THE END OF BENEDICT ARNOLD.

HIS LAST YEARS IN LONDON PILLED WITH BUTTER REMORSE.

All the family tradition goes to show that the last years of Benedict Arnold in London were years of bitter B. F. Savits. remorse and self-reproach. The great name which he had so gallantly won and so wretchedly lost left him no repose by night or day. The iron frame, which had withstood the fatigue of so many trying battle fields, and still more trying marches through the wilderness, broke down at last under the slow torture of lost friendship and merited disgrace.

GAS FIT

whathese, orose down at last under the slow torture of lost friendship and merited disgrace.

In the last sad days in London, in June, 1801, the family tradition says that Arnold's mind kept reverting to his old friendship with Washington. He had always carefully preserved the American uniform which he wore on the day when he made his escapt to the Vulture; and now as, broken in spirit and weary of life, he felt the last moments coming, he called for this uniform and put it on, and decorated himself with the epsalets and swordknot which Washing on had given him after the victory o Saratoga.

"Let me die," he said "in this old uniform in which I fought my battles. May God forgive me for ever putting on any other?"

on any other!'

As we thus reach the end of one of the saddest episodes in American history, our sympathy cannot fail for the moment to go out towards the sufferer, nor can we help contrasting these pas-sionate dying words with the last cyn-ical scoff of that other traitor, Charles Lee, when he begged that he might not be buried within a mile of any church, as he did not wish to keep bad company after death. From be-ginning to end the story of Lee is itde more than a vulgar melodrama; but into the story of Arnold there enter, that element of awe and pity which, as Aristotle pointed out, is an essential part of real tragedy. That Arnold had been very shabbily treated, long before any thought of treason entered his mind, is not to be cenied.

That he may honestly have come to consider the American cause hopeless, consider the American cause hopeless, that he may really have lost his interest in it because of the French alliance—all this is quite possible. Such considerations might have justified him in esigning his commission, or even, had he openly and frankly gone over to the enemy, much as he should have deplored such a step, some persons would always have been found to judge him leniently, and accord him the credit of acting upon principle. But the dark and crooked course which he did choose left open no alternative but that of unqualified condemnation. If we feel less of contempt and more of sorrow in the case of and more of sorrow in the case o Arnold than in the case of such a weakling as Charles Lee, our verdict is not the less unmitigated. Arnold's fall was by far the more terrible, as he feli from a greater height, and into a depth than which none could be lower.

It is only fair that we should recall his services to the cause of American independence, which were unquestionably greater than those of any man in the Continental army except Washing-ton and Greene. But it is part of the natural penalty that attaches to backsliding such as his, that when we hear the name of Benedict Arnold these are not the things which it suggests to our minds, but the name stands, and wid always stand, as a symbol of un-faithfulness to trust.—Atlantic Month-

AFTER PENSION AGENTS

A BILL TO LIMIT THEIR PEES ... SECRETARY

Representative Belknap, of Michigan, introduced a bill recently limitcases of increase of pension on ac-count of the increase of disability to $1. An effort will be made to get the nmitee on Invalid Pensions to report this bill, but the pension agents who are growing enormously rich out of the fees they are now making, are already at work to prevent the passage of any such measure. There is a good deal of feeling being aroused throughout the country against the Pension Bureau because o the enormous sums which the agents make out of the veterans. One agent in this city has an income of $2500 week from pension cases, and ex-Com missioner Tanner, whose knowledge o the law is very limited, has already worked up a pension business that is said to bring him in an income many times larger than his former salary as Pension Commissioner.

Secretary Noble has been looking into this matter, and he is elaborating a scheme of his own, so as to make it possible for the veterans to get their business attended to without the necessity of employing outside attorneys. Secretary does not have much faith in Congress legislating on the subject. Speaking of his own investigation of the matter to a reporter, he

"Think of it," said he, "the Pension Bureau is now issuing between 14,000 and 15,000 certificates a week. Under the old laws an attorney could charge and collect a fee of $25 for every case brought to a successful issue, and of the cases now being allowed a large proportion are of that class. The new law allows a fee of only $10 per case but even at this compensation the at torneys would realize $150,000 a week. I look over the list of attorneys and I find that very many of them are men, who, upon their knowledge of the law, could not build up even petty practice before a country Ju c of the Peace, but here in Washington they manage in a few years to accumu-$100,000 and more, acting as so called "attorneys" for pension claimants. And then it would be some comfort if they would leave the old soldiers with one fee, but some of them work there as I saw people work cotton seed in my trip to the South this fall. They gin them for an original pension, and then gin them over again for an increase and this process of ginning is kept up as long as anything remains. I am be coming thoroughly convinced that something should be done, and that soon, to relieve the old soldiers of this grievously heavy burden. And before long I hope to be able to mature a plan by which some of them at least may have their claims looked after without having to pay over the "first fruits" to pension agents.

THE HORSE THAT SURVIVED THE CUSTER "Do you know," said Corporal Moore, of the Newport Barracks, "that there is a horse in the United States there is a horse in the United States army on the retired list drawing a pension? Well it's a fact. The horse belongs to Captain Keogh, a near relative to General Custer, and is the only horse that es aped the missacre in which that general was killed. His pension is sufficient to cover his transportation wherever he does and pay for his forage. He is cared for by a man detail of for that duty, and who does nothing else. He is saddled, bridled and equip d and led out for inspection, yet no one dares to sit in his saddle. He has been sought a ter by enterprising showmen, but Uncle by enterprising showmen, but Uncle Sam says no. He will be kept as long as life laste, and after that he will probably be prepared and sent to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.
