CROWN ACME,

"Revenge," says the proverb, "is sweet." Different men have different ways of showing it. Brown's way is harmless and humorous. Two Joneses live next door to each other, and having to call on one of them Brown, of course, went to the wrong house. crabbed servant answered the bell, and on Brown's asking: "Is this Mr. Alfred Jones'?" she replied snappishly, as if she had been bothered with many as if she had been bothered with many inquiries, "No, it ain't," and slammed the door in his face. Brown walked on a hundred yards or so, when a bright thought struck him. He re-turned at once and rang the bell again. Again the crabbed servant appeared. "Who said it was?" asked Brown triumebantly, and instantly

Brown triumphantly, and instantly walked away.-Ernest P. Neville, in Life

A wag of a woman was sweeping off her doorstep, when a friendly house-maid strolled by. Mistaking the sweeper for one of her clan she addressed her without formality. "Good morning! Got a good place?"

"First-elnss!" "How much wages do you get?" "My board and clothes."

"Your board and clothes? Well, you're a fool. You can get twenty dollars a month as well as not," replied the stroller with emphasis. "Ah, yes-but you see, I have priv-

Well Said.

X---- is the most amiable of septuagenarians. The other day he met Countess de Z----, who asked how he was, and complimented him on his perennial youth.

"Madame," X--- replied, with a bow, "I am young enough to consider you charming, and old enough to be permitted to tell you so to your face." -La Voix du Peupie.

Not a Faux Pas.

"I fear I have committed a faux pas," said the elegant young man, who had put his arm around the girl about the time her father opened the front door. "Don't you worry about the faux pas," she exclaimed, with charming naivete; "it's the pa pa that you want to be looking out for," and the elegant young man did.—Detroit Free Press.

It is reported that Mrs. Cleveland accompanied by her husband and two babies will visit the World's Fair in October. The World's Fair is enjoyable at any time and to anyone, but it would certainly be pleasant to the presidential family. The children would in all probability not be left at the children's building but would see the fair in style, and if Mrs. Cleveland got tired in the fine arts building and sat down on the pedestal of some statue no guard would tap her on the shoul-der and murmer the monosyllable, "up." If they wanted to look a little longer at an exhibit of gloves or dresses no weary foreigner anxious for his. supper would draw the curtains over the exhibit and retire. The man who works the Telautograph and the man who gives you cablegrams would not assume an air of "How long, O, Lord, how long" when the beautiful Frankie asked for her name to be cabled or telautographed to her. No, indeed ! Everyone would be anxious to be their nicest to the distinguished guests, and they'd have the jolliest sort of a time. If I were Ruth or Esther I'd yell like a demon until they took me to the Fair .- Ex
