Time Honored Cosmetics.

From London Society.

The Chinese women, who have coarse hard hair, though beautiful, use a curious mixture of honey and flour to cleanse and soften it. The Creoles in the Island of Cuba use a decoction of rosemary leaves, which they pretend softens and cleanses the hair.

In Southern America the women use the root of the soap tree boiled in water. The yolk of an egg is considered a good thing, but the hair must be washed well afterwards. A very excellent thing is a decoction of quinine or Peruvian bark. Take half a pint of good spirits, in which dissolve a quarter of an ounce of sulphate of quinine, close this tightly in a bottle and then leave for a few days, shaking it occasionally.

Afterward add a pint of rum and an ounce of powdered Peruvian bark; leave this for a week or ten days, then filter through blotting paper, and then unite the two mixtures together and use to wash the roots of the hair with a sponge, half the quinine mixture and half water.

Kellar will be the attraction at the Opera House, Friday evening, and everyone should reserve their seats in advance, as we are sure the Opera House will not hold the people. Mr. Dentler sold One Hundred tickets the first day. Prof. Kellar will be pleased with his house here, and the way seats are selling shows that good attractions will pack the house. The children can enjoy this performance and no one will regret taking his or her little one to see the marvelous tricks performed by this great magician and his company of clever artists. This will be the only time Prof. Kellar will appear here and don't let anything stand in the way of your going Friday night.

Prof. Kellar and his company of twelve artists, with a car load of mechanical appliances will arrive on the Phila. & Reading road about twelve o'clock noon Friday. Don't forget the date and reserve your seat at once at Dentler's shoe store.

Stumbling on Fortunes.

HOW GOLD MINES HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED BY MERE CHANCE.

From the Boston Globe.

Gold was discovered in California in 1848, and in Colorado in 1858. The discovery was accidental in both cases, and the fact created the impression that mines were "lying about loose." Adventurers drifted about in hopes of stumbling upon a mine. Here are some instances of lucky finds:

Three men while looking for gold in California discovered the dead body of a man who evidently had been "prospecting."

"Poor fellow," said one of the trio, "he has passed in his checks."

"Let's give him a decent burial," said another. "Some wife or mother will be glad if ever she knows it."

They began to dig a grave. Three feet below the surface they discovered signs of gold.

The stranger was buried in another place, and where they had located a grave they opened a gold mine.

An adventurer who had drifted to Leadville awoke one morning without food or money. He went out and shot a deer, which, in its dying agonies, kicked up the dirt and disclosed signs of gold. The poor man staked out a "claim," and opened one of the most profitable claims ever worked in Leadville.

"Dead Man's Claim," the name given to another rich mine in Leadville, was discovered by a broken down miner while digging a grave.

A miner died when there was several feet of snow on the ground. His comrades laid his body in a snow bank and hired a man for $4 to dig a grave.

The gravedigger, after three days' absence, was found digging a mine instead of a grave. While excavating he had struck gold.

An unsuccessful Australian miner went up and down Colorado for several months "prospecting" for gold and finding none.

One day he sat down upon a stone, and while musing over his hard luck aimlessly struck a stone with his pick. He chipped off a piece and sprang to his feet. The chip was rich gold quartz.

He hurried into the little town of Rosita, and went to the assay office, where a teamster had just dumped a load of wood. He agreed to saw the wood to pay for assaying his chipped sample.

The result of the assay sent him back to his "claim." When he had taken out of it $500,000 he sold the mine for $300,000 in cash and $1,000,000 in stock.

Piles of people have piled up De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve and cure them. W. S. Rishton, Druggist. 10-14-17

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30, 1893.

President-elect Cleveland has long ago shown that he possesses the rare faculty of being able to see and to do the right thing at the right time and place. Therefore it was not surprising that his telegram of condolence should have been among the first received by the widow of James G. Blaine, the American statesman. Although differing widely in many of their ideas there was one bond of sympathy between them, one prominent trait in the character of each of them that the other could admire without forgetting their political difference, and that was the intense Americanism, which was the keystone of Mr. Blaine's great popularity, and which makes Grover Cleveland the most popular living American, to-day. And therein lies a lesson that should not be lost upon men ambitious of popularity and power. There never was a period in the history of our country when sturdy, uncompromising Americanism was more highly appreciated by the masses than it is now.

Mr. Blaine's funeral, which was held to-day at the Church of the Covenant, was by request of his family made as simple as possible. The pall bearers were all intimate personal friends of the deceased and the services at the church were confined to the reading of the Presbyterian burial ritual and a prayer by the pastor. With the exception of an organ dirge before and after the short services, played by Walter Damosch, the husband of one of Mr. Blaine's daughters, there was no music. Not one-tenth of the people who wanted to attend the funeral, could get in the church, and a very large crowd remained outside during the services and afterwards followed the remains to Oak Hill cemetery where the interment was made. Mr. Blaine having requested that he be buried there by the side of son Walker who died suddenly several years ago. There was much disappointment here because the funeral was not public, and at the Capitol. Congress adjourned from Saturday to two o'clock this afternoon to give its members an opportunity to attend the funeral, and all of the Government buildings were closed to-day.

Unless there is great change in the present opinion of the democratic Senators nothing short of a cloture rule, which the Senate refused to adopt when the Force bill was under consideration, will enable the republicans to confirm the nomination of the republican successor to the late Justice Lamar, whom Mr. Harrison is said to be determined to nominate. The democratic Senators are unanimous in the belief that this vacancy should be filled by a democrat and they will not allow a vote to be taken on the nomination of a republican unless compelled to do so by a cloture rule.

The House committee on Rules has set aside February 9 and 10 for consideration of the Andrews' bill for the repeal of the Sherman Silver law. The general impression seems to be that a vote will not be reached, although a number of the friends of the bill express confidence in its being passed.

If Postmaster General Wannamaker holds the reception to the employees of his department which was to have been held at his residence to-night the invitations to which were withdrawn on account of the death of Mr. Blaine he will retire from office with the personal will of nine-tenths of the white employees of the department. The reason is not difficult to locate. In sending out invitations for the reception he included all of the negro laborers, watchmen, messengers, and scrub women on the department pay roll, and the white clerks, particularly the females, object to associating on terms of social equality with the negroes.

Considerable interest is felt as to what position the administration will take on the petition of the provisional Hawaiian government for annexation to the United States. Whatever view Mr. Harrison may take of the matter it is hardly probably that any action will be taken by the present Congress.

The House Ways and Means committee is putting in some hard work studying and digesting the Treasury statement furnished by Secretary Foster last week, and Senator Carlisle has taken a copy of it over to President-elect Cleveland.

Senator Carey has given notice of two amendments to the House bill for the admission of New Mexico: one including Utah and Oklahoma in accordance with a decision of the republican caucus, and another including those two and Arizona. Unless the plans of the republican caucus are changed it is very doubtful whether any vote will be reached on this question at the present session.

The election of Representative Mitchell, of Wisconsin, who was chairman of the democratic Congressional committee in the last campaign, to the Senate is gratifying to democrats here, and they regard the promotion as deserved.
