ALICE NARRIED. As long ago as January 1887 it was said that William Krickbaum had started a raid to the effect that Geo. E. Elwell had asked the Governor for the appointment as successor to Judge Elwell as President Judge, and that upon this condition Elwell would resign. He repeated the same story a few months ago in his paper, and again in the issue of two weeks ago. We have hitherto paid no attention to it, looking upon it merely as a lie that harmed no one.

More of Huber's Villany. A dispatch from Sunbury says that George Welker, a prisoner in the Northumberland county jail, tells a very interesting story in connection with the theft of the package of money from the Adams Express company by Huber's villainous Suburban agent. Welker comes from one of the best families in that neighborhood, and is serving a sentence for an alleged attempted assault on Huber's youngest daughter. He says that about the time the money was stolen he was standing in front of the express office, heard a sound as though some one was opening a safe, and on turning round saw Huber with a package in his hand.

Huber, according to Welker's story, thought the latter suspected him, and never spoke to him again. Soon afterward Welker was arrested, after having been on a spree, and was committed to the county jail. His daughter, Welker denies that he did intend any harm, and says he did not touch the girl. He also says that Huber attempted to have his sentence increased from two to five years so as to get rid of a man who might be a troublesome witness against him. Welker wrote to the President Judge, but to no effect. In January, last, told him what he had seen, and Huber's arrest and the recovery of most of the stolen money was the result.

Selling a Bad Husband. A WOMAN GIVES UP HER HUSBAND TO A RIVAL FOR $200. Mrs. Emma Mumford, at the Army Police Court yesterday, sold her husband, William, for $200, $50 of which was paid in cash and the other $150 promised in monthly payments of $10 each. William is not a looking fellow. He is tall, well-built, has a mustache and side-whiskers, dresses well, and with his gold eye-glasses a stylish appearance. Altogether it would seem that William is quite cheap at the price, but he has his failings, and it was these that led his wife to let him go as cheaply as she did.

Mrs. Mumford lived in Montreal, Canada. He was a bookkeeper in a large house and earned sufficient money to support his wife comfortably, but he wouldn't do it; he preferred to spend his earnings on fine clothes and let her win the bread for the house. Then he became fascinated with the charms of a girl named Brown. Mrs. Mumford is fair, fat, and plump, and suffers by contrast with Mrs. Mumford, who is a pretty little black-eyed woman, with a sweet smile and vivacious manner. However, Miss Brown reciprocated Mumford's admiration and he accepted her proposition to run away to Chicago. They got there a few days ago, and were followed by Mrs. Mumford, who arrived here last Friday. A warrant charging the pair with criminal intimacy was sworn out and served by an officer, who brought the couple before Justice R. H. White.

They were badly frightened as they stood waiting for the case to be called. Mumford went to his wife and she followed her to speak to her. Mrs. Mumford walked over to where her husband stood beside the woman for whom he had forsaken her. Mumford begged her not to prosecute, but she was firm. He leaned over as though to whisper in her ear and his arm stole towards her waist. She jumped back and said, "Oh, no, you won't. I am not going to pay your way back to Montreal and then have to support you."

"But you wouldn't send your own husband to the penitentiary?" "Wouldn't you want and moment?" "I'll tell you what I'll do, Mam," she said, turning to Miss Brown. "I have scarcely a dollar in the world. If you will give me $200, enough to start in a small business in Montreal, you can have him and I won't stand in your way."

Miss Brown thought that she didn't have the $200, but was told that she had better raise it before the case was called. This roused her to action and she left the station. Half an hour later she returned with a despairing look on her face. "I could only raise $50," she said, "but I will get the rest if you will give me time."

The wife was the best she could do and took the money. She then made Miss Brown sit down and write out three notes for $50 each payable in 30, 60 and 90 days. These she put in her pocket, and fifteen minutes later the case was dismissed for want of prosecution.—Chicago Times.

