The Presence of Noise and the Absence of Cats Distinguish the Anniversary of the Nation's Independence—The Boys Perpetuate the Day.

There are two conspicuous features which go to distinguish the glorious aneversary of our national independence from any other holiday, and these are the presence of noise and the absence of The noise commences when the boys wake up. The cats commence when they wake up. We don't know en they wake up. We don't know ere the cats go. We only know they Sometimes we have thought they may dissolve in the air, and ascend into merely a speculation. Dogs are unlike bear Dogs are more like women; trustconfiding, and hoping for the best. Quite frequently they find out.

The Fourth of July was not made for the boys, but they have got hold of it. le is a boy's day as completely and thoroughly as if they had been measured for No man thinks of the day in its true agnificance. If he ponders on and saks of the heroism, the devotion, the dory of the men of '76 and is a drinking man, he will be as drunk as a fiddler within an hour, if not already there. No man cares aught for the day unless he beeps a saloon or makes ice cream or cells fireworks. If he doesn't go on a picnic he stays home and hoes his garden.

It is the boy who meets and escorts in the day, who waits upon it while it stays and sees it off at the last. As long as there are boys there will be a glorious anniversary of our national independence. When they play out it will play out. There is nothing a man forgets so easily and completely as that he was once a boy. The man who is awakened out of a sound sleep at dawn of the Fourth and swears at the noise, who is startled by an unexpected cracker or deafened by an unexpected cannon and calls the whole thing a piece of condemned foolishness that ought to be swept from the face of the earth, was once a boy himself, and the noisiest, the carliest, the latest and the most infernal of all the boys in his gang. But you suldn't think so to hear him fume and fret and scold now.

It would be amusing if it were not so painful to hear parents advise the boys to go to bed early on the night of the third, so as to get rested by a good sleep. Sleep! What an insane idea! Sleep on the night of the third! Are parents

Does a man want to trade off a leg of seh for one of wood? Does a cockroach ask for a paper of carpet tacks? Does an cyster yearn for a porous plaster? Then why should a boy want sleep on the night before the Fourth? What he wants is powder to explode, windows to rattle and an aged lady in the neighborhood to faint dead away. If he should want anything else he will mention it. If you would have him perfectly happy on this day of all days ask him not to sleep, ask him not to wash himself.

There are two seasons of the day which, by their livid contrast to each other, form epochs. One of these is at 10 a. m., the other is at 3 p. m.

Danbury at 10 a. m. presented a remarkably lively appearance. Many of the stores were closed, but this was not noticeable in the life and animation everywhere about. The main street was full of people. Teams were running to and fro. Boys were busy comparing tes, laying in further supplies, and firing off those already on hand. Folks after cream and lemons, women in white, men with baskets on picnics bent, were hurrying here and there, and the scene they made was a lively one indeed.

At 3 p. m. a radical change had swept over the village. Both nature and humanity were exhausted, and Danbury lay pulseless in the glare of the sun. The main street was comparatively deserted: the private streets were entirely so. Here and there an irrepressible boy let off a cracker or a little cannon, but these sounds, by their rarity and brevity, only made the silence more oppressive.

A wandering man, appearing as if he had just been shoved out of a graveyard, was to be seen moving aimlessly about. The stone flags and gutters were full of debris of the burnt crackers, fruit leavings, peanut shells and cigar stumps. The sun poured straight down in a blinding glare of heat upon blistering stones, gray dust of roads and yellow gravel of walks.

The town was like a man who had been kicking up Old Ned to his heart's content and had now laid down, and didn't want anybody to touch him,-From Danbury Boom. Copyrighted by Lee & Shepard; published by permission.

Knew It Was Loaded.

"Now, children," said the old man, as he took the musket from the corner in view of the assembled family, "ye all see this powder?"

- "Yes, sir," came the reply in chorus.
- "See it go into the gun." "Yes, sir."
- "An' this bullet?"
- "Yes, sir."
- "An' this cap?" "Yes, sir."
- "An' ther' ain't no doubt in the mind of any of ye?"

"No, sir." "All right," the old man concluded with a sigh of relief: "maybe we'll git over this Fourth of July 'thout an accident in the family."-Exchange.

BRIEF MENTION OF NEWS WANAMAKER IS WILLING

Ready to Testify Upon Twen-, ty-four Hours' Notice.

AN ATTACK UPON SENATOR QUAY.

Many Prominent Philadelphia Repub-Beans Think That His Leadership Is "Unscrupulous in Its Methods and Disastrous in Its Results."

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.-The Bardsley investigating committee resumed its sittings and examined a number of witnesses A communication was received from Post master General Wanamaker in which he offered to appear before the committee at any time upon twenty-four hours' notice, and a reply to the request made to Lawyer Robert Alexander asking that John Bardsley be again allowed to appear before the committee for examination was also received. Postmaster General Wanamaker's letter was as follows:

Mr. Wanamaker's Letter.

