HILL RECEPTION THE HOOSIERS.

His Reception One of the Most Enthusiastic on Record. Governor Hill whirled through Indiana amid a cyclone of enthusiasm. The roads were well lighted for the first day, but that did not deter the Hoosiers from assembling at every station from Cincinnati to Indianapolis.

At North Vernon the people were out in force and made bold for a speech. The governor good naturedly complied. When he stepped to the platform he was cheerily greeted.

At Ellettsburg the people were out in force and made bold for a speech. The governor good naturedly complied. When he stepped to the platform he was cheerily greeted.

"N. B. THIS IS BARKASSUM."

This is an editorial campaign, indeed, not only as relates to the tariff for the protection of monopolists, but in a variety of ways. The wage earner, to whom a tariff is levied, is not benefited, but in learning a number of things hitherto unsuspected by him as having any bearing on his pocket.

It is learning, for the first time in his life, that his employer's sole object and aim in life is to pay him high wages. Heretofore he has been compelled to organize to make "scales" and to threaten strikes in order to make his employer pay living wages.

That his interests and his employer's ought to be one he has known for some time, but he has not known that they are. To tell the truth, however, he is so suspicious of his employer's good intentions toward him that he is convinced that he can more profitably benefit himself by doing the very reverse of what his employer asks of him.

Now, it has seemed clever to the astute person who is organizing the Republican campaign, to send out to men who employ numerous workmen envelopes covered with printed arguments in favor of the Republican tariff, in which the employers in large numbers have adopted this cheap and ready-made tariff.

For example, there is the firm of Tim Walerton & Co., of Troy, in this State, who have collected the tariff schedules and cuts on a large scale. It is not known precisely how much it pays its sewing machine makers, but it is known that it is made at the rate of 10 cents a dozen in New York we are not inclined to believe that the tariff making is very much more profitable than the sewing machine.

New York City's Vote.

The Republican calculation seems to be something like this: The total vote of New York City will be on Nov. 6 about 200,000. Allowing 100,000 for the vote of the Labor and Prohibition candidates, and the Republicans 100,000, they will remain 140,000 for the Democrats.

At the time of the election in 1887, the Democrats secured a plurality of 68,792 in New York and Kings. Unfortunately for the Republicans, the Democrats have succeeded during the last four years in raising their plurality in New York and Kings from 49,740 in 1883 to 62,371 in 1887.

Even Blaine is Being Educated.

Mr. James G. Blaine has at last discovered that trusts are not by any means the harmless affairs which he declared them to be a few weeks ago, when, from the hospitalities of Carnegie and the splendor of the city of New York, he looked at the head of the party which he had just spoken of as the "greatest combination of heart and brain in the world."

It is interesting to note the stages through which Mr. Blaine's mind has passed in its progress toward truth on this question. First off, it will be remembered, he scoffed at the president and the Democracy for finding fault with trusts and lightly dismissed them from further notice as private affairs.

For a time Mr. Blaine sought to occupy middle ground. He acknowledged implicitly that trusts were evil, and that toleration of them in other countries was not an adequate reason for tolerating them here, since the European addiction to aristocracies and standing armies has never been deemed a reason for setting up a royal family and vast military establishments in the United States.

At last Mr. Blaine is in accord with the Democracy on the main matter, and differs only in regard to certain facts and persons. He no longer asserts that the crime charge against the trusts is a mere "trick" of the plaintiff and not the defendant.

It is now agreed that trusts ought to be suppressed, but that the people have to decide to which party they will give their support. The Democratic side has been largely responsible.
