A STIRRING BUSINESS.

Yes, a regular revolution business in which one sale helps to make another. The people make us stir around to fill orders, and evidently believe we do a fair square business. Seeing we have such a large patronage too, convinces others they better try us, and so the trade increases. We're happy over it, and so are all our customers. The demand for our bread, cakes and candies (our own manufacture), is greater than ever, but we are ready to supply the demand. As the holidays are now coming on you will be thinking of Clear Toys. Give us a trial on these goods.

AMOS W. DREIBELHIS,
Trustee

A Fisherman's People City.

He sat in the hotel office all by himself, apparently in the brownest kind of a brown study, and he did not respond for several moments after a friend had taken a chair by his side and slapped him on the leg. When he did speak, he said: "Ever happen to go along the river where the wholesale fish dealers are?" "Oh, yes, lots of times," answered the other man. "You've seen those fish cars there? Hold a ton apiece, don't they?" "More'n that, some of 'em."

"How many of those cars do you suppose come into Detroit every day, full of fish?" "Oh, there's probably 50. I don't know but more."

"That's a hundred thousand pounds of fish."

"Yes."

"Whew! Toledo has 'em the same way, eh?"

"Yes, and Cleveland and Buffalo and Sandusky—Sandusky has more'n all the rest—and Milwaukee gets 'em and Chicago. Why, good gracious, they come into every town on the lakes."

"Millions and millions and millions of pounds of fish. All kinds of fish, too, I suppose."

"Yes, all kinds."

"Does seem as if the water must fairly swarm with 'em, doesn't it?"

"Then how is it?—the thoughtful man straightened up and shifted round so as to look the other man square in the face—'How is it that I go out fishing, sit all day from the first streak of dawn till the evening shadows fall, and catch just one three pound bass? Yes, and by thunder, get called a liar when I tell of that! How is it, I say?'"

He continued to glare at the other man for a moment, but receiving no answer he lit a cigar and relapsed into a brown study.—Detroit Free Press.

A Handy Remedy for Alcoholism.

A writer in the London Lancet directs attention to the fact that the most recent remedy for alcoholism is petroleum or paraffine oil, to which the notice of the St. Petersburg medical authorities was called by an accident. It appears that a laboring man, who had been drinking heavily for four days and nights, entered in a complete state of intoxication a grocer's shop. Unnoticed by the shopkeeper he staggered up to an open cask of petroleum and began drinking from it. With difficulty he was dragged away from the cask, and, seeing the large quantity of petroleum he imbibed, it was expected that he would fall down senseless and be seriously ill. Instead of this, however, it is related that the petroleum had cured him of all the ill effects of overdrinking, the nausea, unsteadiness of gait, and headache disappearing as if by magic. In fact, it is stated he left the shop sober and quite another man.

The Detroit Free Press says: "If a boy 15 years of age should be left 10 acres of land in Michigan, and his guardian should cover it with hickory trees, the income of the boy when he came to be 30 years old would be from $9,000 to $11,000 clean cash off his little farm."

SORE THROAT

Bronchitis, colds, coughs, asthma, and even consumption, in the early stages, yield to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Singers, actors, auctioneers, public speakers, clergymen, teachers, lecturers, and all who are liable to disorder of the vocal organs, find a sure remedy in this wonderful and well-known preparation. As an emergency medicine, in cases of croup, whooping cough, etc., it should be in every household.

"Two years ago I suffered severely from an attack of sore throat

And Bronchitis

It seemed as if I could not survive, all the usual remedies proving of no avail. At last I thought of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after taking two bottles of this medicine I was restored to health."—Chas. Gambini, Smith's Ranch, Sonoma Co., Cal.

"There is nothing better for coughs than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I use no other preparation."—Annie S. Butler, Providence, R. I.

W. H. Graf & Co., Druggists, Carson, Iowa, certify that all throat and lung troubles are speedily

Cured By Using

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It leads all others. "In January, 1889, I was taken down with measles and scarlet fever, and exposing myself too soon, caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs. I was forced to take to my bed and was so ill that the doctors despaired of my recovery, supposing me to be in quick consumption. Change of climate was recommended, but I began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and soon found relief. After using several bottles, I was cured, so that I am now as well and rugged as ever."—John Dillander, Cranesman of Steam Shovel, G. S. & S. F. E. R. Co., Justin, Texas.

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Red Neckties.

A PECULIAR CRAZE THAT IS RAGING IN SAN FRANCISCO.

On the white shirt front of nearly every man in San Francisco, young or old, who thinks he is in the fashion, or wants to be, blazes a red necktie. And they are the reddest kind of red, too. A subdued maroon or a dark wine-colored scarf is not popular at all. It must be sanguine, brilliant, glaring, brick-dust scarlet.

It's astonishing how red neckties and red handkerchiefs have caught the town. They arrived here about a week ago. Now everybody has one and there is rivalry between the beaux to see who can get one of the brightest hue to tie around his throat. Up to date Jessie Marks holds the palm, but there are several frequenters of cigar stores who are giving him a hard struggle for the supremacy.

The first thing a man does now when he gets in town from Mulpitas or Los Banos is to buy a red necktie. After that he is satisfied for a while. Then while his favorite barber mixes a seductive and insinuating cocktail, he admires his new purchase in the glass and asks the bartender what he thinks of it. Red neckties are irresistible.

It doesn't make any difference whether a red necktie becomes a man struck by the craze. He thinks it does, and that's enough. And then the gentlemanly clerk at the furnishing goods store tells him how well he looks in it, and his barber flatters him a little more, for it is every man's ambition to wear a necktie, no matter how badly it becomes him. Some have strength of character enough to resist the temptation when they know that they must appear particularly hideous, but with his own inclination and the persuasion of the haberdasher against a man, what is he to do?

You can get a big stew of oysters and a hot cup of coffee for 25c. at House's.
