L. E. Cadow vs. D. L. & W. R. R. Co. versed. On the morning of January 28th, ed to get the horse out with picks and 1884 as Cadow was going to his work at probably a rail. Lockard's car shops he fell upon the rails of the defendant at the intersection of the railroad with East street, and broke his leg. He brought suit to recover $5,000 damages, alleging that the railroad company was negligent in not keeping the crossing in repair. The case was first tried before arbitrators, and resulted in an award of $4,350. for the plaintiff. From this the defendant appealed, and the case was tried before Judge Elwell in October 1886, and at the close of the plaintiff's testimony a compulsory non-suit was entered. Subsequent ly the non-suit was stricken off and the case was tried the second time before Judge Dreher in May 1887, who sent the case to the jury, a verdict of $4,500 being the result. The defendant took out a wri of error and the case was argued in the Supreme Court last April, Ikeler & Herring and W. Chrisman being counsel for Cadow, and Col. Freeze and Geo. E. Eiwell for the railroad company. The case has excited much interest as the principles involved are important. Cadow could have reached his destination without crossing the tracks in the middle of the street, and the Supreme Court says in deciding in favor of the defendant, that a party cannot recover damage for an injury which by the exercise of easonable care he might have avoided.

This is the end of the case.

The time is fixsey from its line up into the Scranton region ed for Tuesday and Wednesday, June 26th and 27th, and the reunion will be in the form of a basket picnic. The time agreed upon is the anniversary of the first two battles in which the whole division was en gaged as a division. The first day is especially memorable to us from the fact that there for the first time meeting the enemy, we met them unassisted by any other troops and successfully repulsed more than three times our number of the best fighting men of the South. It was a grand beginning to a career of field service of which neither we nor our State has ever had occasion to feel ashamed. Twenty-six years have passed away since then, and twentyfour years have gone by since the remnan of our beloved corps ceased to exist as an army organization. To the list of our noble comrades who gave their life in the service have been added many who since then have been mustered out of the army of life. And now we are all in the afternoon of our earthly march. In view of this fact and is remembrance of our hearty and compac brotherhood of service we should strive cherish that fraternity of feeling by meetment of annual reunions, and bring ou wives and children face to face with those, who, shoulder to shoulder, shared our marches, our battles and our bivouace Our organization, although central in its patients.
