The Comet is There.

HOW TO LOCATE IT WITH GLASSES OR THE NAKED EYE.—TAIL POINTS UPWARD.

There is a real live comet in the sky visible to the naked eye. It is thought to be Bondame's comet, and the tail seems to be about ten degrees in length.

A gentleman who saw it last night said: "The comet is quite bright and easily visible to the naked eye, even in the strong twilight of the evening sky about 8.45 o'clock, and can be observed in a fieldglass until after ten o'clock. It has a very bright nucleus and a tail which can be traced for a distance of fully three degrees from the head of the comet. If the reported position of its discovery is correct, it has moved about two degrees toward the west since the 8th of July. It will readily be found by tracing a line through the star forming the corner of the bowl of the great dipper nearest the handle down through the star at the opposite corner. Continue this line nearly double the distance between them downward and two stars just in the corner of the Ursa Major will be met. Just below this about three degrees and a little to the west the comet was seen, but it will be found somewhat nearer the two third magnitude stars noted this evening. The tail points almost directly upward, though it does lean a little toward the east."
