PRESIDENT CLEVELAND SUBMITS TO THE KNIFE.

AN OPERATION PERFORMED UPON HIM BY WHICH PART OF HIS JAW WAS REMOVED.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Widespread interest has been excited by the Press' publication this morning of a story from its reliable New York correspondent concerning President Cleveland's mysterious illness.

The correspondent says: It is useless longer to conceal the fact that Mr. Cleveland is a sick man, perhaps a very sick man, and that the physicians have fear that mortal disease is lurking in his system, notwithstanding the heroic efforts of surgery to remove it during the Summer.

The news which is here reported for the first time has been received from those whose sources of information are so accurate as to justify, even to compel, its publication.

It comes from men, some of whom saw and had part in what is described. For the sake of the hope which the entire country will entertain that the worst is over, it may be best not to report with absolute fidelity what the physicians saw and what they feared; it may be enough to say that at the present time there is hope that the marvels of surgery have been sufficient to meet and master the trouble, whatever it may be.

When Mr. Cleveland again became President last March he seemed to be in the best of health, although it was plain to him that he had less vigor, a diminished power of maintaining sustained efforts and hearing with prolonged fatigue than was the case when he first, in the prime of his manhood, became President of the United States.

He seemed to bear the strain, however, with much of ease and comparative comfort, having from experience learned how best to meet and fend off those early embarrassments and pressure which await a newly inaugurated President.

But there was a mental strain, one that called for much greater draft upon his vital resources than any which office seekers entailed, created by the sudden, overwhelming and extraordinary financial situation.

It may be that this mental strain developed, if it did not create, that disease with which the physicians have been contending. They know only that they have seen and what their instruments have done.

HIS SUFFERING CONCEALED. It was in the late Spring that Mr. Cleveland began to be tormented with pain which seemed to proceed

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT CURED ME.

SUFFERED EIGHT YEARS! Couldn't Eat or Sleep

Dr. Kilmer & Co.—"I had been troubled for eight years with stomach and heart difficulties. I lived mostly on milk, as everything I ate hurt me so. My kidneys and liver were in a terrible state. Could neither sleep or eat. I had been treated by the best Chicago doctors without any benefit whatever. As a last resort I tried your SWAMP-ROOT, and now I can eat anything, no matter what.

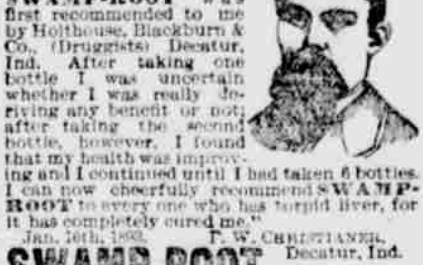

Nothing hurts me, and can go to bed and get a good night's sleep. SWAMP-ROOT cured me.

Any one doubting this statement can write, I will gladly answer." Mrs. George, Dec. 28th, 1892. Springfield, Mich.

SWAMP-ROOT CURED ME.

Had Terrible Liver For 14 Years. Biliary all the Time.

Dear Sirs.—I have been troubled with Terrible Liver for 14 years and gone through courses of bilious fever; many times it has been impossible for me to do any kind of labor. Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT was first recommended to me by Mr. H. B. Hockock, Decatur, Ind.

After taking one bottle I was uncertain whether I was really deriving any benefit or not, after taking the second bottle, however, I found that my health was improving and I continued until I had taken 6 bottles. I can now cheerfully recommend SWAMP-ROOT to every one who has a "torpid liver," for it has completely cured me." J. W. CHRISTIAN, Decatur, Ind.

from a tooth. He endured it like a hero.

He concealed his suffering from his family, and it is probable that no one, excepting Secretary Lamont, knew that he had physical torture as well as mental anxiety to contend with. The pain did not yield to local and usual treatment. When the first careful examination was made, or when the suspicion was created that this trouble was due to no exposure of a dental nerve or to any usual disease of the teeth, my informants do not know; they do know that there was a time, shortly before the President issued his call for the extraordinary session of Congress, when it was determined that an operation was inevitable, how grave or extensive could not at first be determined.

It is probable that the decision to perform the operation while the President was upon Mr. Benedict's yacht was due to several reasons—one, perhaps, that the family, being in ignorance, might not be overwhelmed by anxiety and suspense; another, that if the operation was performed with surgical success the country might not be alarmed.

