MANY FRRE SCHOLARSHIPS THERE OPEN TO BEHOUT ROYS.

Despite the fact that a great number of boys are seeking to get the best education for the least outlay in money the plendid opportunities offered by the West Point Military Academy frequently go begging. The conditions of entry are rigorous only in name. Every one who goes there does so upon merit and the boy who dare not stand the test of his own acquirements does not deserve a liberal education at Uncle Sam's cost. The number of priss who can attend the Academy are shown to any in the districts, one from each of the United States, or a total of three hundred and forty-six.

Yet the classes in the Academy are never full. This sixes in a few cases from failure on the part of candidates to pass the entrance examinations when the appointment of aconducte by has to go over until the following peaks and has gone through the last fitted. By far the larger number of vacancies arise from neglect on the part of those having the appointment of meabut fifty free scholarships, several of the meabout fifty free scholarships, several of them belonging to Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

—which fact can be ascertained by applying by letter direct to the member of Congress from that district—it is easy to remove into a district where there is a vacancy, or where there will be one by the time the legal residence has been acquired. The facts about present and prospective vacancies can be ascertained by writing to the Secretary of War at Washington, and a legal residence can be a quired in another district in the same State in two nonths, or in another district in sumonths, or in another district in suother State in one year. The time spent in acquiring this legal residence need not be lost, for it can be well spent in study, in order that the examinations may be safely passed.

Those who do not pass are given back their citizen's clothes and invited to depart by the earliest boat. Those who do pass are re-arranged in com-fertable rooms in barracks and the student life begins. They are not yet cadets, however, and are not yet allowed to mingle with the other classmen. Class rank plays a greater part at West Point than at any other institution. Hence when the upper classes are reached the honor is all the greater.

While the incoming class is in its gray flaunch its members are denominated "beasts." They are an awkward equad, and in striking contrast to the straight and handsome figures of the cadets. They have no studies, for those do not begin until September

The boy who wishes to enter West Point must be between the ages of 17 and 22, have a sound body and a good common school education. The appointment is made by the member of Congress in each district, but no political influence is necessary, because the candidate is always selected by competitive examination. There can be but one cadet in the Academy from each district at a time, new men being appointed as soon as the previous one graduates or is thrown out. The latter orontingent occurs in the case, of about one third of those maned, chiefly on account of carelessness and laziness on the part of those who enter. There are, however, more than half a hundred districts in the United States from which no candidate is named and to whose credit there is now no cadet in the Academy.

Lads who wish to enter West Point must be legal residents of the district from which they are appointed, but this difficulty is easily surmounted, for if there is no vacancy in the district in which the sambitious young man resides—which fact can be ascertained by applying by letter direct to the member of Congress from that district—it is placed over the incoming candidates that the bazing abou which one form erly heard so much generally came. But the practice of hazing has been broken up at West Point. No can lidate is now ever submitted to any treatment that goes against his selftreatment that goes against his self-respect. No one ever touches him, nor is be ever and ded upon to suffer any personal inlegality. If one goes there, a sensible fellow, willing to take the little raillery that all "beasts" and "plebes" have to take, and does so good naturedly, he will immediately win respect, and as soon as he has served his year of "plebedom" will be well treated and make friendships that will be sure to last his lifetime.

Upon entering the Academy each candidate is compelled to take an oath of allegiance, and he binds himself to serve the United States in any capacity he may be needed for a term of eight years. Four of these years he spends honor to the Academy. The upper classmen said they'd like to see the youth who was to be an honor to the Academy. They saw him and now this particular "beast" is compelled to recite the entire article from memory each morning before breakfast.

Pass the tips of your fingers to and fro over the particular eyeball of the mule, and then with well regu-tated pressure rub repeatedly the afficited eye. The mule has unhappily lost his sight during the many years he has been engaged in this benevolent work, the eyeballs, we are told, having been gradually worn away, as the result of constant friction until now you have only the tion, until now you bave only the empty orbits to operate upon. The animal is patched in all directions with fresh pieces of brass put on to cover holes produced by the constant friction holes produced by the constant friction of eager patients, and a new, perfectly whole mule stands ready at hand awaiting the day when his old collea-gue, having fallen to pieces, shall give him an opportunity of likewise bene-fiting posterity.

Married To His Daughter. THE DISCOVERY MADE BY THE MAN'S

About twenty years ago Issac Waldorf, a dashing bandsome young man of 30 or thereabouts, entered the German army as a private. He married a woman for ambition and the desired promotion in the army not coming, he deserted his wife and emigrated to New York.

On being deserted the heartbroken wife moved to Vienna, and changed her name to Sterling. Several months later she gave birth to a baby-girl, whom she christened Mina. Waldorf knew nothing about this child, which had been taught to regard its father as dead. Eighteen months ago Mina Ster-ling arrived in New York. Chance threw Waldorf and herself together, they fell in love with each other and were finaly married. The mother in Germany was pleased at her daughter's succes in settling herself and readily consented to recept her invitation to visit her daughter. The mother arrived in in this city nearly thirty hours earlier than she was expected, and wishing to surprise her daughter and her son-in Inherited Diseases.

POLITICAL True Scienter than the second seco

From the China Medical Journal.

A friend, recently returned from Pekin, tells us that he saw a method of cure which may be new to some of our readers. In a temple outside one of the city gates is to be found a brass mule of life size, supposed to have wonderful healing properties. Patients suffering from every imaginable disease seek this temple to obtain a cure. The method pursued is as follows: Supposing you suffer from sciatica, you go with all speed to this famous temple, and having discovered the particular part of the brass mule corresponding to the painful region of your own body, you first rub the animal a certain number of times and then with the same hand shampoo your own disabled member, and then — well, then the pain goes. The special feature of this method of cure is its, delightful simplicity. Is your

On his way home he passed the open parlor door, and, although not seeing the occupants of the parlor, they could distinctly see him. The young wife was about to spring forward with a glad cry of joy and in-form her husband of the new arrival, when her mother clutched her arm

For a moment Mina's mother stood glaring at her, then with a low moan

"Unhappy child, you have married our father. He is my husband!" The truth caused the young woman to swoon, and when the husband heard the news his mind nearly gave way. The younger Mrs. Waldorf is lying dangerously ill from the shock of the horrible discovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Hulitt, of Laudisfield, Mass., have been married seventy one years. Both were born in 1791. Their marriage was solemn-

A newspaper correspondent says that the politest and most accommo-dating people in the world live in Mobile, and proves it thus: "I saw a street car stop in order to allow a lame negro, who was a passenger, to order and receive a flask of whisky at a corner grocery. The storekeeper came out to the car for the purpose and the goods were afterward wrapped up and delivered with all the deliberation due to so important a commercial transaction. Then the car, with its ten assengers passed on."

Imherited Diseases.

No face of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease.

Modern scence, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new lighten the eminous words of the Scriptures, "The sits of the fathers, shall be visited upon the children nuto the third and fourth generation." Pitry per cent of cases of consumption, cancer and scrofuls, run in families through icheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, bends to wear itself out, the stock becoming aximet. A distinguished scientist truly asys: "No organ or lexture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary diseases." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less ishe to be inherited. The impertant and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—are abvious te reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or suring these diseases is a subjected intense interest to all. Pertunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's satisfacts for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting freedles on "Blood and Ekin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing
