There being no further business, upon motion, the con-ference adjourned.

GEO. W. Utt,

It is not to be wondered at that the Republican Senators want to adjourn. Their misfortnnes do not come singly. but in troops. They thought to tak the wind out of the Mills bill by more popular measure of their own but after wasting weeks in the endea vor to frame a revenue bill that would not hurt their friends somewhere the find themselves getting deeper and deeper into trouble. They hoped to make some capital out of the fisheries treaty, but in rejecting it the presiden treaty, but in rejecting it the president hadthe opportunity to convince the country that he was much more desirous of maintaining the rights of American citizens than they were. And to cap all, Mr. Blaine in his frantic speech about trusts gave away the whole Republican game and made it apparent that the Republican policy is to be one of protection to trusts, instead of the consumers, upon whom the trusts leve consumers, upon whom the trusts levy their exactions. The Senstorial desire to run needs no further explanation .- Times.

WASHINGTON LETTER. rom our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27, 1888.

"It's the greatest state paper that has emanated from the White House for many years. We are proud of our ent. He is an American from head to heels, every inch of him.
That message makes Mr. Cleveland's election a certainty." Such were the words of a careful, conservative business man, who has been inclined to be opposed to Mr. Cleveland. on reading the manly message sent to Congress in regard to our relations with Canada. These sentiments are shared by nearly everybody here, many republicans joining the democrats in praising the President for the straightforward, sledgehammer manner in which he placed the subject before Congress The message has given Mr. Cleveland a personal popularity which he never possessed before, and has brought him before the people in an entirely new light. It has created a degree of enthusiasm among the Democrats in Congress that is bound to tell in the conduct of the company. That Congress that is bound to tell in the conduct of the campaign. That Congress will give him the power he asks order to retaliate on Canada cannot for a moment be doubted; a bill to that effect has already been intro-duced in the House, and the republi-can Senators, however much they might like it, will not dare to refusto pass a similiar measure. Armed with the proper authority, Mr. Cleveland proposes that American interests shall be protected at all hazards, and he has seven-tenths of the people of this country, irrespective of politics, with him. Letters and telegrams of congratulation have been pouring into the White House from all quarters, proving that Mr. Cleveland has once more struck the popular chord. No better evidence of the shrewdness of Mr. Cleveland in sending this mes-sage can be found, than the faces of the republican Senators. One of them was heard to remark to another, Well, it's good by to the Irish vote now; after that message they will be sure to stick to the Democrats.' Senator Kenna is looking after virginia Democrats laugh at the idea of the republicans claiming that state, they say that it is as surely democratic as Kentucky.

The House has passed a resolution revoking the leaves of all except sick absentees. This action was taken for several reasons. First, the House has been for some days without a quorum, which fact has enabled the republicans to block legislation. Second, and principally, because it is desired to pass the bill already introduced, to give Mr. Cleveland the necessary authority to bring the Canadians to their senses. While it is not known that republicans will afternot to process. that republicans will attempt to oppose the bill, it was thought best to take no chances, therefore the ausentees have

The most widely respected and honest journal of that party, the Philadelphia Ledger, declares the message to be "wise, state manlike and just," and even so violent a.d radical a sheet as the Philadelphia Inquirer, urges consideration of the question on its merits alone, and advises that Congress should do as the president asked. Of course there is an effort to impeach the motives that prompted the message and to treat it as a mere campaign trick, but the most labored and unfair attacks fail to shake the logic of it, and no journal of influence has ventured to suggest that the Senate should refuse to support a policy of re-

The Republican Senators gave the floor to their three best men that a crushing answer might be made to the scathing arraignment of them implied by the president's calm statement of facts. Edmunds considered it "an odd business" and asserted that he would "be glad intellectually" if the president would tell him why he did not stop the transhipment of fish at once. It will appear to most men an odd business that the senator does not acquire intellectual gladness by reading again the statement of the president that measure of retaliation is too petty in its scope to have any other effect in its scope to have any other effect which is recognized as legal and regular bands the injury of our own and Canadian commerce.