Wilkesbarre & Western R. R. For some time past there has been much talk concerning the location of the W. & W. R. R. At one time it was thought that the junction would be at Shick's Knobs and this idea was supported by the fact that work had been done for a great distance to the amount of some $60,000. The route was not satisfactory to the engineer who succeeded to the company who he represents, for the reason that the grade was not practicable and the connection with other lines of railroad was too limited. The same objection applied to the H. & C. route and the engineer has been earnestly viewing other parts of the country in hope of securing a route that was feasible and that would intersect with other lines of road and if possible tap the Wyoming Valley coal fields, as this line of road will be the shortest line from New York to the far West, passing through the Wyoming valley and winding its way west through the agricultural country to the bituminous coal fields of the West, shortening the line of shipment some 75 or 80 miles from New York to the West.

The investigation made last week by the chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Nanticoke, thence up Harvey's Creek to Pike's Creek, up Pike's Creek to Herrig's, thence west by way of McKendree's, Pleasant Hill, South Pond to head of Green Swamp Run, thence by way of Crockett's and Wilkinson's Hollow to Huntington Creek, thence up Mackinac Hollow by way of Camber's Haven Creek and so through by Fishing Creek to Millville or else down Huntington Creek by the way of Jonestown to intersect at Millville, is found to be the most feasible route of all, in fact it is found to contain all the features asked for both in the direction of line, ease of grade (the grade not exceeding one per cent) and the advantage of interesting outlet passing within a few rods of five beautiful lakes, within twenty miles of Wilkesbarre, supplying millions of acres of timber lands along the Allegheny range of mountains, passing nearly the whole distance through the heart of a fertile agricultural country that much needs the advantages of a railroad, and opening up a direct line of shipment from East to West and from West to East, are the basis of financial calculation and confidential hope.—Shick's Knobs Echo.

Indian Jugglers. THE ASTONISHING GIMMICK TRICK PERFORMED BY A JOSSAKEED.

From Science. Paul Beaulieu, an Ojibway of mixed blood, present interpreter at White Earth Agency, gives his experience with a Jossakeed at Leech Lake about the year 1858.

He reached the agency, and as he had no faith in the jugglers he offered to wager $100 against goods of equal value that the juggler could not perform satisfactorily one of the tricks of his repertoire to be selected by him (Beaulieu) in the presence of himself and a committee consisting of his own objects of men's hearts.

The juggler was made. Four strong poles were planted deep in the ground, rising to an elevation of at least ten or twelve feet, one of them having the branches remaining, and rising a little beyond its fellows, this being the indication of a Jossakeed, as distinguished from a Madee lodge. The interior diameter was less than ten feet. The frame which was inclined to the centre, was then filled in with interwoven twigs and covered with blankets and birch bark from the ground to the top, leaving an orifice of about a foot in diameter open for the ingress and egress of spirits and for the objects of men's hearts.

At one side of the bottom wrapping a slip was left for the entrance of the Jossakeed or Shaman. A committee of twelve was selected to see that no communication was possible between the Jossakeed and confederates. These twelve men were reliable and disinterested, and as Beaulieu had been the clergyman of the reservation. The spectators were several hundred in number, but stood off, not being allowed to approach.

The Jossakeed then removed his clothing until nothing remained upon his person but the breech-cloth. Beaulieu then took a rope and one selection for the purpose of not open to criticism. Capt. Nichols is a merry old salt who makes long travel voyages and has stowed away in his cabin a case of type and a printing press. In the long hours of dull monotony he likes away the time by "sticking" type. Like the milliford crew of the Nancy Bell, Capt. Nichols sits all day long at his well-contrived printing press and is the proprietor, editor, publisher, reporter, compositor, pressman and deliverer of the Oseon Chronicle. It is in this unique manner that everything that happens during the voyage is faithfully chronicled, from the slightest change in the ships barometer to the important event in the life of "Deniss," the ship's pig, when the latter yielded up his life and gave editor-captain his first taste of fresh meat in two months. All this is put in type as the voyage progresses, and the last line in the form is filled when the port of destination is sighted by the lookout. Then Capt. Nichols takes his rollers, gets out his press, folds and addresses his papers, and in due time his friends can read of all that has happened to the Frank Pendleton and her jovial master since they last saw him.

