Even the mechanical means employed in the construction of the edifice known as "the MacKaye Spectatorium, at Chicago, are in themselves novelties. Those of a mechanical turn of mind have been deeply interested in the raising of a large traveling der-rick at this building which is to be used to place the roof in position. This derrick is the largest ever raised. It stands 180 feet in height and weighs with its accessories, about 70 tons. All the power that it has will and for one Congress only did its oppo-nents control the Secretary is to be placed on the building. The raising of this derrick was in itself a feat of great magnitude and it war only successfully accomplished on the fifth attempt. The four proceeding trials were failures on account of the tackle used not having sufficient strength to stand the enormous strain.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 12.

Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.
Topic.—Neglected opportunities. The loss o others; to ourselves. Est. iv, it; Heb. li, i-3. Neglected opportunities. All who have reached any advanced stage of life know from experience what neglected opportunities are. All along the pathway of the past are strewn the wrecks of possibilities to do good, to receive good and to impart good—possibilities which were ours once, but which now have gone forever. In our topical references we have two phases of neglected opportunities placed before us-the loss resulting to others and the loss resulting to ourselves from this neglect to utilize the possibilities for good that have been before us.

1. The loss to others (Est. iv, 14). It is false to suppose that the result of our actions, be they of omission or commission, end with ourselves. The enemies of the Jesus have perfected a plot by which they are to be destroyed. Esther as queen is possibly the only one who can save them. But to do so she must risk her own life. The opportunity of great good is before her, but if she neglect the opportunity, what then? Disaster to herself, and not only to herself, but to her loved ones, for Mordecai truthfully said, "If then altogether holdest thy peace at this time, thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed." By her neglect ruin would also come to the loved ones of her home. This is the universal rule of action or neglect. No one lives to himself. Consciously or unconsciously our every action affects some one else. So it is with our neglects. The neglect of the parent to accept Christ may cause the child to neglect him. The neglect of the Christian to live consistently may cause those who make no profession to ignore Christianity. Whatever the opportunity may be, to neglect it means disastrous effects not only to ourselves, but to others. Influenced by this fact, let us, like Esther, not neglect golden opportunities, but rise to every emergency and make the best of every possi-bility we meet.

2. The loss to ourselves (Heb. ii, 1-8). Neglected opportunities also bring loss to ourselves. The writer of Hebrews here warns his readers against neglect of obedience to Christ on the ground that if they neglected it they could not escape the result. His argument is that the neglect to obey angels has always been pun-ished, and that since Christ is greater than angels, as shown in the preceding chapter,"bow shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" He does not answer his question because there can be but one answer. If we neglect, we cannot escape. Those who neglected angels' words found no escape. Those who neglect Christ's way of salvation will find no escape. The foolish virgins found none. The door was shut, and though they clamored for admittance it never opened again. It is a sad and awful thought that by mere neg-lect the soul may be lost, yet it is true. May such a thought lead us to the firm resolve that as for us we will not neglect our salvation!

What to Read. If you are down with the blues, read Psalm xxvii.

If there is a chilly sensation about the heart, read Revelation iii. If you don't know where to look for the month's rent, read Psalm xxxvii.

If you feel lonesome and unprotected, read Psalm xci. If the stovepipe has fallen down and the cook gone off in a pet, put up the pipe, wash your hands and read Jas. iii.

If you find yourself losing confidence in men, read I Cor. xiii. If people pelt you with hard words, read John xv.

If you are getting discouraged about your work, read Psalm exxvi and Gal.

vi, 7-0.

If you are all out of sorts, read Heb. xii.—Selected.

What Christian Endeavor Is. What is Christian Endeavor for? It is to bring glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will to men—that earliest definition of the gospel that sounded over this earth of ours the morning the star shone over the fields of Bethlehem. That is what Christian Endeavor is for-in the home, in the family, in the church, in the city, in the state, in the nation, in the world, until it shall lift up its voice in every quarter of this entire world of ours, singing praises to God and good will to men everywhere.-Rev. George H. Wells, D. D.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

It was at Meriden, N. H., that Dr. Clark, founder of the first Christian Endeavor society, prepared for college, graduating at Kimball Union academy in 1869. Dartmouth college, his alma mater, conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of divinity in 1889. He graduated from Dartmouth in 1873 and from Andover Theological seminary in 1876.

At the famous meeting of the New York Christian Endeavor conference it was resolved to recommend to the societies the adoption of the suggestion of the domestic board that our societies endeavor to donate each year to the church building fund an amount sufficient to build at least one church edifice in some needy home mission field. The work is growing in Oklahoma. New societies are constantly being organized, and good meetings are being held. A worker writes, "We have not the good speakers nor the fine places of worship that others have, but God is here just the same."

It is expected that a solid Christian Endeavor special train will be run from the Pacific coast to the Montreal convention. Three cars will probably go from California and one each from Oregon and Washington. The east must look to her laurels or the west will outstrip her in Endeavor enterprise.
