Car and Detective. BEING AN ADVENTURE OF HIS RUSSIAN UPNESS AND A TOLL-TAKER.

The Emperor of Russia, when upon a tour of inspection in the provinces, passed the night in the simple hut of a toll-taker, before retiring he was pleased as head of the church, to see the old man take up his Bible and read a chapter. "Do you read often, my son?" he asked.

"Yes, your Majesty every day." "How much of the Bible have you read, my son?" "During the past year the Old Testament and part of Matthew, your Majesty." Thinking to reward him, the Emperor placed 500 rubles between the leaves of the book...

"Lying my son, is a great sin," replied His Majesty; "give me the Bible ill I see." Opening the book, he pointed to the money, which the man had not seen. "That has not sought the Kingdom of God, my son. As punishment thou shalt also lose thy earthly reward."

And he placed the rubles in his pocket, to distribute afterward among the neighboring poor. London Standard.

ORPHAN SCHOOLS.

THOSE AT MOUNT JOY AND WHITE HALL VISITED BY THE COMMISSIONER.

Messrs. Gobin, Skinner, Reinisch and Kaufman, part of the commission, which are to have charge of the soldiers' orphan schools, visited the institutions at Mount Joy and White Hall last week. One of the commission said that at both places the children are without proper night clothes, the bath-rooms are defective, the ventilation bad and the buildings in need of repairs...

SULLIVAN AND KILRAIN.

The great event for which the world has watched for weeks past has taken place, and the fight between John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain for the championship of the world, and for $20,000 stakes, is over. They met on Monday in Mississippi, and after fighting seventy-five rounds Kilrain's second threw up the sponge. Both men were badly punished, but unfortunately neither of them was killed. More attention has been given to this pair of human brutes during the last few weeks than to any action of the most distinguished statesman of civilized nations. Column after column has been devoted to the expected prize fight and the participants, by the daily press, and the slinger has been elevated into a god. There is something to be said for a well developed form, and feats of strength by cultured muscle are admirable, but when men use their strength to pound each other for money they put themselves on a level with brutes. And yet the fight was watched with almost as much interest as that of a Presidential election.

GENERAL CAMERON'S WILL.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE REQUESTS IN THE DISPOSITION OF HIS ESTATE.

The following are some of the bequests in General Cameron's will. Harrisburg hospital, $10,000; Home of friends, Harrisburg, $10,000; his library and $5,000 to the young Mrs. Christiana Cameron of Harrisburg, as the foundation of a library for journeymen and apprentices; Mrs. James Duffy of Marietta, $5,000, in grateful recognition of her uniform kindness to his son Simon, General Cameron's church of Maytown, Lancaster county, $5,000, and a parcel of land in Harrisburg, his servant, $2,000; Old Donegal church, $2,000 Harris Park Front street, $1,000. A legacy of $5,000 to his sister, Mrs. Cobbs of Indianapolis, has lapsed by her death. The Home for the Friendless leaving the power to issue a diploma and a degree. Within six months from the passage of the Act any Physician or Surgeon who has been practicing medicine or surgery for five years is entitled to register, but after the expiration of that time he will be shut out. There are about one thousand practitioners throughout the State who will register. Exchange.

Must Register Too.

Under the law passed by the recent Legislature, Veterinary Surgeons must register at the Prothonotary's office in each county. The law allows them six months. After the time shall have elapsed no person can advertise or hold himself out to be a Veterinary Physician or Surgeon unless he has graduated at a regularly incorporated institution leaving the power to issue a diploma and a degree. Within six months from the passage of the Act any Physician or Surgeon who has been practicing medicine or surgery for five years is entitled to register, but after the expiration of that time he will be shut out. There are about one thousand practitioners throughout the State who will register. Exchange.

Among the private bequests are the following: His grand-daughters, Mrs. D. W. Wally, Mrs. S. H. Chaney, and Miss Janet Cameron, $50,000 each; his grandsons, Simon B. Cameron and Thomas Burnside, $50,000, the two last named of the latter also being given a farm each.

The State Teachers.

THE ANNUAL MEETING BEGUN AT ALTOONA. DR. HIGGINS'S ADDRESS.

ALTOONA, July 9.—The pedagogues of the Commonwealth assembled at 10 o'clock this morning in the Eleventh Avenue Opera House, this being the occasion of the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the State Teachers' Association. Mayor Turner delivered the address of welcome. Superintendent D. S. Cook, of Berks county, made the response. Superintendent Berkeley, of Somerset, addressed the convention on the subject of industrial education, and Superintendent Smith, of Delaware county, and Luckey, of Pittsburg, made addresses.

In the afternoon Dr. K. E. Higbes, state superintendent, delivered his inaugural address. Speaking about the school curriculum he said: "It should embrace all studies which form the basis of an intellectual and moral life, and which belong to man as man, referring to all, not to some, and, therefore, excluding all trades and professions as having to do only with particular pursuits of life."

