MRS. COOPER'S NIECE. "Philip," said old John Briggs to his son, "you are 25 years old today."

"So the family record says, father," responded the elegant young gentleman addressed. "I am disposed to place implicit reliance upon it."

"You have done nothing since you left college but kill time. It is only yesterday in advance, sir. Some day or other the old chap with the scarp lock and scythe will kill me."

"I'll try to draw you less, sir. It is not that, Philip. You are quite welcome to a check now and then, for I know that you neither game nor revel, and I don't mind your horses, your club, your natural history craze, nor your luxurious tastes."

"I don't find it too much, sir. In fact, I was thinking what a graceful thing it would be if you were to double it, a mere trifle to a gentleman of your means. I have to use the most profuse economy, I assure you."

"Oh, that's it, eh? Well, there is a mode to increase it very well. You have heard me speak of Philander Spriggs, of New York?"

"Money loaned and skintful! I have heard of him." "Nonsense, Philip. He is quite worthy as well as a very wealthy man, and if he prefers to invest his money in short loans what of that? I lend my money, or some of it, sometimes."

"But not a cent per cent." "Does he slave money, father?" "His kind enough not to indulge in chaff. I have seen her and talked with her. She is young, handsome, well educated and has good taste, a society gentleman's daughter."

"I have heard of her," said the young girl, "but I have never seen her." "I have heard of her," said the young girl, "but I have never seen her." "I have heard of her," said the young girl, "but I have never seen her."

"I have heard of her," said the young girl, "but I have never seen her." "I have heard of her," said the young girl, "but I have never seen her." "I have heard of her," said the young girl, "but I have never seen her."

A Western Story. Brander Matthews tells a good story of the ethical influence of the east on the wild and woolly west. A young Bostonian, named beneath the brow of Harvard Hill, had come to Texas and turned cowboy. He rapidly caught the spirit of the country and as rapidly shook off the outward semblance of a cultured and educated man.

PERSONAL GOSSIP. King Kakaia, of Hawaii, wants to borrow $10,000 to have a good time at the Paris exposition. Ralph Waldo Emerson's private and domestic life has been described by his son, Edward W. Emerson, in "Emerson in Concord."

MONKEY DISCIPLINE. Few people have a chance to watch the actions of monkeys in a wild state, and time on the life of one about them to such a degree that he can never feel sure that their actions are not a reflection of his own. Mr. Gargan writes of them in India.

NOT A DOLGO. Albert Huxley, the executive coachman, is a broad minded philosopher. Like the sun, he shines for all. As the White House coach was standing in front of the portico yesterday morning a gentleman came to him and asked him to drive him to a certain place.

FACTS ABOUT COLLARS. James G. Blaine wears a standing collar. Gen. Grant wore high and low collars alike. The ancients wore collars of silver and brass.

WAGTAILS OF EVE. The daughter of Sam Houston is the post-mistress at Abilene, Tex. Ross Bonner still vigorously wields the brush at nearly 70 years.

STRENGTH IN TALK. "Which you love most, your papa or your mamma?" "Little Charlie—I love papa most." "Charlie's Mother—Why, Charlie, I'm surprised at you. I thought you loved me most."

NEW HORSE. A new horse has been invented by a clever English girl. She calls herself an acrobat and auditor for large households. She finds plenty of employment in looking after the business of a few families of large expenditure whose heads have not taste for the work.

Mr. Quickwit to Mrs. Corcoran, who is a very busy woman and has a great deal to do. "Mamma, you remind me of an open faced watch." "Mrs. Corcoran—How do you do, he has?" "Mr. Quickwit—Your crystal is prominent—Jeweler's Weekly."
