Victoria's Melancholy.

HER TIME OCCUPIED IN VISITING PLACES HALLOWED BY THE MEMORY OF HER CONSORT.

From Balmoral comes the news that Queen Victoria has another melancholy mood, so much so that her intimate attendants are deeply concerned. Her Majesty had one of those fits about four Summers ago and spent nearly her whole time at Balmoral in visiting the various places where she used to go on picnics with the Prince Consort. She is going through the same programme on this occasion and has been even more solemn about it than before.

The Queen's grief for her consort has evidently not been weakened by time. She always keeps a vacant chair on her right at the private table at Windsor Castle and wherever else she goes, and it would be high treason in her eyes for anyone to occupy that

The New York Commercial Advertiser says in a recent editorial :-

"There is no spot in this country so attractive to those who have patriotic emotions, and who honor heroic deeds, as the quiet little town in Southern Pennsylvania, known as Gettysburg, which the great battle of the Civil War has made historic for all time. Unlike Waterloo, this field is marked by monuments which tell every detail of the struggle. Nearly four hundred of them mark the spots where the Federal forces fought and won everlasting glory. Many of these monuments are genuine works of art. In fact, this famous battle-field is a grand out-door National Gallery of Art-heroic Art. Nothing like it can be seen on either hemisphere. Twenty miles of roads have been laid out on the field, and a million dollars' worth of bronze and marble may be seen in a day. As an object for Summer Excursions there is no such spot on the Continent. The scenery about Gettysburg is beautiful and full of repose. Its hotels are good, its people hospitable and appreciative, and the Reading Railroad has made the journey thither comfortable and even luxurious.
