

The Supreme Court has decided that shooting pigeons from a trap is not unlawful.

A recent decision of the Supreme Court holds that it is unlawful for barber shops to open on Sunday for business. Judge Elwell decided that question more than ten years ago, in a Berkshire case.

The Burdick bill is not likely to pass at this session of the legislature. There is a general protest against it all through the oil country, most of the individual producers being opposed to it. As it is supposed to be in their interests, and they do not want it, it is hard to see why it should be forced upon them. The text of the bill is not before us, but its purport is to fix the limit at which the Standard Pipe line shall carry oil to the sea board, at a lower rate than is now charged. This would reduce the profit of the Standard Oil Company only to put the profit in some body else's pocket. The price of oil to the consumer would not change.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23, 1891.

Mr. Harrison has been credited with being a man who could not be caught by the brass band brand of office seekers, but his nomination of Ex-Gov. ("Calico Charley") Foster to be Secretary of the Treasury proves that he not only can be, but that he has been caught by the brass band methods adopted by Foster and his friends to obtain control of the Treasury department.

Personally there is nothing decidedly objectionable about Mr. Foster except the abnormally big head which is certain to be greatly augmented by the new honor he has just captured. To be a self made man is highly creditable to anyone, but to be always telling, by your manner, as Mr. Foster does, how proud you are of the job, and how much better you have done it than God Almighty could have done, is anything else but creditable. Politically Mr. Foster is everything that is objectionable; he is a product of the Sherman, Hayes, Kissner school, and I predict that in a year from this time the Treasury department will have become what it was under the Hayes administration, when John Sherman, now Senator, was at its head—a thoroughly organized political machine personally controlled by its Secretary.

There is no probability that the policy of the Treasury department, if it can be said to have any policy, will be changed under Secretary Foster. It will go right on in opposition to giving the people a sufficient volume of currency to successfully transact the ever growing business of the country, and when its dear Wall street gets cramped it will, as usual, rush to the rescue with all the millions it can control. This sort of thing will go on until the 4th of March, 1893; then there will be a grand charade.

Between the consideration of appropriation bills the Senate has been debating the bill providing for the guaranteeing of $100,000,000 of the bonds of the Nicaragua canal company. Senator Vest made a very strong speech against it, in which he called attention to the millions this Government has sunk in the Pacific railroads and pointed out the fact that the passage of this bill would violate a treaty with England and be the certain cause of war. Senator Morgan defended the bill and intimated that there were special reasons, not made public, why it should be passed. It is almost certain to pass the Senate, but look out for the liveliest kind of a circus when it reaches the House.

Czar Reed grows worse as the time draws near for him to be uncrowned; he now not only refuses to have a capitulation of a vote announced for the information of the House, but he orders the clerk to read a skeleton journal instead of the full journal of the previous day proceedings, and he has members not present entered therein as being present and refuses to allow changes to be made when attention is called to such palpable errors, and he is supported by the vote of every republican. On Saturday Representative Crisp, who is credited with being one of the most conservative men in the House, stated, as did his colleagues, Clements and Turner, of Georgia, Blanchard of Louisiana and Wilson of Missouri, that he was entered upon the journal of the previous day as present and not voting, when as a matter of fact he was not present—he left the house with the other democrats.

crats for the purpose of breaking a quorum. Failing to get the error corrected Mr. Crisp said that he wished to call the attention of the country to the manner in which his presiding officer made up and falsified the record. This arraignment brought a storm of applause from the democratic side and the galleries. Is it any wonder that democrats in the House filibuster?

The story published here purporting to state by authority that Mr. Cleveland would under no circumstances be a candidate next year was undoubtedly concocted by an enemy of Mr. Cleveland, and it did not require that gentleman's denial to refute it. His position is well understood here. Of course everybody knows that he isn't a candidate, that is to say that he isn't seeking the nomination—if he was, the anti-silver letter would never have been written. That he would refuse the nomination if tendered, no one for a moment believes, unless he thought his acceptance would jeopardize the success of the party.

To-day is a legal holiday and the departments are all closed: Tuesday and Thursday of last week they were closed on account of the funerals of Admirable Porter and General Sherman. No people anywhere get as many holidays as the department clerks here.

FARMER, STUDY PROTECTION.

The Messenger of February 12, 1891, a religious newspaper, quotes from the Forum for Nov. 1889, the question, "Who owns the United States?" And reasons were given for the belief that "one-half of the national wealth is owned by 40,000 families and that three-fourths of it is in the possession of fewer than 250,000 families." If the above is correct, of which the further statement quoted from admits of no doubt, only one-fourth of the national wealth is owned by about 1,000,000 families, representing 63,000,000 inhabitants. Now in view of these facts, we ask with all candor how protection benefits the 13,000,000 families, representing 63,000,000 inhabitants owning only one-fourth of the national wealth.

As there is no direct tax for the support of the general government, including the vast appropriations made and as the revenues are wholly dependent upon duties (tax or tariff) on imports and necessities of life with special protection on manufactured products, all of which the millions are obliged to purchase. To our mind, it is as evident as day that the whole revenue with the slight exception of the purchases of the "fewer than 250,000 families," is drawn from one-fourth of the national wealth, representing 63,000,000 of inhabitants. In other words, a tax is levied for the support of the general government upon only one fourth of the national wealth, while three-fourths of the national wealth is exempt from national taxation—a thing as inconsistent as a policy of highway robbery which is protected from punishment by law. But what else is it? The support of the general government in relation to ability and wealth is proportioned precisely like the support (revenues) of the states and local governments—the poor pay it all. If we are wrong, will some one be kind enough to point out how and wherein protection benefits the farmer. According to the law of gravitation the larger body attracts the smaller with the greater force, and herein is the power of adhesion through the force of protection which develops a process, not chemical, but logical and legislative, that concentrates and consolidates wealth with power of cohesion that cannot be sundered with brickbats. any druggist tries to sell you his own cough medicine, remember he does it because he makes more money on it. Insist on having Kemp's Balsam for the throat or lungs, for there is no cough remedy so pure and none so quick to break up a cold. For influenza, soreness of the throat and tickling irritation with constant cough, Kemp's Balsam is an immediate cure. Large bottles 50c and $1. At all druggists.

MINE DISASTERS.

Within a few weeks past a number of horrible mine disasters have occurred. At the Jeansville mine near Hazleton five men were rescued after being entombed eighteen days. Thirteen of their companions perished. The Spring Hill disaster in Canada resulted in the loss of 119 lives. It was caused by an explosion in the mines, last Saturday.

The Medical Profession.

The attitude of the medical profession toward what is known as "patent medicines" is not at all unreasonable. Thousands of these nostrums are offered to the public every year. Some of them are dangerous, and most of them are futile. Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), we are all glad to say, is not classed among these nostrums. It has overcome the wholesome prejudices of physicians in all parts of the country, and some of the strongest testimonials in its behalf come from medical men who have used it in their practice, and who do not hesitate to endorse its wonderful results. This is extremely gratifying, but by no means astonishing, for every claim that is put forward in behalf of S. S. S. is based on a series of actual experiments extended over a long period of time.
