

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure. This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. No economical but ordinary kind, and often sold in cheap packages with the trade name of low cost.

The Columbian

Published every Friday. Subscription price, $1.00 a year. Entered at the Post Office at Bloomsburg, Pa., as second class matter, March 1, 1888.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1888.

Table with columns: STATIONS, AM., PM., and various station names like Bloomsburg, Lewisburg, etc.

Trains on the P. & N. R. leave as follows: SOUTH, 7:15 a. m., 1:00 p. m., 6:30 p. m.

Trains on the D. L. & W. R. leave as follows: SOUTH, 7:15 a. m., 1:00 p. m., 6:30 p. m.

Trains on the N. & W. R. leave as follows: SOUTH, 7:15 a. m., 1:00 p. m., 6:30 p. m.

Trains on the N. & W. R. leave as follows: NORTH, 10:15 a. m., 4:15 p. m., 8:15 p. m.

Will be paid for information leading to conviction of any person or persons fishing with gill nets, seines, explosives, poisonous baits or by any other unlawful means in any of the waters of Columbia county.

SALES. HOUSES ON VAN DYKE FOR SALE—Good as new, 40 feet in diameter, for $75 each.

FOR SALE—A desirable and commodious residence on Main street, supplied with water, gas and steam. Apply to J. N. MOYER.

FOR SALE—A special "Pony Star" bicycle, fast, pattern, in first-class order, has not been run over 50 miles.

WANTED—100 bushels of pears, also 50 bushels of grapes for which the highest cash price will be paid, G. M. Baker agent, Epp, Pa.

LOST—A pocket book containing $307.00 in bills, and a check on the First National Bank of Bloomsburg was lost on Main street, Bloomsburg on Thursday Sept. 6th.

Building Lots for Sale. The proprietors of Jamison City of Susquehanna township, Columbia county, Pennsylvania, are now ready to negotiate for the sale of lots.

FOR SALE—A yoke of cattle 6 years old, also a good mare, 4 years. Address Z. L. KILG, Fairmount Springs, Pa.

STRENGTHENED FUR MANSION sheep have strayed away from my residence. Any one knowing their whereabouts, will be suitably rewarded by returning to E. A. RAWLINS, Bloomsburg.

Write a careful inspection of their canyon portraits feeling it will repay both those who look for pleasure and those contemplating any work.

An Old Farmer Bounced. Saturday of last week Isaac Henderson, a farmer, 75 years of age, while attending the Berwick Fair, was robbed of $600 by bunco men. They took him to a room and introduced him to a sort of lottery. He was allowed to win at first, but $600 was demanded as security for the prize.

The latest colors in stiff and slouch hats are golden brown, tobacco and cedar. You can get them at Lowenberg's.

Buy Lester's School Shoes Every pair warranted.

Personal. The Misses Hasset are spending a few weeks in Philadelphia.

Mr. Clyde Mercer has been very ill during the past week with peritonitis, but is at present much improved.

Prof. D. J. Walter arrived home from his European trip Wednesday evening. The students went to the station to meet him in a body, and joined in hearty applause as he alighted from the train.

Alfred McHenry, one of Benton's enterprising merchants went to Philadelphia on Monday to buy new goods. He is stock embracing a full line of general merchandise, and will offer some great bargains when his new stock arrives.

L. C. Shaffer, the general agent of P. Whitlock of Richmond, Va., manufacturer of "Old Virginia" cheroots, was in town on Monday, and made arrangements with Alexander Bros. & Co. to handle his excellent goods.

A reunion of the 123d Regiment Penna. Vols. was held at Danville on Monday.

Orders taken for school books and school supplies at Mercer's Drug and Book Store.

Report of Commissioners Convention will appear next week.

The exterior of L. W. Hartman & Son's store building has been heightened and improved by a fresh coat of paint.

A dispatch received on Tuesday morning announced the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bloom.

Economy and strength are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar" is true.

The latest style of cheviot pants made to order for $5 at D. Lowenberg's.

Council proceedings and several other important matters are crowded out this week by the premium list of the Benton fair.

A meeting of the stock holders of the School Furnishing Company will be held next week Thursday and it will be then decided what to do.

The dedication of the new German Reformed church at Millville will take place on Sunday, September 30th. Everybody is invited to be present and assist in the exercises.

Mrs. G. B. Markie, wife of the great coal merchant who died only a few weeks ago, died at her home in Hazleton last Monday.

She was a sister of L. Boyd Robinson and aunt of H. M. Rapert, both of this place.