Language, he said, was an absolutely essential study, as also geography and history. In alluding to art in the school he said: "I am convinced however, that music is the most general form of art in this modern world. Hence I do not hesitate to say that it should be in all our schools, as it is in all our homes and in all our sanctuaries; yielding its sweet, refining and inspiring benediction."

Continuing, he said: "Wherever the home life, either by neglect or by the force of circumstances, and among the larger centers of population, and among the extremely and almost homeless poor, proves to be inadequate, provision should be made for practical instruction in the general domestic industries of both sexes. It is not the trade, however, on the one hand, nor any great measure of pedagogic value on the other, but the general usefulness in way of social economy, which must warrant and characterize all efforts in this direction."

"So also as regards religion, the most profound factor of our existence. Home and the Church must in the main attend to this great interest, while the school co-operates by its moral care of the children and as part of the State, by its reverent acknowledgment of Almighty God and His divine guidance of the world. The schools can not for a moment ignore the Christian religion, some life and church-life of the Commonwealth, but must do all in its power, under the law, to advance it."

In speaking of the teachers he said: "The salaries of the teachers are such as to require a split of great sacrifice upon the part of the young if they are to spend much time or much money in preparation. A change in this respect is imperative."

The address of Miss Sarah M. Row, principal of the training school at Reading, followed.

A discussion embracing all the phases of practical training was taken up. All the superintendents of the State and many of the teachers took part in the discussion. Prof. Horv delivered an oration on the subject of labor in its relation to capital.

Johnstown Deserter.

GENERAL HASTINGS AND STAFF LEAVE THE TOWN—SCENE AT THE DEPOT.

JOHNSTOWN, July 9.—The officers about headquarters went early this morning and they began packing their grips and trunks, and before breakfast all hands were ready to start for home. James M. Auler, the messenger at the Adjutant General's office who has acted in the same capacity to General Hastings, packed up the General's goods and shipped them over to the station, and James is perhaps the happiest man who went out of Johnstown, for he has been yearning to get home for two weeks and when he first heard that the General was about to depart, he went into executive session with himself and had a good time.

General Wiley and Major Greenland who have been in charge of the Department of Public Safety, and have rendered excellent services, went home on an early train. General Hastings and a number of the other officers started to take the day express for Cresson. At the station General Hastings held a sort of levee. The men and women crowded about him to shake his hand and bid him good-by, and one man presented him with a small bouquet, in which was a card saying: "To General Hastings—For kind words and the workmen on Prospect Hill."

The man also presented the General with a floral wreath. Not a wife of the men and women wiped tears from their eyes as they shook the General's hand and told him they were sorry he was going to leave. Those who accompanied General Hastings to Cresson were Quartermaster General, Assistant Commissary General, Spangler, Colonel B. Frank Eschman, Colonel Paxson, Major Horn, Major-Haideker, Major Evans, Colonel Gray and Major James Hastings. The members of the local Finance Committee also went to Cresson to meet the commission. All the tents were packed at headquarters this afternoon with the exception of those needed by Captain Hamilton and Colonel Potter, who had been left in charge of the State work by General Hastings.

The place seems very lonely, indeed, to-night. When the members of the 14th depart the town will lose all the life that has been put into it by the military. Some of the citizens dread to see the military leave and they are afraid the civil authorities will not be able to cope with the disturbing elements that still exist in the valley.

The officers of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Pennsylvania were here to-day and left $30,000 worth of officers of the local lodge for distribution among its members. $23,000 have been contributed, making $50,000 in all. The membership of the lodge here is 250.

Those Intend Dangers.

The most noteworthy thing said by President Harrison at Woodstock on the Fourth was his declaration that "it is not in the power of any people upon earth much to harm us, except our own people," and that all the forces, except from those of foreign assault, ought our thoughts to turn to dangers which are internal and from which alone we can have serious harm."

It would have given additional value to the President's remarks if he had indicated, however briefly, what he considered the internal dangers to be. The World has steadily pointed out certain plain conditions in politics and evident tendencies in government which history teaches to be dangerous to Republics. Are these the dangers which the President had in mind?

If not, for example, an "internal danger," menacing "serious harm" to the nation, when a Presidential election becomes mainly the contest of two enormous corruption funds? Is it not harm for and from "our own people" when a pivotal State like Indiana is carried by bribery and fraud by a man who incited and directed the corruption is saved from punishment through the intervention of a Federal Judge who reversed his own ruling to protect the culprit? Is there not the most serious danger described by the President in the hands of the high offices for money—including the Vice-Presidency and Postmaster-Generalship? Could there be a more serious menace to the people's interests than is contained in the increase of Trusts and other monopolies for controlling business and fixing arbitrarily the prices of the necessities of life? Does President Harrison call in the wild carnival for spoils which follows every election, and the nepotism and favoritism which regard public office as a private perquisite?

