IS CRINOLINE COMING?

HOW SOME FASHION AUTHORITIES VIEW THE POSSIBILITY.

The engrossing question among women continues to be, Are we to have crinoline? Ernest Redfern, of the well known firm, when the question was asked him, said "I've seen no crinoline. It's all newspaper talk. The agitation about it over here comes of you Americans looking a head and anticipating coming fashions. The English don't do that; if the crinoline does come it will not be adopted in England till it has become firmly established in France and America. The English take fashions as they come, and they will take crinoline if it comes with exceptional slowness because the princess of Wales has pronounced against it.

"There is no doubt, however, that a radical change in the fashion of women's clothes is at hand. I'm sorry, too, for I think the fashions of the last three or four years have been the prettiest in the century. But the change has come and it will be a marked one. All costumers appreciate this. Ordinarily old stock is available in some way, but next Fall the gowns of last Fall will be absolutely unusable.

"The stiff skirts being the change last Fall we put a few inches of horse-hair cloth in the bottom of skirts: now we use it from the knee down, and by Easter the whole skirt will be lined with it. It is these stiffened skirts that have raised the hue and cry about crinoline. They have grown fuller, too, and they are taking to themselves frills. A flounce below the knee is now fashionable. In the Spring more flounces will be added, perhaps, and it is possible that by next Fall something like crinoline will be needed to keep this ample skirt in place.

"My customers regard the suggestion of crinoline variously. Some of the young women are inclined to welcome it as a new and strange device, one wholly untried by them, and consequently to be desired. They have heard so much about it, their curiosity is whetted, and they would not mind trying the fashion for awhile. Their mothers and other matrons, who know what the crinoline is, are horrified when it is mentioned. They think it ugly and inconvenient, and dread its being forced upon them.

"It is, in fact, not adapted to present condition of existence. When it was popular before there were no elevated railroads, fewer street cars, no hansom cabs. The cities were less jostle and confusion, and fewer crowds. The hoop skirt was an incident in a slow age, when women were less independent, took life more leisurely, and went about much less than they do to-day. Take the one impediment hansom cabs. Persons in London do most of their traveling about the city in these vehicles. A hoop skirt in one would be an impossibility. There is dangerous feature, too, in the adoption of these 'cages,' particularly in England, where open fires prevail. More than onewoman has been fatally injured from her distended skirts sweeping into an open fire as she passed it.

"And would the great army of business women wear crinoline? I don't believe they would, at least while at their occupations. You don't find the women of business adopting any of the pronounced, exaggerated fashions for her office use. She doesn't affect big sleeves or anything of that sort in her work gowns. At least one actress is wholly opposed to the crinoline, and that is Eleanor Duse. We got her up a magnificent gown lately, put the finest silk in it to make it stand out in the most approved style, and sent it home. Duse was disgusted. She would have none of it. Clinging drapery was what she wanted, and we had to make the gown over for her. And now, to conclude, we are going to have full skirts, and stiff skirts, and slowly, about next Fall, something like the crinoline, yet a surprise in that it will not resemble the old hoop skirt. That will not be revived."

Lord & Taylor affirm the return of the old wire cage, so little changed that its old wearers will promptly recognize it. At Stern's and at Altman's and at several of the fashionable women dressmakers of that city the same tale was told. All realize its approach and all deprecated it. Their customers did not want it, but it was noticeable that they were chary of ordering dresses that could not, if necessary, meet its demand. In point of fact, a few hoop skirts have actually been sold in the city, though their wearing is still delayed. And a most significant additional fact is that the manufacturers of Spring cloaks have been asked to weave their goods in dress lengths of twelve and fourteen yards, instead of as heretofore of six and eight.

Dr. G. C. Osceola, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Knickerbocker, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
