The Baker Ballot Law.

ITS CONSTITUTIONALITY BEING T BEFORE A SCRANTON COURT

The case of Ezra H. Ripple others against the Lackawanna Commissioners, in which the tiff prays for an injunction rest the Commissioners from com-with the requirements of the i ballot law, was argued recent fore Judges Archbald, Connets Gunster. City Solicitor Bura P. P. Smith represented the pr County Solicitor Knapp and Q K. Binney, secretary of the Reform Association of Philad appeared for the county,

The attacks made upon the l went to prove that it was unce tional. First, because it is legislation, inasmuch as it do provide for elections to vote questions of increase of con debt, etc., and is therefore ng form. Second, it does not and all voters alike, for it divides the all voters alike, for it divides the to three classes, the first being s who belong to a part that cas three per cent. Of the total vot second being those who belong party that cast less than 3 per ce the total vote, and the third s body of independent votes who is no party allegiance. The law lates differently for each of these es and is therefore, not a up law. Again it was held that the is unconstitutional for the reas confers judicial powers on mine officers; conveys legislative powe officers' organizations and b possessing neither legal nor ce existence; it is uncertain in its p ions, application and operation, the subject of the act is not distated in its title.

The defense set by Mr. Binner Mr. Knapp was that the law is feetly right, proper and constitute and a great public blessing with it would be a crime to interfere. rebuttal they claimed that the in not special in the sense indicated the opposing counsel, and that its vides for all elections, the provi being to the effect that election decide questions of increase of a porate debt, adopting a city char etc., are by the direction of the G stitution conducted in a like me to the municipal elections for wh the Baker law provides. Mr. Bar spoke for two hours, during th time he made a full exposition di ballot law. The Court took papers and reserved its decision.