Or does the President see an "internal danger" only in the effort of the Democrats to repeal unjust taxation and to lift from American manufacturers their hindering hand? When Mr. Harris in a speech recently said that the fine what he comes to be the dangers "from which alone we can have serious harm"—World.

Lucky Northumberland.

HOW THE ANCIENT TOWN WAS BENEFITED BY THE LATE BIG FLOOD.

The Saratoga Trust is responsible for the following publication: "The ancient and venerable town of Northumberland, at the confluence of the North and West branches of the Susquehanna, profited largely by the flood, and a good many of its citizens have been enriched by the rain of other waters. The logs came floating down in thousands from William-port and vicinity, affording profitable work for a number in Northumberland, who, stimulated by the prize of fifty cents salvage on each log, captured a vast quantity of the timber promptly. It is estimated that the town has added fourteen thousand dollars to its wealth in this way. The big saw mill at Northumberland was so fortunate as to save its entire fleet of rafts, and already it has sold every stick of timber on hand for the profit of $100,000. This company has sold thousands of dollars. This employment to two hundred men. From Chillisque creek, three or four miles above the town, down to Northumberland the low lands between the canal and river were covered with logs when the waters receded. Several of the farmers had their crops ruined by the flood, but the crop of logs left them at fifty cents each will largely compensate them for their vegetables."

A party of engineers are now surveying a new route between Williamport and Emira, it is believed, for the Northern Central Road. It is claimed that by following the mountain ridges twenty bridges can be avoided.

FARMS BEST. Roll Clinton and may be seen every day. Several of the farmers had their crops ruined by the flood, but the crop of logs left them at fifty cents each will largely compensate them for their vegetables."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent. Washington, July 8, 1889.

Mr. Harrison has apparently been the knee to the Republican Senatorial commission, and it has created no little gossip here. It has been known well known for some time past that quite a number of more or less prominent Republican Senators were aggrieved because of real or fancied slights they had received from the administration, and many people predicted of open hostilities between Harrison and the Senate next winter. A number of Republican Senators, including Allison, Callom, Chandler and Dolph and Jaggals, consulted over this and decided to hold a caucus of Republican Senators in the near future. They called on the President in order, as they expressed it, "to know where he stood." They were surprised to find that he "stood" just where they did: believing that no important move or appointment should be made without consultation with the party leaders and that their wishes should be consulted in all appointments in their respective sections. Senator Callom expressed great pleasure at what he considered the President's change of heart, and some people may accuse Mr. Harrison of weakness, but for my part I think he was very shrewd to "make up" with the Senators.

Great is the force of example. Commissioner of Pensions, Tanager, a short time since made his daughter his private Secretary at a salary of $1,800 a year, now the new Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Thos. J. Morgan, of Rhode Island, has his wife for private Secretary at a salary of $1,000 a year. Before the action of these officials, Dr. Webster, superintendent of Indian Schools, had his wife appointed Special Agent. This enables her to travel around with the Doctor, when he visits the different Indian schools and get her expenses paid and a salary of $600 a day from kind Uncle Sam. All the time there is a law against the employment of more than one member of the same family by the same department.

Attorney General Miller has discovered a rare curiosity. It is a Virginia Republican who declines an office. Mr. C. A. Heermans, who was recently Attorney General of Virginia, in the western district of Virginia, has written declining the office on the ground that he should have been appointed attorney and that the smaller office was given him as the result of a compromise between certain parties, which he refuses to recognize. Here innocence for you. Does not this young gentleman know, for he must be young, very young, that in politics King compromise rules the roost. Seldom in the history of the country has a President or even a Governor of a State been so completely deceived. The result of the compromise was that the gentleman effected a compromise with his temper the foolish letter would probably never have been written.

Mr. Cleveland vetoed two bills passed by Congress to quiet the title of the De Moines River Navigation Company, and now the Attorney General of Iowa is here asking the department to bring suit to set aside the title in the name of the United States. Secretary Wood only receives visits by day, and he requests them to state their business, so that he may decide whether he will grant a personal interview. The innovation is not popular.

The department of Agriculture has issued a circular to railroads and trans-shipment of cattle from Texas and Arkansas during the continuance of the disease known as "Texas fever." It will also locate inspectors at all the big stock yards to see that the regulations are properly carried out.

The resignation of General Jos. E. Johnston, Railroad Commissioner, has been accepted, to take effect on the 15th inst. This resignation has been in the hands of Secretary Noble since early in March, but it had been generally understood that General Johnston would remain where he was, General Sherman having made a personal request of the President to that effect.
