her hand but finally consented to marry Martin Bove, a handsome young man of the town. Everyone looked upon the marriage as a very agreeable one. For a while the two young people lived a very happy life, but disagreements arose and the young husband took to drink. The wife became discouraged, and one bright moonlight night she eloped with a former suitor named Gaughan. The eloping couple came to America and settled in Schuylkill county. Bove, the deserted husband, left England ten years after his wife came to America. After a time he emigrated to Australia, and then came to the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, where big wages were then being paid for all kinds of labor. Bove secured work in the coal mines and prospered. One day while attending a funeral in a neighboring village he was started by seeing a man who he believed to be his wife's former husband. At the same time he did not believe it was the same man, but after some inquiry he found that she was his long lost wife. Mr. Bove was then living comfortably with her second husband, Gaughan, and she declined to leave him to rejoin her first husband. Bove then returned to his home with a heavy heart and did not see his wife again until about a year after, when he followed her to this county. Gaughan, the husband No. 2, thought he would do better in this section, so he moved his family to Ashley, this county. He continued to labor in the mines and by industry and thrift acquired a comfortable living. One day Bove, husband No. 1, came along and applied for board at the Gaughan mansion. Mrs. Gaughan accommodated him and now had two husbands under the same roof. Everything went along smoothly in the Bove-Gaughan household until about two years ago, when Gaughan began to drink heavily. He told his friend that he had trouble on his mind and couldn't stand it any longer. He and his wife frequently quarrelled. Last Christmas Gaughan was found dead in bed with a bullet through his head. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of suicide. At the time of his death Gaughan left all his property to his only daughter. The two other children objected and served notice that they would contest the will. It is now alleged that the daughter was Gaughan's only child, and that the two other children were Bove's children. Bove and the double wife are still living together.

Big Fire.

A MILLION DOLLAR BLAZE IN NEW YORK CITY.

A disastrous fire broke out Thursday evening of last week in the building known as the Hotel Hamilton, at Lexington avenue, New York, and swept almost the entire block bounded by Lexington and Florida avenues and Forty-second and Forty-third streets, causing a loss of $1,000,000. The building, which was seven stories, was occupied by Potter & Stevens, furniture manufacturers, and Powell, Weinman & Smith, cigar manufacturers. In a short time the building was completely gutted and the walls fell in. The flames communicated to dwellings on Forty-first street, and they were quickly consumed, the terrified inmates fleeing with what they could gather in their arms. The wooden girders of the elevated railroad on Forty-first street were crushed by falling walls. The Vanderbilt hotel was saved from destruction by the heroic efforts of the firemen.

To Suppress Mrs. Cleveland's Pictures.

Congressman Thomas of Illinois introduced in the House a bill prescribing penalties for the unauthorized publication or issue of the portrait or alleged likeness of any female the wife, daughter, or sister of a public officer or citizen, or for any advertising item or other purpose. Mr. Thomas says he is moved to present the measure because of the fact that the portraits of the wife of the President and other ladies of prominence are being used by unscrupulous dealers in many places, and that their advertisement in a way that must prove annoying to the subject. The bill prescribes a penalty of from $500 to $5000 and imprisonment.

Proposing a Frances Cleveland Club.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 5.—It is said that efforts are being made by the young Democratic ladies of this place for the purpose of forming a Frances Cleveland club for the purpose of taking an active part in the coming Presidential election. The club will be composed of some of the leading young ladies of this place and will be organized lastly, each wearing a white silk button with a picture of Mrs. Cleveland worked on it. They are furnished with torches made especially for the occasion, and will turn out at every political procession and will be drilled in the manual of arms and marching manœuvres by skilled drill masters. Similar organizations are to be started throughout the county and may spread over the State.

ENTERING JERUSALEM.

LESSON XI, INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL SERIES, MARCH, 11.

Text of the Lesson, Mark xii, 1-10—Golden Text, Pa. cviii, 36—Memorize Verses 12-13—Comment by Rev. William Newton, D. D.

[From Lesson Helper Quarterly, by permission of H. S. Hoffman, Philadelphia, publisher.] Notes.—Bethpage or houses of figs, near to Bethany. Over against, opposite. Straightway, at once; without seeking. Loose them, or untie them. Aught, anything. That might, in order that, etc. Daughter of Zion, Jerusalem. The fact, the young man, Clothop, or outer garment. Strowed, spread or scattered. Hosanna, Heb., save now; formerly a word of prayer, but now of praise. Son of David, one of the titles of Jesus as Messiah. Moved, aroused or excited. The multitude, i. e., the people that came with him, or formed the great procession. House of prayer, i. e., in which prayer shall be offered. Wonderful things, i. e., the great works, miracles, etc., wrought by Jesus. Calling out, i. e., shouting, singing or calling out. Some disciples, very angry.

V. 1-3. The incidents of this lesson stand alone in its impressiveness; or rather in the character of its impressiveness. It is a singularly beautiful and touching scene, with man's perfect freedom of action—by which those purposes were to be carried out. Jesus, as the true Messiah, had come to the people to whom he was promised. All the great works which he wrought in the country for the redemption of the world, had been wrought by him. The soldiers were constrained to say, "Never man spake as this man!" And now as he drew near to Jerusalem and knew that he was nearing the cross at every step, he also knew that his triumphant entry into the city must then be made, even as it was pointed time had come. The apostles were throwing in great multitudes about him. Not knowing why they did it, the owners of the figs had tied their asses to the trees there stood, awaiting the messengers of the master, coming to claim her for his service. And so the people, who had been waiting for the Messiah by their prayers, had been wrought by him. The soldiers were constrained to say, "Never man spake as this man!" And now as he drew near to Jerusalem and knew that he was nearing the cross at every step, he also knew that his triumphant entry into the city must then be made, even as it was pointed time had come. The apostles were throwing in great multitudes about him. Not knowing why they did it, the owners of the figs had tied their asses to the trees there stood, awaiting the messengers of the master, coming to claim her for his service. And so the people, who had been waiting for the Messiah by their prayers, had been wrought by him.

CHEERY JOKE OF WAGGISH TRAVELING MEN. DAN LAMONT PRESENTS.

Columbia (S. C.) Special to Richmond Dispatch.

An cruel joke was perpetrated to-day upon the good people who live along the upper end of the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta Railroad. A traveling gang of waggish drummers, who had been 'doing' that section, circulated the report that President Cleveland, after leaving Charleston, would pass over the road on his way home. The rumor spread like wildfire, and was given credence generally, especially by the country people.
