"Ramsay and I got to be quite intimate after a while, and many were the walks and talks we enjoyed together. But he wasn't any more confidential with me than he was with others, and of course I asked no questions. Only once did he say something which might be construed as bearing upon the secret I was convinced that he had. It was in this way:

"Ramsay had dropped into my office, and we fell to conversing about heredi-tary disease. It grew out of some cases I was treating then. I don't remember what. Ramsay in his brilliant, earnest fashion began to inveigh against people who married and brought into the world children cursed with the seeds of some dreadful malady.

way the bonder has mother. Philosophers assert that no man is wholly bad, and that the instincts of a gentleman may linger even in the breast of a cold blooded assassin. The recent death in Canada of Mrs. Sterling, mother of Charles M. Sterling, who was executed at Youngs-town, O., some time ago for the muriler of Lizzie Grombacher, has unveiled the facts "'Let me tell you a story,' he said, 'and it will show you how many lives may be ruined by one such deed. The facts came to my knowledge years ago. Once there was a boy-never mind his name—who, his friends said, showed ex-ceeding great promise in his youth. His Lizzle Grombacher, has unveiled the facts concerning an incident that occurred short-ly before the hanging. Mrs. Sterling visited Youngstown to see the condemned original. Though he had left home when i at a lad, with a maternal intuition she recognized him. When brought to his cell, Sterling, without the univer of a muscle, said: ceeding great promise in his youth. His mother, a widow, seemed utterly wrapped up in him. She traveled with him in foreign lands, sent him to the finest schools and spared neither pains nor ex-pense to improve the talents nature had bestowed upon him. Brock and Ruke Smith were be-ing taken out for trial when Brock sud-denly turned and ran up the stairs to the highest point he could reach, crying out to stand clear below, for he was coming. Two officials scized a mattress and held it so as to catch him thereon if possible, while the others sought to reason with him. They say this lasted an hour, but it was probably much less. He shouted out his real name and added, "I would make a statement if there was a reporter here." He threw down his new decky hat, saying: "Give that to the convict who keeps the

A Farmer on a Bicycle

The New England farmer of today is much given to the covered carriage and horse that holds his head high. I suspect that the reliable but somewhat de-liberate ox satisfied his ancestors. I met one farmer near Holyoke driving his cow home from the pasture on a bicycle -that is, the man was on a bicycle and the cow was ahead of him on foot, though she looked as if she would appre-ciate a bicycle, too, as he was speeding her along on a rather lively trot. I stopped him and asked him if there was any show for a farmer to make money in that section, and while the patient cow leaned against a tree and caught her breath he replied that there was none whatever. His grandfather had made money on the farm, he said, but he could not, Then he called to the cow to "hump herself," and went spinning down the road with the long suffering beast making desperate efforts to keep from being run over. It occurred to me that perhaps his grandfather did not pack the stones off the farm with a bicycle and a pair of tongs .-- Cor. New York Tribune

Impure Ice

The Massachusetts board of health has examined 76 samples of water and 836 samples of ice from 56 localities, with the result of showing that, contrary to general belief, ice may be nearly as inpure as the water from which it forms. The crystallization of the water forces out the color, salt, and most of the mat ter in solution, and clear ice from polluted sources may be comparatively free from impurities and the probability of hiding disease germs.

But in snow ice and ice formed by flooding the imparities become entan-gled, so that freezing gives no purification. The public is warned by the board, therefore, that ice is unsafe for domestic purposes when obtained from a source polluted by sewage beyond that which would be allowable in drinking water, and that in general it is much safer to use for drinking water and for placing in contact with food that portion of the ice that is clear. - Arkansaw Travel