Mr. Cleveland, with Mr. Lamont, left Washington quite suddenly upon the day when the call for an extra session was issued.

Arrangements were made in this city with celerity, and Mr. Cleveland was met when he arrived here by Dr. Bryant and another physician, and Dr. Hasbrouck, all of whom boarded the yacht with him.

Mr. Cleveland, almost as soon as he boarded the yacht, retired to the stateroom and fell into a heavy slumber. The intimation was made to me that he might have received a hypodermic injection; certainly it was deemed desirable that he should enjoy prolonged sleep before he yielded himself to the surgeon, and he did sleep until well into the next day.

When the time came the President of the United States submitted himself to the surgeon as calmly, as gently, and as willingly as though he were merely lying down for brief slumber. Yet he knew that possibly from that operation he might not recover, and that it might be before many hours had passed that the people of the United States would be overwhelmed by a sudden sorrow, which is, perhaps, the most grievous of any excepting war that the country has hitherto been compelled to endure.

He knew that a wife, beloved of all the people, was waiting in eager expectancy for his coming, but he did not know nor did the surgeons what might be the revelation of the next few moments for her. Those who have seen Mr. Cleveland in trying emergencies have recalled

HOW PERFECTLY THE MASTER OF HIMSELF and of his emotions he is. His physicians have thus seen him before, but they were amazed by the tender confidence and the resignation to what ever might happen with which he composed himself for their administrations.

It was deemed advisable to use gas as an anæsthetic rather than ether, because the operation was to be such as would entail severe hemorrhages, which might possibly lead to the flow of blood into the windpipe. By using gas recovery would be almost instantaneous, whereas ether entails much slower recovery, so that in case of such a hemorrhage there might be suffocation. The President yielded easily to the anæsthetic, and the surgeons began their task of awful responsibility. The operation did not require very long, but it entailed the cutting away of a considerable part of the upper jaw bone upon one side, the instrument boring through the bone and tissue as far as the orbital plate.

The operation was thorough. The physicians believe that they have removed all of the diseased tissue and bone, although in doing it the removal of so much of the jaw as that was entailed. Of course in doing this teeth were extracted, so that the physicians were truthful when they afterward said that the president had had some teeth pulled out while he was on Mr. Benedict's yacht.

Such an operation as this entails profuse hemorrhage, and after the DISEASED TISSUE WAS REMOVED the surgeons speedily dressed the wound and then, to use a professional term, "plugged" it. That is to say, they packed the cavity made by the knives and saws with antiseptic cotton, so that it might be healed speedily and so as to prevent great loss of blood. It is the truth to say that there were suspicious that the disease might be of that malignant type which is called sarcoma, another form of the same disease which brought General Grant, with beautiful pathos, to his death. There is now encouragement that it may not be that trouble, that the complaint, whatever it is, is not beyond the power of surgical science to control.

Mr. Cleveland recovered from the shock even better than the physicians had dared to hope he would. He was kept in bed, so treated that he slept most of the time and after four days' absence, during which the country was wondering where he was, it was deemed safe and advisable to permit him to land at Gray Gables. The treatment indicated was absolute rest and such mental diversion as Mr. Cleveland's favorite recreation, fishing, afforded.

It became necessary, however, for the president to return to Washington, and that journey and the necessity of living in Washington during the heated spell gave Mr. Cleveland's physician very great anxiety.

PHYSICIANS NOT DECIDED. It was, of course, noticed that Dr. Bryant who was constantly at Gray Gables, accompanied Mr. Cleveland on his journey to Washington, and was with him much of the time there.

It has been said that the extraordinary and unexplained departure of Mr. Cleveland from Washington was not the act of a president who realized the desperate situation of the country, but Mr. Cleveland did realize it. He almost rebelled at the command of his physician. He knew his departure would be misconstrued, but he also knew that not from him at least or those around him could the reason for that departure be set forth.

The physicians, who have been talking among themselves about this sorrow, are not yet decided what it was which, lurking in the president's blood, caused disease of tissue and bone which had eaten up through the roof of the mouth to the orbital plate. The quick recovery from the operation gives, as each day passes, increased hope that it is not that dread and mysterious enemy which physicians scarcely dare to name. There have been some fears that it was; there is even now anxiety, which is daily growing less and less, lest it may recur and require the knife and heroism again.

But there is more encouragement this week than there was last, far more than was the case when the president, being warned, departed from Washington to the seashore again.
