A Very Hot Town.

Last Saturday was a very warm day in Bloomsburg. The thermometer stood up in the nineties, and it was delegate elecion day, and there was no ice in town. J. H. Giger's ice house has been exhausted and his supply comes by car from Philadelphia. He had ordered a carload, and it should have reached here on Friday, but it was delayed and when Saturday morning came there was great consternation. The hotels wanted ice to keep their beer cool, the soliticians wanted it to keep their heads ool, the butchers wanted it to keep their meat cool, and everybody wanted it. E. A. Rawlings had over a hundred dollar's worth of meat in his refrigerator which would spoil before Sunday unless ice could be found. He succeeded in getting a few hundred pounds of E. C. Bundy at the old slate quarry, but as it takes a ton to fill his refrigerator, he was still anxious. After considerable telegraphing Mr. Giger found his car of ice lying at Tamaqua, and it arrived here on Sunday moraing. By noon the ice wagon had supplied all its custom ers. NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES Still greater surprises await the return ing students in Sept. At a meeting of the committee of the trustees on grounds and buildings Tuesday evening, it was decided to go on with the paper hanging, and decorate the girl's rooms as well as the boy's. This was a wise step to take. It was the intention to paper the girl's rooms at any rate before the end of the year, if the school proved to be large enough to warrant the expense. Now, that it is assured that the school will be large, the work may as well be done first as last. This week has brought in many new students, and the indications are that every room on the girls side will be engaged by the end of vacation, while the boys side will be nearly filled. The public knows a good school when it sees it, and is not slow to show its appreciation.

TIHNTSIN, CHINA, MAY 13, 1893. MY DEAR FATHER We reached here on our return trip from Peking this noon in time for tiffin (lunch) and are hoping to get away toward Chinanfu early day after to-morrow by native house-boat. I wrote mother from Peking a week ago Saturday when our visit there was about ended and we were expecting to start the following Monday for the Great Wall. Well, we got away as we expected, our party consisting of Mr. Langdon, one of our young missionaries in Pek-ing, Miss Woodberry, a nice New England girl who is governess in a Mr. Drew's family, and Dora Drece and Edith Wherry, each about twelve. Mrs. Neal and Miss Woodberry had each a mule litter and Mr. Langdon and I a cart between us, while besides we had two donkeys. Of course we changed about a good deal. We had a charming trip of four days, going to see some lateresting sights every day but the last, and finding our party very congenial, the little girls especially being so interested in everything and enjoying the excursion so much it was a great pleasure to have them with us. The first day we went only about ten li before stopping for lunch in temple where there is a very large bell, perhaps twenty feet in height, wonderful not so much for its large size as for the delicacy of the characters which are cast up-Foo, it being possible we may be there for on it, both inside and out, there being thousands of these characters and all of Sunday a week. them as clear cut and as distinct as if chiseled out by hand; it was really wonderful to think of such perfection in casting. The Council Proceedings legend of the bell is that a former emperor ordered such a bell cast, but the first man who tried it failed and was beheaded and hereby pledge our undivided support, and likewise the second, but the third was wise enough to consult an oracle, and was Robert E. Pattison as the next Governor informed that to insure success human blood must be mingled with the molten metal. Accordingly when all was ready and the casting about take place the man's daughter threw herself into the boiling mass and the result was a successful cast As she was about plunging in some one attempted to catch her to hold her back but succeeded in retaining her shoe, so now the saying goes that whenever the bill sounds it is the maiden wailing for her lost shoe. From this temple we traveled on the ascent was extremely gradual, being not at all precipitous and the road very good most of the way for carts. At the southern mouth, as it is called in Chinese were a number of signal towers, square nal fires in case of alarm, and so it was at the northern mouth, but in between they of the hills on either side, as no tower however, in the pass was marvelous, they seeming to have run walls up the sides of the hills whenever the notion struck them, finally culminating in th

Great Wall, which we came to after travel ing about thirteen miles up the pass and within a couple of miles of where we spent our second night. It is built in the most favorable location right on the divide between north and south, where no gap had to be left for the passage of streams, as was the case with the shorter walls. The sight of this great wall was most inspiring; to see it climbing the most rugged bills and going on and on as far as the eye could reach and stopping at nothing as too difficult or too inaccessible. I have seen goodly number of city walls in China bu nothing that has impressed me one quarter as muchias this tremendous feat of strengti and endurance in thus scaling the most difficult hill tops, not merely with a breas work of earth but with a wall of solid masonry, and that too in the loneliest of country far away from the habitations of men and everything which would make such an undertaking easier. The place where we struck the wall was a large gate way with a secondary inclosure, such as they have about most city gates for better protection, and for the use of troops in defending the gateway. Here we climbed for perhaps three-quarters of a mile, ad miring the grand view of hills and moun tains and examining the fine workmanship displayed in the wall. Here it was buil of square pieces of dressed atone, both north and south sides being alike, perhaps twenty feet high, surmounted by parapets of brick. Inside the parapets there is a clear space of perhaps fourteen feet paved with tiles, everything being laid 'n what has been apparently very good lime. Be side the wall proper, I counted within my view seventeen bastions which were little ouses built above the level of the wall wall so as to give complete command of the wall in either direction, and afford good protection to soldiers. Here and there were also stone steps leading down ingress and egress. It was really most wonderful. I would not have missed see-good state of preservation, this part hav course is very tumble-down. The wall we saw was about 17 feet across from outside to outside and was mostly very well pre-to flow in, and all the malign spirits from

Still further back in another court stood his mouumental grave stone, in pavillon raised some 30 feet, and last, be hind all, was his grave mound, perhaps seventy feet high, planted thick with cedars. Passing out and going to the most interesting part of the grave yard, perhaps two miles from the grave we visited, being an avenue of stone animals, life size, lions, tigers, elephants, camels, rhinoceroses and horses, and ending with 16 figures of men, the whole making an avenue three-fourths of a mile in length. It was not beautiful, as there were no trees. but it was very odd and interesting, each figure being cut out of a solid block of stone.
