The Nomination Accepted

PATTISON'S LETTER TO THE COMMITTEE OF THE CONVENTION.

appointed by the democratic state con-vention to inform him of his nomination for the governorship the following letter of acceptance.
Philadelphia, Aug. 22, 1890—Gentlemen: I have received your letter conveying the formal notice of my nomination by the democratic state convention for the office of governor. The custom which calls for such interchange of correspondence has lost much of its significance by reason of the changed conditions and usages parties at the present day. Having appeared in person before the body whose committee you are, and accepted its nomination, I took occassion to point out what in my view was the allpervading issue in the campaign then inaugurated. An extended letter of acceptance would, therefore, be little more than a reiteration of what was then expressed It is questionable moreover, whether anything can be now said that would give greater clearness and emphasis to the thought dominsting the contest between the two parties in Penusylvania.

The platforms of the respective conventions, the controlling influences by which their deliberations and action were shaped, and that exhaustive dis cussion of the proceedings and the cardidates by the newspaper press of the entire country, unmistakably show that not only is the issue of the campaign irrevocably made up, but that it is clearly comprehended and will be directly met and decided by the people at the polls. In this connection I may venture the suggestion that we should not permit the contest to be divided from its legitimate and true lines. All attempts to import issues from the field of national politics will be but an effort by these now on trial in Pennsylvania to detract public attention from themselves and their seconds to more remote subjects of party controversy.

Self-government—home rule—is now on trial in this commonwealth. On the one side stand the people with their constitution and general interests on the other stands a selfish and arrogant political leadership, self-con-stituted and defiant, and resolved to use the offices and treasure of the people as personal spoil. Between these must the voters choose. Confident that the democratic party, its principles and candidates, represent the right and side of the contoversy, I just have no doubt of the popular verdict. We offer deeds, not vacant words, as the guarantee of our fidelity. With the assurance of my profound appreciation of the honor conferred by the democracy in choosing me as their candidate, I am respectfully yours,
ROBERT E. PATTISON.

MARTIN, THE LION TAMER.

RECOGNIZED BY BEASTS AFTER A FIVE YEAR'S ABSENCE.

When the celebrated animal tamer, who died lately, had retired to private life, one day he took a notion that he would visit his former large menagerie, which he had not seen for five years. It was in Brussls, and he started for that city from his country seat near Rotterdam. At 4 o'clock, the time for feeding, he entered the menagerie. Being winter time, Martin was wrapped in a cloak. He mingled with the crowd and waited until the animals would receive their food, for which they were waiting with wild impatience. While they were eating he be-gan to cough. Suddenly the animals paused in their treat and listened, then broke into wild howls of joy and tore at the iron bars so that many of the timid visitors fled from the menagerie. The parrots, kangaroos, pelicans, and monkeys, began to screech and scream. the byens and wolves howled-in short, it was a perfect bedlam.

Then Martin stepped forward. With a movement of his hand and with his powerful voice he commanded silence, and suddenly everything was quiet. He swung himself over the bar which separated the visitors from the ani mals, and put his hand in cages to fondie the animals A mighty tigress show-ed more joy than any of the others. When Martin's hand glided over her magnificent fur her limbs trembled nervously, she uttered weak tender grunts, and through the iron bars, with her rough tongue, she licked the face of her former master. When he went away she lay down without eat ting any more food.

There was a lion named Nero who had once bitten Martin in the hip and had been severely punished by him for it. The lion had an unreconcilable hatred for the animal tamer. Nero made no other motion at Martin's approach than lift his head and eye him intently. He remained in his place, lying still in the back of his cage, when Martin came near. Martin spoke to him. He did not answer, but viewed Martin with apparent indifference. But when Martin was going away the lion, with a mighty spring, against the grating, pushed his paws through the iron bars, and with his claws tore off a part of Martin's cloak. By a quick movement Martin escaped another injury from this animal.

JENKS DREAM.

Jenks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a prize-fighters ring, and in the middle of it stood a doughty little champion who met and deliberately knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burry-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Chants as they were in size, the valuant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jenks woke up langiling. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pelleta, or tiny Sugar-coated Granuics, easily "knock out" and beat all the big pills hollow! They are the original and only genuine Little Liver Pills.

A One Eyed Aeronaut in Europe It is possible that some of your readers have heard of, if they have not seen, Professor Bartholomew, the aeronaut. He is quite a character; gangling, awkward, rural, but fearless as a lion and as sharp as a tack, he hails from Burr Oak, Mich. Bartholomew accompanied the baseball aggregation on its tour around the world, and here and there he gave balloon ascensions that excited even more curiosity than did the performances of the exponents of our national game. Burtholomew has the misfor-tune to be a one eyed man, but the mis-fortune does not occasion him much re-morse; it would be hard to find a more cheerful person than he. In Rome he cheerful person than he. In Rome he came up to Mr. Lynch, the manager of the excursion party, and said; "Leigh, could you lend me $30?"

"Why, I suppose so," said Lynch.

"Well, I wish you could," said Bartholomew. "It would be a great accommodation. Glass eyes are so darned cheap here that it seems as if I ought to stock up on them!"

Bartholomew. hymeht $30, worth of Bartholomew bought $30 worth of glass eyes and he carried them around with him in a baize bag; there were about a peck of them, and they rattled like so many marbles. They were not all the same color, but Bartholomew didn't mind a small matter of that kind. He was too much of a humorist to stickle at a detail of that character. He said that when he wore a blue eye he resembled his father's side of the family; a black evey made him took more like his mother's folk.

One day Bartholomew was riding in a hansom cab in London; the horse acted badly and the driver lashed the brute fiercely. Whoever has ridden in a hanfiercely. Whoever has ridden in a han-som cab knows how awkward it is to have the long lash of the driver's whip dangling in one's eyes. Several times Bartholomew ordered the driver to be more careful in the use of his whip. Reaching his destination, Bartholomew quietly took out his glass eye, stepped out of the cab upon the sidewalk, and holding out the eye in his open hand he said sternly to the cabman: "I warned you repeatedly, yet see what you have you repeatedly, yet see what you have done! Wait here now, sir, until I have summoned a policeman."

To the befuddled cabman there was an awful reality in all this. He did not wait for any further parley—oh, no, not he. Lashing his horse into a gallop he made off as fast as ever he could, the worst scared cabby in all the United Kingdom! By this quiet ebullition of humor the pilgrim from Burr Oak evaded Call and examine the largest and best selected stock of goods ever shown in Columbia county.

Eugene Field's Letter in Chicago Times.

Sister Robbins lay upon her sick bed watching the clock, the slant of the sunbeams and occasionally talking to her Polly—a wise looking gray parrot with glittering eyes and brilliant scarlet tail. Broken Hearted. The sorrows of childhood are real enough while they last. Happily, how-ever, they are not only brief, but often so much on the surface that even the sufferer hardly knows what they are about. A small girl ran to her mother the other day, sobbing as if her heart would break, and burying her head in her lap cried out that she would never, never play with her sister Emeline again. "Why, my child, what has Emeline done" the mother asked.

"Oh, mamma, she has said something that has just broken my heart," the child declared, sobbing yet more violently.
"What was it?"

The child paused a moment in the midst of her wild weeping as if trying to think; then her tears burst forth afresh. "Oh, mamma," she cried, "I can't remember what it was, but it was so cruel that she has broken my heart."—Youth's