The banquet which was to have been given next Tuesday to Judge Elwell by the bar of the district has been postponed until Friday October 1st.

The necessary arrangements could not be made to have it during court week.

J. G. Wells has opened a Jeweler's store in the Columbus building. He occupies a fine room on the first floor, and has just opened up a fine assortment of goods in his line. Watches, clocks and jewelry promptly repaired.

Mr. Conner, of the firm of White, Conner & Sloan, of Orangeville, started for the West Tuesday morning, in company with his wife. They expect to visit in Michigan, Illinois and perhaps as far West as Nebraska. They will be absent about four weeks.

Governor Beaver has been subpoenaed as a witness in the Johnson murder trial at Lock Haven next week. He will be asked to produce the confession of Shaffer which was filed in the State Department.

The ladies of the Guild of the Reformed Church and Sunday School will serve oysters and other refreshments in the "Study" of the Church on Friday evening, 21st inst. Call around. You will receive a cordial welcome.

The members of the Rescue Hose and Ladder Company will give a masquerade ball at Music Hall, Friday evening, September 28th, which everybody is invited to attend. The price of admission is 35 cents for gentlemen, ladies free. Grand march at 8:30.

John A. Wilson, chief engineer of the Bloomsburg & Sullivan railroad in company with some friends, spent the week reconnoitering the mountain lands of B. & S. railroad applicants, returning home Monday morning. It is supposed the trip will result in the carrying of the B. & S. railroad across the mountain.

The business office of the COLUMBIAN has not been moved, but remains where it has been for the past seven years, first floor front next to the post office. The law office of Geo. E. Elwell has been removed to the second floor, and J. G. Wells occupies as a jeweler's store that portion of the room thus vacated.

To disgust rats and mice away from a building make a strong solution of oxalic acid and soak newspapers in it until they are in a pulp and press them into the holes through which the rats or mice pass, and they will get such sore mouths and feet that they will give the holes a wide berth.

The republican convention last Monday was not a representative one. At the meeting that is when several of the delegates insisted upon. The motion to instruct judicial conferences was opposed on the ground that in many instances the delegates were selected by three or four persons, there being no regular delegate election.

Thirty-three members of the Order of American Mechanics went from this town last week Thursday to participate in a party at Easton on Friday. There were 3500 men in line, and it was a big day for Easton. Among those who went from here were Guy Jacoby Esq., William Barrett, W. B. Taylor and J. W. Moyer.

A Shamokin dispatch of the 17th inst. says: The corner-stone of the Hungarian Catholic Church was laid here yesterday evening by Rev. Wollanski, of Shenandoah. Some three thousand people stood in the driveway to witness the ceremony. Father Wollanski is the only priest of this faith in this country, and this is the second church.

The 123d Regiment of Penna. Volunteers held a reunion at Danville on Monday. Twenty members of Co. E. went from here. The Company was recruited mostly in Bloomsburg, Orangeville, Millville, and Epp. M. Whitmore was the Captain. Andrew Menck was Lieutenant and Amos Mellick 2nd Lieutenant. Danville was handsomely decorated, and but for the rain it would have been a great day. A parade took place at 2 o'clock. The members of Co. E. from Bloomsburg are James Cadman, C. P. Sloan, G. W. Stierner, G. and Epp. M. Whitmore was the Captain.

John A. Wilson, chief engineer of the Bloomsburg & Sullivan railroad in company with some friends, spent the week reconnoitering the mountain lands of B. & S. railroad applicants, returning home Monday morning. It is supposed the trip will result in the carrying of the B. & S. railroad across the mountain.

The business office of the COLUMBIAN has not been moved, but remains where it has been for the past seven years, first floor front next to the post office. The law office of Geo. E. Elwell has been removed to the second floor, and J. G. Wells occupies as a jeweler's store that portion of the room thus vacated.

To disgust rats and mice away from a building make a strong solution of oxalic acid and soak newspapers in it until they are in a pulp and press them into the holes through which the rats or mice pass, and they will get such sore mouths and feet that they will give the holes a wide berth.

The republican convention last Monday was not a representative one. At the meeting that is when several of the delegates insisted upon. The motion to instruct judicial conferences was opposed on the ground that in many instances the delegates were selected by three or four persons, there being no regular delegate election.

Thirty-three members of the Order of American Mechanics went from this town last week Thursday to participate in a party at Easton on Friday. There were 3500 men in line, and it was a big day for Easton. Among those who went from here were Guy Jacoby Esq., William Barrett, W. B. Taylor and J. W. Moyer.

