The Tariff As I See It.

It has seemed strange to me, that farmers, mechanics and laboring men can be induced to vote with the party that favors a protective tariff. I do not think that either of those classes could be induced so to vote, if they clearly understood the workings of a tariff, and how it effected their interests.

I shall make the bold assertion, that there never has been a tariff bill framed, never can be, consequently never will be one framed, that will bear upon and benefit alike all classes and conditions of our citizens. Hence every tariff bill, no matter by whom framed, is more or less unjust; and the higher the tariff the greater the injustice to those who are not directly or indirectly benefited by it.

The only ground of justification for a revenue tariff is based upon the fact, that every citizen is benefited by our federal union, and the laws which within the constitution are necessary to provide for the general welfare, and are therefore under obligations to bear a fair share of the expense of the government.

It may not be amiss to notice here, that any law that is calculated by its terms or by its effect to benefit a few at the expense or detriment of the many, is not only unjust, but is unwarranted by our federal compact. And such is every protective tariff. Farmers and laboring men are not directly or indirectly benefited by such tariff.

I am aware that the advocates of protection claim that it raises wages and increases the price of the farmer's produce. They have a theory to that effect, but the facts contradict their theory. Farmers of middle age can easily remember when their produce brought more than at present. Wages were higher, and they could more easily pay their needed help. Tariff was no higher, in fact the average duty was lower; hence we must conclude that the law of supply and demand regulates the price of each.

If a tariff for revenue were just, and that were the most economical way of raising money, why not adopt it to raise money for our municipal expenses?

Let us suppose or imagine a township or county which would form on a small scale a case parallel to that of our federal government. To do this there would have to be within its limits a few manufacturing industries sufficient to supply the needs of the community; but a large majority of the citizens should be farmers, mechanics and laboring men. Let us suppose that to defray the expenses of this community, such as making roads, keeping up schools and paying officers who directed the affairs of the community, they should impose a duty or tariff upon all or nearly all imports brought into the district; particularly upon all manufactured articles that would compete with those manufactured by the infant industries operated within the supposed district.

Would not those operators raise the price of their wares all or nearly all, that their protection would warrant? And would not the citizens soon find out that they were paying the duty themselves? And would not the farmers if they were raising largely in excess of the home market, learn that a duty on their cereals could not benefit them? And would not all who were not directly benefited by the protection, soon make another very important discovery? viz: That they were not only paying the duty themselves, but that they were paying more than their fair share of their municipal expenses, besides paying large prices for manufactured articles in order that the operators of those infant industries may roll in wealth, whilst they must work early and late to secure the wherewithal to keep body and soul together.

A little experience like the above supposed case would convince the most stupid person, that the foreign importer does not pay the duty. I am aware that protectionists claim this, and they find plenty of men innocent enough to believe it.

Now I pity any man who is verdant Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

enough to be deluded by such sophistry. And yet he is perhaps happier than his more intelligent or better informed neighbor who is chafing under the knowledge that he is being misled to fill the coffers of some pampered millionaire.

Another claim set up by these protectionists, is that a tariff does not increase the price of goods or machinery manufactured here, that in a very short time they can and do sell even cheaper than they could without the protection does not protect or that our manufacturers do not need the protection.

But it is not true. Protection does increase prices whenever and wherever trusts are formed to break down competition, as every manufacturer and every intelligent person who has taken the trouble to inform himself very well knows.

It is true that many of our manufactured articles are cheaper now, than they were earlier in our history. Cotton goods are much cheaper than they were in the days of Mrs. Washington, when she spun by hand the cotton for her own clothing; but the increase of tariff has not been the cause of the reduction in price. If tariff made low prices, our manufacturers and mill owners would shout themselves hoarse in favor of free trade, or they are far more self sacrificing than they have credit for being.

A FARMER.

During Fair, Best Photographs and Crayons at M'Killip Bros. Over Clark & Son's store.

New railroad talk has been revived here the past few days by the appearance of an engineer corps in town, and speculation is rife as to whom they represent. Opinion is evenly divided as to whether they are here in the interest of the Pennsylvania or Lehigh & Eastern, but it is more probable that they represent the recently chartered Lehigh & Western, whose route is from the Lehigh at White Haven, to the Susquehanna near Bloomsburg or Berwick. They are running a line now between the two rivers, but whether they will go any farther than that no one seems to know. Future developments are anxiously awaited.—White Haven Journal.