Chairman Van Osten:
DEAR SIR—It seems to be thought by some that certain evidence offered at the last meeting of your committee is not in harmony with the testimony delivered by me when I appeared the testimony delivered by me when I appeared before you as a witness. I assume that your committee fully understand the matter. If, however, there is any explanation wanted from me I will be glad at twenty four hours' notice to meet any member of the committee and explain any or every item of my statement or attend at any meeting of which I have notice. Yours respectfully, John Wanamaker.

Bardsley Would Reply in Writing.

Lawyer Alexander's reply to the request of the committee to further question ex-City Treasurer John Bardsley was that his client would reply in writing to any question which might be sent to him in writing, and would in that way give the com-mittee all the information in his power. As his client was in prison and practically convicted, he did not think it would be proper to allow him to appear in person before the committee.

The first witness examined by the committee was S. P. Durham, of Trenton, N. J., the president of the Mechanics' National bank of that city. He testified that H. H. Yard had been a depositor at his bank for nearly eighteen years.

The Wanamaker Bank Stock. Certificate No. 450, for 200 shares of Keystone bank stock issued to John Wana maker and with the power of attorney signed by him, was placed in the bank by H. H. Yard. It was placed there as collateral security for a loan, but President Durham declined to state the amount. Certificate No. 907 of Keystone bank stock issued to A. L. Dingles, was also taken as collateral by the bank and money loaned to Yard. The officers of the bank themselves suggested that the stock be transferred and held in the name of Scudder and Durham, as they believed they would be better protected. He had no knowledge that Yard acted for anybody else. The money had not yet been paid al-though the bank had made a formal demand for it. The bank officers had never in any way communicated with John Wanamaker in relation to the stock.

For Mr. Wanamaker's Accommodation. Effingham P. Morris, president of the Girard Trust company, testified that his company had never loaned any money to John Bardsley or discounted notes for him Certificate 450 for 200 shares of Keystone bank stock had at one time been in the possession of the trust company, being a part of a lot of 1,000 shares on which the company loaned John Wanamaker money on March 8, 1886. The loan was called in on Oct. 24, 1889. His company loaned money to the Keystone bank on three occasions Jan. 6, Nov. 9 and Nov. 10, 1890. The loan was made to President Marsh, who explained that it was for Wanamaker's accommodation and gave as collateral security 1,461 shares of common and 243 shares of preferred stock of the Electric Trust company.

Howard Spencer Jones, to whose name some of the Wanamaker stock was trans-ferred, testified that he had been in Wanamaker's employ for twenty-seven years. He said that he knew nothing of the two certificates which stood in his name beyond the fact that he remembered signing the transfer at Wanamaker's request

Rankin, in whose name some of the cer tificates were transferred, he said, was a youth employed in Wanamaker's office at one time. A number of officials of na-tional banks and trust companies were also called, but they all testified that their institution had never made any loan to John Bardsley, discounted his paper or borrowed money from him.

Senator Quay Criticised. An address to the citizens of Pennsylvania has been issued signed by 150 of Phila delphia's most influential business and professional men, all of whom are Repub licans, to point out the causes of the deg radation of public affairs in the state and the necessary steps toward improvement. Senator Quay's management of the Republican interests is criticised. In the address Mr. Quay's leadership is characterized as unscrupulous in its methods and disastrous in its results. Quay is held responsible for the overwhelming disaster the party met with last fall. His lieutenants in the legislature are charged with committing a stupid political blun-der by their hostility to the ballot reform bill and with having violated the express pledges of the party and openly de-fied the will of the overwhelming majority of their constituents.

"These things," the address says, "have found a fitting culmination in the robbery of the city and state treasuries. As the party will soon be called upon to nominate a state and city treasurer and an auditor general, the nominations must be given to honest men or the party will meet with another defeat. In the presence of these facts Pennsylvania Republicans must not hesitate as to their duty or be in doubt as to their course. It is a crisis, and it can only be met by the retirement of Mr Quay. More competent and worthy leadership is necessary, and an unflinching de-mand must be made for the retirement of these men from the places which they have disgraced.' All persons throughout the state in sympathy with this movement are requested to address lock box No. 789 Philadelphia ostoffice. The appeal is signed by John H. Converse, George Burnham, John T. Bailey & Co., Rev. Joseph May, Rev. Alfred J. P. McClure, Rev. J. Ellott Wright, Rev. Stephen W. Dana, D. D., James E. Rhoades, M. D., Henry Hartshorne, M. D., and others. The Trial of Yard.

At the trial of Henry H. Yard for con-spiracy with Bardsley and others to secure public moneys the question whether the sub-committee of finance had authority to subpœna Yard and whether he is com-pelled to answer its interrogatories was