A Shamokin dispatch of the 17th inst. says: The corner-stone of the Hungarian Catholic Church was laid here yesterday evening by Rev. Wollanski, of Shenandoah. Some three thousand people stood in the driveway to witness the ceremony. Father Wollanski is the only priest of this faith in this country, and this is the second church.

The 123d Regiment of Penna. Volunteers held a reunion at Danville on Monday. Twenty members of Co. E. went from here. The Company was recruited mostly in Bloomsburg, Orangeville, Millville, and Epp. M. Whitmore was the Captain.

John A. Wilson, chief engineer of the Bloomsburg & Sullivan railroad in company with some friends, spent the week reconnoitering the mountain lands of B. & S. railroad applicants, returning home Monday morning. It is supposed the trip will result in the carrying of the B. & S. railroad across the mountain.

The business office of the COLUMBIAN has not been moved, but remains where it has been for the past seven years, first floor front next to the post office. The law office of Geo. E. Elwell has been removed to the second floor, and J. G. Wells occupies as a jeweler's store that portion of the room thus vacated.

To disgust rats and mice away from a building make a strong solution of oxalic acid and soak newspapers in it until they are in a pulp and press them into the holes through which the rats or mice pass, and they will get such sore mouths and feet that they will give the holes a wide berth.

The republican convention last Monday was not a representative one. At the meeting that is when several of the delegates insisted upon. The motion to instruct judicial conferences was opposed on the ground that in many instances the delegates were selected by three or four persons, there being no regular delegate election.

Thirty-three members of the Order of American Mechanics went from this town last week Thursday to participate in a party at Easton on Friday. There were 3500 men in line, and it was a big day for Easton. Among those who went from here were Guy Jacoby Esq., William Barrett, W. B. Taylor and J. W. Moyer.

A Shamokin dispatch of the 17th inst. says: The corner-stone of the Hungarian Catholic Church was laid here yesterday evening by Rev. Wollanski, of Shenandoah. Some three thousand people stood in the driveway to witness the ceremony. Father Wollanski is the only priest of this faith in this country, and this is the second church.

The 123d Regiment of Penna. Volunteers held a reunion at Danville on Monday. Twenty members of Co. E. went from here. The Company was recruited mostly in Bloomsburg, Orangeville, Millville, and Epp. M. Whitmore was the Captain.

John A. Wilson, chief engineer of the Bloomsburg & Sullivan railroad in company with some friends, spent the week reconnoitering the mountain lands of B. & S. railroad applicants, returning home Monday morning. It is supposed the trip will result in the carrying of the B. & S. railroad across the mountain.

The business office of the COLUMBIAN has not been moved, but remains where it has been for the past seven years, first floor front next to the post office. The law office of Geo. E. Elwell has been removed to the second floor, and J. G. Wells occupies as a jeweler's store that portion of the room thus vacated.

Richard Metherell and Miss Lily Prantz of Berwick were married in New Jersey last week Wednesday.

Gilmore's Band and Friendship Fire Company went to Shamokin on Wednesday afternoon to participate in the free-masons' parade, on Thursday. The band has beautiful new uniforms, and we predict that no crowd in the line will make a better appearance than the boys from Bloomsburg.

Vice President McMichael, B. K. Jamison and others who furnished the money to build the Bloomsburg & Sullivan Railroad, went over the road with a special train Saturday. At Central they left the train and walked the trestling and over the grade of the extension as far as the new road leading to Red Rock, when they were met with private conveyances and taken to Georgia Lake, where they spent Tuesday, returning Sunday night. The party was exceedingly well pleased with the road in every particular.

The excellence of HARRIS'S MAGAZINE for October is apparent even from a hasty glance through its pages. There are short stories and long ones, sketches, "skits," poetry, and unsurpassed illustrations. The articles most striking, perhaps, are Mr. Theodore Child's "Limoges and its Industries," and Z. L. White's description of "Western Journalism." These contain a great store of new information, and even the old facts are presented that they strike the reader with new force. The portraits of Western editors will be scanned by the public with interest.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department had no knowledge of the existence of any organization in this country or elsewhere having for its object the emigration of colored people from this country to Central and South America, and if so whether they were going there as bona fide emigrants encouraged and protected by those governments or under such contracts to labor as will result to a condition of involuntary servitude, and if so, would Mr. Bayard use his influence as Minister of State as far as may be compatible with international law to prevent such wrongs as might be perpetrated upon a credulous people.

You informed me in yours of Feb. 9 that the State Department