WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22, 1892.

Secretary of State Foster gives indications of having an attack of "Jingoism." No one is surprised; the attack has been expected ever since he entered the Cabinet. It is part and parcel of the scheme to get up a foreign war scare as a bid for votes for Harrison and Reid. The only difficulty has been in finding a weak country that would give the administration a chance to buily it until after election. Turkey, which is certainly weak enough to be bullied by any government, is the victim selected, the special occasion being the recent burning of the House of Dr. Bartlett, an American Missionary in Asia minor. Secretary Foster admits that similar troubles have occurred before in the dominion of the Sultan, but, a national campaign being now pending, he proceeds to figuratively chew soap, in order to foam at the mouth while he informs the wide- eyed newspaper man, who visits the Department of State, in his heaviest tragedy voice that "I have cabled a demand for indemnity and for the punishment of the guilty parties, and the United States cruisers Newark and Bennington will years a student in Boston, is giving be ordered to Turkish waters to sup-lessons on piano and violin. Both port this demand, which this government proposes to enforce at all hazards." No fears need be entertained of a war with the sublime Port Secretary Foster's demand is like that made by Rudini, the Italian premier, upon this government just after the New Orleans massacre intended solely for home consumption and effect.

The acting Attorney General has declined to give an official construction of the new eight hour law, which the acting Secretary of the Treasury requested, on the ground that he cannot legally do so until the question comes before him in connection with the administration of the law. There is lots of politics in the eight hour law or rather in the constuction which legal officials of the government may be pleased to put upon it, which account for the refusal of the temporary head of the Department of justice to give an official opinion on the subject at this time; the Presidential election is too near at hand, and the g. o. p. has already lost too many voters to take any more chances.

The republicans are raising the cry of "no money," with which Senator Quay tried unsuccessfully to bam-boozle the democrats in 1888. The dodge did not work then and it will not work now. Every intelligent man, whatever his political opinion, knows that the republican party can always riase a big corruption fund among the protected manufacturers, who know only too well that the enormous profits which legislation as the McKinley tariff law enables them to pocket at the expense of the people are entirely dependent upon the success of the republican party. Senator Quay started the cry of "no money" hoping thereby to detract public The well known horseman has attention from the corrupt use of opened a fashionable livery in connec- money by the republican National tion with his boarding stable at the committee of which he was then Exchange Hotel Stables, where fine chairman, and Mr. Harrison's lackeys, turnouts can be obtained, single or who are this year running that comdouble. Let the fact not be lost sight of by any democrat that if at the Exchange Hotel will receive money lavishly spent will carry the prompt attention. Representative Holmen, who has been sick ever since the adjournment of Congress, is little better and hopes to be able to go to Indiana in a few days. Overwork during the session and just afterwards is what broke Mr. Holman down.

There is a very decided difference of opinion among the democrats here as to the wisdom of the national committee in deciding to open a branch headquarters at Chicago. Of course they all sincerely wish for good results from the innovation, but many express the fear that they may not come.

The Navy department may find it-self the center of a great scandal if it does not satisfactorily explain why the style of steel armor plates now be-The land is as free as the wind that blows.

It is charged that the change was made at Carnegie's request, and experts say that it largely determines the defensive quality of the armor. The acting secretary of the Navy attempts to explain it by saying that the style of armor called for by the original specification could not be made in this country. That fact was very well known when the contracts were made but the contractors agreed to put in plants to make it. This they have not done. A better ex-planation will have to be given or Congress will have to investigate. It is probable that a considerable portion of the illegal profits of this change has already found its way into the Treasury of the National Re-publican committee.