A Family Blessing. Simons Family Regulator, the favorite home remedy, is entirely vegetable, and is purest and best family medicine that is compounded. No error to be feared in administering; no injury from exposure after taking no less a time. It is the best preventive medicine and safe to take no matter what the sickness may prove to be, and in any ordinary disease will effect a speedy cure.

To be Arrested. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, has given orders for the arrest and reporting of all employees who become intoxicated. This excellent tendency of the times will be made known to all employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, who are generally noted for their sobriety.

The Reserve Regiment. The first day of the Pennsylvania Reserve, June 20 and 27 at Oak Grove, Bloomsburg, Pa., did not bring out a very large attendance, but the second day brought a good turnout of Reserve, and other old soldiers as well as citizens. All appeared to enjoy themselves and the banquet and coffee under the good management of Comrade Fornwald was praised on all sides.

There was no set program of speech making or brass band music, but everything went pleasantly and smoothly in greetings and companionship of those who are so closely bound in the comradeship of the past.

However, Rev. Wm. Keith of Shick's Knobs, a comrade of the 7th Md. Vol. being present, was invited by the President to give a talk in the pavilion. And a stirring talk it was. The right of a soldier to pension and the great value of his services to the country were eloquently portrayed. It is impossible to do justice to the speaker by any attempt at a synopsis. It is enough to say that frequent outbursts of applause and the interest of those who did not even hear speeches fully show the power of the earnest and thoroughly patriotic gentleman.

The business meeting of the Association was called to order at 3 p. m., on Wednesday and in the absence of Dr. M. B. Hughes, Pres. and G. L. Baldwin, Sec'y, who had been called home, the meeting organized for the election of officers. Cyrus Gordon, Sec'y. Pres. pro tem. and H. F. Sharpless as Sec. pro tem.

The association passed a resolution that when this meeting adjourns it be to meet at Bloomsburg on next Grand Army Day, Sept. 4, 1888. It was further resolved that the regular meetings of the association should hereafter be at the same time and place as Grand Army Day, for this section of the state.

The following officers were elected to serve until Grand Army Day 1889: President J. Boyd Robinson; Vice Presidents, Hudson Allen, A. H. Brown and Nelson Bruner; Secretary, B. F. Sharpless; Treasurer, C. S. Furness.

Letters were read from various comrades including Gen. S. W. Crawford, Gov. Beaver, Senator Quay, Geo. Sickle, N. S. Falconer, B. F. Hotkins and others.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted: Resolved, That we recognize the fact that the Penna. Res. Vol. Comrades, without the service a complete, consolidated, organization, as much so as any independent organization, and continued as such through its service. The fact that any regiment or portion of the Command should in the exigencies of the war be on detached duty on one time or another does not change the status and the organization as a whole is entitled to be considered in its entirety in all its operations. Therefore it is met and proper that the memorial at Gettysburg should be a united memorial for the entire command.

The committee on the memorial address of the Pennsylvania Res. Vol. Comrades, which aggregate $815, they would all have registered at State College on Oct. 8 o'clock p. m. an annual address before the alumni by Prof. A. S. Bolles of Philadelphia.

Thursday, 9:30 o'clock a. m., graduation exercises of the class of '88. They consisted of music, these orations, essays, conferring of degrees, awarding prizes and was closed by the commencement address by Hon. William A. Wallace of Clearfield. This was a most interesting, instructive and entertaining exercise. The productions of the class showed plainly the careful and thorough training of the school and told more than could be expressed in a volume of advertising. If parents having sons and daughters to educate would but attend the Commencement at State College they would find it would prove a profitable visit. The College is prospering beyond the expectations of the most sanguine and the President's Reception Thursday evening showed how well the many advantages of the place were appreciated by the students and proved the high moral and social tone of the place. Catalogues, reports and information can be had any time by calling on or addressing the Trustee from our county, H. V. White, Bloomsburg.