Gen. Reed's Refreshing Drolleries.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed is always refreshingly droll, and usually refreshingly frank. His speech at Cumberland Mills, Me., was substantially a eulogy of taxation. The seed of this republic was sown in jealousy of taxation. Mr. Reed says, "There is no other way in which money is appropriated whereby so much good is done as through taxation." Our forefathers asserted that taxation without representation is tyranny. Mr. Reed is well acquainted with the fact that only one person in twenty in this country is engaged in a protected industry, and therefore represented in the direct benefits of tariff taxes. Yet he extols this kind of taxation above all others.—Boston Globe.

We'll Have It Too.

THE BUFFALO FIZZLE.

The National Republican League Convention Was a Flat Failure.

The convention of the National League of Republican clubs at Buffalo, preparations for which had been in progress for months, and at which 10,000 delegates and spectators were expected, was the greatest fizzle of this campaign to date.

When the convention was called to order the gathering was about the size of a club meeting in a country village and just about as demonstrative.

The leaders of the movement seemed paralyzed with astonishment, and apparently were not certain "where they were at." In this particular their minds were relieved by Judge Haight, who in welcoming them to Buffalo said:

"You are upon the northern boundary of our government at the foot of Erie, by the side of the Niagara, overlooking the queen's dominions. You are in the city of Buffalo."

Mr. Whitlaw Reid's newspaper was greatly depressed by the small attendance at the opening session, and accounted for it in part by the childlike and bland excuse that "the delegations from some states were lured off to Niagara falls," as if that wonderful freak of nature could draw zealous Republicans away from McKinley, Clarkson and such great lights of their party. The same newspaper says that later on the attendance was swollen to "about 500 delegates," and adds that General Clarkson said there would have been twice as many but for the "cholera scare."

It's no use to lie about it. The truth is the convention was a flat failure, and General Clarkson was so cast down that he declined to deliver his carefully prepared address. Following the great fizzle at Woodside park in Ohio, the failure of the Republican and People's party annex to carry Arkansas and the deep slumps in Maine and Vermont, this wretched failure at Buffalo must give the whole Republican party the blues.

The Harrison campaign has opened in a way that foreshadows another Democratic tidal wave.—New York World.

TWICE ELECTED GOVERNOR.

Judge Morris Debauded of His Rights on Two Occasions.

For the third time Judge Luzon B. Morris has been nominated by the Connecticut Democrats for the office of governor. He has been elected by a plurality of votes on both previous occasions, but on account of the ridiculous provision requiring a clear majority, he has failed to receive the office to which the people evidently wish to elevate him. This time, however, he is expected to be elected by a handsome majority.

Judge Morris was born at Newtown Conn., April 16, 1827, and was educated at Yale college, graduating in 1854. He was admitted to the bar in 1856, and has practiced in New Haven county ever since. He has been elected to the state house of representatives for six terms—first in 1855, and then in 1856, 1870, 1876 1880 and 1881. In 1874 he was elected to the state senate, and served as president pro tem. of the body. Mr. Morris in 1857 was elected probate judge for the New Haven probate, and served in that capacity for six years. He was appointed by the legislature of the state of Connecticut in 1885 as chairman of the commission to revise the probate laws of the state, which revision was adopted and is now in force. He has also held numerous local offices.

A Cowardly Campaign Disclaimer.

And now the Republican press has the impudence to inform us that the fore bill is dead. Put this down for what it is—a cowardly campaign disclaimer. The bill was not dead when the Republican party had undivided control of the government; it was alive and threatening. If the Republicans are returned to power it will be revived with magical suddenness. Before a just people the Republican leaders dare not avow their intentions in a presidential campaign but the will and purpose are there, as experience has proved.—Rochester (N. Y.) Herald.

Let Harrison Bounce Raun.

If Benjamin Harrison is the friend of the soldier, as he claims to be, he will bounce Commissioner Raun, of the pension bureau, the man who has brought the entire pension system into disrepute by his mismanagement of that institution. Raun has sold his office time and again, and the president never has a word to say in objection.—Holyoke (Mass.) Democrat.

A Diluted Tribute to Workingmen.

President Harrison, in his diluted tribute to the workingmen of the country, says that they will settle the tariff question by the calm light of their November fireside. Can Mr. Harrison tell what, or about what, the price of coal will be when these November firesides are basking in their high-priced-but-we-must-have-it calmness?—Detroit Free Press.

Jefferson Was No Protectionist.

As secretary of state and a member of the cabinet Mr. Jefferson prepared two papers in which are embodied his theories of the constitutional rights of congress and his ideas concerning the commercial principles which congress should observe. The demand for free trade has not been made with greater emphasis.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

To Shove Harrison to the Rear.

Mr. Blaine thinks the way for Republicans to win is to push protection and reciprocity to the front. This means that they should shove Mr. Harrison and his botch administration to the rear.—Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.
