TRIBUTE TO TRAIN ROBBERS.

Bill Nye Sounds Praises of the Younger Brothers.

After the Rock Island train robbery the Youngers and Jameses scattered to avoid detection. Each took a peach basket full of gold watches, so that he would know what time it was, and started off in four different directions, Curiously enough, four of them came together, viz, Cole, Jim, and John Younger and Moore,

The four outlaws had halted in a thick grove of trees to rest their horses, swap watches, and pray, when late in the afterno a two deputy sheriffs and a constable who were looking for the train robbers suddenly came upon them. In an instant Cole Younger took in the situntion, and revolvers were drawn and levelled on the officers, says the narrator, while with terrible threats and oaths, indicating that if they did not hold their hands as high as possible they would, almost, at once, look like the z diac man in the front of the almanac, they were halted.

"Where are you going?" asked Coleman Younger in a rich Union Depot

"We are hunting for the Youngers, who robbed the train on the Rock Island Road, " said the deputy, who had once impanelled a jury, but askle from that had never mixed much with carnage.

"You were!" exclaimed Coleman Younger. "Well, d-n you, p ay!" He was almost morbid on the subject of prayer, Coleman Younger. He did much harm, I think, b. suggesting it at the most inopportune times, and showed great intolerance that way.

"What do you meau?" asked the trembling wretch,

"I mean that you have just 10 minutes by our large and choice assortment of watches to get ready for the other world, and I don't want to send any man to the other world unprepared.

He was always that way. He did not want to see a deputy sheriff die in a crude state. Ten minutes soon passed. and then the men were blindfolded. They were not far from the steep bluffs of the Missouri, some of which were 300 feet high. The three men, with their eves bandaged, were taken to a cliff and swung over it so that they caught by their hands. Below was a perpendicular wall.

"Hold on as long as you can, " said the eccentric robber, "and when you fall that will be the end of you."

With that the helpless men were left, and above the turiultuous beating of their own hearts they heard the clatter hoofs. You can dimly retreating

One day Owen was riding with his papa and mamma in the country, when saw a cow in a field with a calf by her side, and a bell on her neck. "Mamma," said he, "why does that cow wear a hell?" Mamma did not answer, her attention being otherwise enabloyed. Owen waited a little, and then said, "Is it to call the calf to dinner?"-[Youth's Companion.

A Small Boy's Ruse,-"Never throw stones at a carter when you are alone," said a small Canadian boy to the painter of his portrait whom he had taken into his confidence. "You must always have another boy with you when you throw stones at a carter." "Why?" "Because when the carter gets down to run after you, then the other boy can throw tones at the horse and start him up, and the carter will be obliged to leave you alone and go to take care of his horse. Always have another boy with you when you throw stones at a carter."-Boston Transcript.

The Highest Navigable Lake in the World.

Education is not all, says a New York Sun correspondent, that Chautauquans brag about when they speak of their summer school. They are sure to tell you that the lake, on the banks of which they gather, is the highest navigable and navigated body of water on the globe, and that it is swept by winds pure and fresh as those of the more northerly Adirondacks. Chautauqua Lake is in the extreme western corner of New York State. It is 1,300 feet above sea level. It is only eight miles from Lake Erie, but 726 feet above it. An interesting geographical point you are sure to hear is that Lake Chautauqua, although so near Lake Eric, sends its waters southward through Conewango Creek, and eventually reaches tide water in the Gulf of Mexico through the Mississippi River.

As a fact, Lake Chautauqua is not particularly pretty as a lake. It slopes are flat and unromantic and the country round has been largely stripped of trees. Nevertheless, it is getting every season more of a resort. There are half a dozen growing summering places around it. The black bass and muskalonge fishing is remarkable, and the country is full of vineyards, and netted with fine roads for driving. Jamestown is the nearest city of size. It is on the outlet, three miles below the lake, and two lines of steamers have numerous boats plying daily between these places, stopping at intermediate resorts.

"Sometimes," writes a correspondent of a trade paper, "I have had to make holes in steel that was too hard to cut or file easily. Then I make a mixture that will cut a hole. I mix one ounce of sulphate of copper, quarter of an ounce of alum, half a teaspoonful of powdered salt, a gill of vinegar, and 20 drops of nitric acid. This will make a hole.

Professor Dana concludes that during the glacial period Long Island Sound, instead of being, as it now is, an arm of the ocean 20 miles wide, was for the greater part of its length a narrow channel serving as a common trunk for many Connecticut streams and a few from Long Island. In these circumstances the supply of fresh water for the Sound river would have been so great that salt water would have barely passed the entrance of the Sound.

ABT AND ARTISTS.

A granite monument for Emma Abbott is being constructed at Quincy. It is to cost $85,000, and will be placed over the remains of the singer and her husband in the family lot at Gloucester. A pen and ink drawing, which is said to be seven feet long and six feet high, has been finished by George R. Schmidt, of New York, and placed on exhibition in the Produce Exchange of that city. It is claimed that the equestrian statue of George Washington, recently com-pleted at Westerly, R. I., for the Junior Order of United American Mechanics of western Pennsylvania, is the first one to be executed in granite in this country. The Pennsylvania Museum has recently purchased from the Koeniglichen Museum, at Berlin, and will soon have in place in the rotunda at Memorial Hall, a replica in plaster of the famous Pulpit of Niccola Pisano in the Duomo at Siena. This beautiful work, considered the most magnificent production of this great master, was erected in 1263.
