

Bianche Douglas Dead. MISERABLE END OF ONE OF THE ACTRESS IN THE JENNIE CRAMER MYSTERY.

There died in one of the lowest of the low resorts in Chicago last Thursday a woman who on one time filled a prominent place in one of the most noted murder trials in the annals of crime.

This beautiful girl was found dead, half covered by the rising tide, at Savin Rock, a Summer resort near New Haven, Aug. 6, 1881, by Asa Curtis, an old fisherman.

Bianche, on the witness stand, swore to the same story that Walter and James Malley had told. They claimed they did not know the Jennie Cramer.

Bianche had falsely given evidence as to her New York connections. Her record was exposed and then the whole story of her relations with Walter Malley came out.

Bianche had been induced to go to New Haven to live with him. She, it was alleged, led Jennie Cramer astray and helped James Malley accomplish her ruin.

Bianche was taken back to New Haven to be tried for perjury and acquitted. She had returned to New York and entered upon a new career of dissipation and gradually sunk so low that she frequented the resorts of Mot Street.

While in the hospital, and just before breath left her, she struggled to speak. The piteous, white-capped nurse, who sat beside her cot, bent low to hear what she had to say, but it was too late—the dying girl took her secret to the grave with her.

Her death closes the only possible means of discovering the truth regarding the murder of Jennie Cramer, for it is not likely that the Malley boys will ever say anything about the matter.

Bianche Douglas's real name was Annie Hines. She was born in Mot Street, New York. Her father was blind and she used to lead him about the streets.

When Annie went to Lizzie Bundy's house in New York she did not tell these facts, her story being of a much more romantic and pathetic character, and her name being given as Bianche Douglas.

While in that house she met Walter Malley, who was then going to school at Seton Hall in New Jersey. Their intimacy lasted until the Cramer murder took place.

James Malley, Jr., is in Wilkes Barre, Pa. He went to that city to study medicine with a relative. About two years ago he was arrested charged with having performed a fatal operation on a beautiful young girl from Easton, Pa.

Walter now lives in idleness with his wealthy father at New Haven.

Mr. Bonner is highly pleased that Maud S. now has a formidable rival in Senator Stanford's great three-year-old Sualo, with her marvelous record of 2:10, made on Saturday at San Francisco.

The owner of Maud S. sent the following dispatch to Senator Stanford: "I congratulate you most heartily on Sualo's wonderful performance. Considering her age, it is the greatest performance ever made by a trotting horse."

If no accidents happen she ought to be able in the near future to beat Maud S.'s record, as I believe Maud S. herself is capable of beating it. There is a great lesson to be learned from the fact that Maud S., Jay-Eye-See and Sualo, the three greatest trotters of the world have yet produced, have thoroughbred grand-dams, and we are indebted to you and the late Robert Alexander for teaching us that lesson."

Speaking of the future of Maud S. Mr. Bonner said: "Next season I shall have Maud S. attempt to beat the record made August 31, 1885, namely, 2:08. I think she can beat it under favorable conditions. What I mean by that is if she shall be in the best of condition here and track and wind are favorable. As regards age, while Maud S. is to be sure, fifteen years old still we must remember that Lady Suffolk, Goldsmith Maid, and all the greatest trotters have made their best time after they were 16 years old."

Maud S. is the only trotter that ever made a record of 2:10, and she has done this twice—in 1884 she made 2:09 and then her record in 1885—also the world's record—of 2:08. As to time and place where I shall try to lower 2:08 with Maud S., of course I cannot at this early day speak definitely. But the trial will take place some time next summer, at fifteen track as seems to my judgment best suited to requirements of the trial."

Great distress exists in the Transvaal, South Africa, resulting from drought and famine. The situation was reported to be critical at Johannesburg, where breadstuffs were selling at famine prices.

Barnum's show opened in London in the presence of 20,000 spectators.
