A Real Balsam is Kemp's Balsam

The dictionary says, "A balsam is a thick, pure aromatic substance flowing from trees." Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs is the only cough medicine that is a real balsam. Many thin, watery cough remedies are called balsams, but such are not. Look through a bottle of Kemp's Balsam and notice what a pure, thick preparation it is. If you cough use Kemp's Balsam. At all druggists'. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.

I have had catarrh for twenty years and used all kinds of remedies without relief. Mr. Smith, druggist, of Little Falls, recommended Ely's Cream Balm. The effect of the first application was magical, it allayed the inflammation and the next morning my head was as clear as a bell. I am convinced its use will effect a permanent cure. It is soothing and pleasant, and I strongly urge its use by all sufferers.—Geo. Terry, Little Falls, N. Y.

Don't miss your chance, while at the fair, to get a pair of perfectly fitting glasses, either at J. G. Wells' jewelry store or at his optical exhibit on the fair grounds.

The following letters are held at the Bloomsburg, Pa., post office and will be sent to the dead letter office Oct. 13, 1891.

A PARADOX.

We shall always wonder why men constantly complain of physical ills, and continually act so as to increase them. Notwithstanding everybody knows that dyspepsia, skin diseases, rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, &c. are from impure blood, produced by ill living, the diseases still exist. The next best thing is to purify the blood by Cactus Blood Cure and neutralize results.

G. A. McKelvy, Druggist, Bloomsburg Pa. J. G. Wells has an elegant assortment of solid silver ware suitable for wedding gifts. His windows attract much attention.

Only one flight of Stairs leading to Roshon's Gallery.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Ben Butler's Eye.

NO MAN HAS EVER BEEN CARICATURED MORE THAN HE.

Ben Butler has probably been caricatured more in his day than any other public man ever was. No humorous cartoon has been made of public events for the past twenty years that did not have Butler in it in some shape or other. This is in part owing to the fact that "they reckon ill who leave him out" of anything, and in part to the fact that his countenance is so peculiar as to be easy to caricature. "First a dog, then a boy, then Butler," used to be the course of drawing that a famous cartoonist recommended to his pupils.

The first rude pictures of him appeared in a weekly paper in Massachusetts forty years ago, at the time when he was running for the state legislature on the ten hours ticket. The picture represented a slender young man with a whisky bottle in one hand and a blazing torch in the other, setting fire to the public buildings of Lowell at the head of a mob. This was because Butler had said in a speech: "By the living Jehovah, if one man is driven from his employment by these mill-owners because of his vote, I will lead you to make Lowell what it was twenty-five years ago,—a sheep pasture and a fishing-place; and I will commence by applying the torch to my own house. Let them come on."

But it was during the war, when the doughty general was ruling the captured city of New Orleans with a hand of iron, that pen and pencil were all too feeble for the Southern papers to portray their hatred of him. "Beast Butler" was their most common epithet, and he was caricatured as a malformed and one-eyed gorilla indulging in the most horrible brutalities. Butler at this time wore a straggling set of whiskers which grew chiefly from under his chin and outward, and could not be called handsome.

General Butler's famous "Order No. 28," which declared in substance that any woman of New Orleans who, by word or deed, insulted a Union soldier, should be considered as a woman of the town and dealt with accordingly, created the wildest wrath. The order was so effective that no arrests were ever made under it, but its fame became so widespread that even the London Punch cartooned its maker.

Later on, after "Brick" Pomeroy started the famous "spoons" story, the cartoonists took it up and he was drawn with spoons sticking from every pocket, a spoon for a sword, spoons over his eyes, shouldering a spoon, and in all sorts of spoon attitudes. This "spoons" story, by the way, is one which Butler will tell of in his book that is now being published, and which is having so tremendous a sale, and it is said that he won't leave enough of the man who started the story to take up in a spoon.

A staring-eyed Butler in a big bottle was the cartoon outcome of Grant's remark, afterwards apologized for, that the doughty general appeared to be "bottled-up" between the Appomattox and the James in 1864.

But it was after the war closed and Butler's congressional and political career began, that he was caricatured week in and week out. Those were the days of Nast and Matt Morgan, and the general's political eccentricities were a mine of material for them. He was drawn in every possible form, from a hen to a hyena, but always was recognizable. He was cartooned on the other side of the ocean, and his peculiar features became known in even the French and German comic papers.

Even at the present day, when he has passed the three-score and ten allotted to man, no cartooned group of public men is complete without him, and his frog caricature in Puck is to be seen every few weeks.

All the caricaturing to which he has been subjected, has never ruffled him in the least, and he laughs as hilariously over a really pointed cartoon in which he is made to figure as does his bitter enemy.

THE BEST APERIENT

In modern pharmacy is, undoubtedly, Ayer's Cathartic Pills. Except in extreme cases, physicians have abandoned the use of drastic purgatives, and recommend a milder, but no less effective medicine. The favorite is Ayer's Pills, the superior medicinal virtues of which have been certified to under the official seals of state chemists, as well as by hosts of eminent doctors and pharmacists. No other pill so well supplies the demand of the general public for a safe, certain, and agreeable family medicine.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever used; and in my judgment no better general remedy was

Ever Devised

I have used them in my family and caused them to be used among my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge many cases of the following complaints have been completely and permanently cured by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above.—J. O. Wilson, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health.—Wm. H. DeLuccett, Dorset, Ontario.
