warrants were issued for the arrest of those holding posession of the parish house. On October twenty-second, the police made an attempt to break into it and arrest the men. They broke the door open, but were met by a gang of Polanders, armed with rifles and revolvers, who threatened the first man who attempted to enter. . The police fell back and gave up the attempt. Subsequently they arrested two of the Polanders on: the street. As they were taking them to the lock-up Wilkes and a crowd of Polanders attempt ed a rescue. A desparate fight ensued, in which one of the policeman, Michael Melatdeath's door. Had it not been for the interposition of a body of citizens, the po-

When the cortege arrived at the cemetery they found the gates locked and the place held by Po landers armed with rifles and shot guns who forbade their entrance. On Monday the Lithuanian attorney, Hon. W. H. Hines bad warrants issued for the arrest of the Polanders. A posse of constables from Wilkes-Barre went down to Plymouth and after a sharp fight dispersed the Polanders and arrested several of them. On Tuesday Wilkes was arrested and put in fail. With him absent, the Polanders lost their aggressiveness and the Baltie Rheinard has a sick horse, which Lithuanian children were quietly interred. Then came the horrible sacrilege. Released under bail. Wilkes went down to Plymouth, and, gathering a dozen of the quite often. What is the attraction, can most desparate of his friends, raided the cemetery, opened the graves and dragged out the two coffins. One of the coffics was split by a pick drill being driven entirely through it, which must have also pierced the body of the six year old child within. Standing over the grave, with a Winchester rifle in his hands. Wilkes directed the work of the desperadoes. What they would have finally done is not known, for before they had completed their ghastly work a party of Irish miners came by, and, seeing what was going on, resolutely attacked the ghouls, who fled without offering fight. The miners then replaced the coffice in the grave. Barney Quinn, one of the men, states that one coffin is split both at the top and bottom, and that one arm of the infant inside is almost torn from the body. The news of this outrage excited the Lithuanians to desperation, and it needed the utmost efforts of the priest and the more sensible of the party to restrain them from violence. A delegation was sent to Wilkes-Barre to consult with their attorney, ex-Senator W. H. Hines, and they are now guiding themselves entirely by his advice. Warrants were issued by Alderman Donohue, for the arrest of Wilkes and How sad are the tidings that float through the valley, Another strong man has gone down to his grave.

In the midst of our hopes, that soon he would rally, He sank, from all human endeavors to While yet in his strength, his age scarcely showing, With uniform health, and robust his form With his mind still improving, his honors still growing. Like the oak he went down in the midst the storm. A link in a large social circle is broken, And a host of warm friends, for him dro the tear.

Bethlehem people, says the Times, are nuch interested in the offer which the Parish of the Nativity has made to Bishop Rullson. If he accepts the Church of the Nativity as his pro-cathedral it will make South Bethlehem the see city of Central Pennsylvania and make it the centre of the life of the Episcopal Church in this diocese, as it has long been one of the great centres of church work. The new Church of the Nativity is admitted for the uses of a cathedral and it would be a positive gain to the town to secure the continued residence of the honored prelate and distinguished preacher, who has lived among us for over five years. Christ Church, Reading, is now the pro-cathedral, and St. James', Lancaster, quite recently offered its admirable set of buildings to the bishop for the same purpose. What the Happy and Hungry. For over five years I was a constant suferer with that most terrible and annoying lisease, dyspepsia. After paying out hunfreds of dollars, the only medicine I found that would do me any good was Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me, Now I can eat well and am happy and hungry.-Ent-

The Law Does Not Make Such Distinction.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN: In your last issue n your report of License Court, you say that "in the case of A. H. Fulmer for hotel at Eyersgrove, the remonstrance was or the ground that the hotel was not necessary for the entertainment of strangers or rance was against the application for li cense for the sale of liquors, on the ground that such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers or traveiers.

Yours Respectfully, T. C. WILSON. A Cure for Diphtheria

est known, at least it is worth trying, for Ous. physicians seem powerless to cope with he disease successfully. At the first indi cation of diphtheria in the throat of a child make the room close; then take a tin cut and pour into it a quantity of tar and turpentine, equal parts. Then hold the cup over a fire so as to fill the room with fumes. The little patient, on inhaling the fumes, will cough up and spit outs all the mem rancous matter, and the diphtheria will pass off. The fumes of the tar and the turpentine loosen the mattertin the throat, and thus afford relief that has baffled the skill of physicians. - Scientific American.
