BY RAIL TO LA PORTE.

Lovers of wild scenery will be amply repaid by a trip over the completed W. & N. B. Road from Scatterfield, on the summit of the Alleghenies in Sullivan county, to Halls, on the Susquehanna river, in Lycoming county. Winding and twisting, now in the gloom and solitude of a forest unbroken save for the slender line of steel, now crossing tracts on the mountain side where the heavy timber has been cut away the eye is refreshed by the play of the bright sunshine on the slender cascades of mountain streams, the swelling sides of the rugged mountains flashing back the colors of the rainbow from the dense autumn foliage, while to the ear, rising above the panting of the locomotive, comes the roar of waterfalls, and as the steam is turned off and we glide down an incline impelled by gravity alone, the gentle murmur of the mountain brook reminds you of the days of childhood. Now we strike boldly across some mountain gulch on a trestle high in the air, and you draw back from the window involuntarily. A vision of green fields, and high on a hill above you perches the mountain capital of little Sullivan, now, for the first time in communication with outside civilization. Blue as the skies above, calm as a baby's sleep, Lake Mokomo gives no hint of its artificial character if you shut your eyes until the dam is passed. More trestles, the road winds and turns, and far below, along the bed of the slender brook you see another railroad, and the wiser passengers smile as they tell you it is the same road and we'll be there in a few moments. "Nordmont," calls the brakeman, and the name and the scenery recalls books of travel in rugged Scandinavia. Now the road is straighter and smoother, and the descent steady, through patches of woodland, now out into a cleared and well cultivated valley, more woods, now the cliffs tower above you and the waters of Muncy creek are just below, the descent is as regular as that of the stream. Now we leave the mountains behind in the blue distance and glide across the plain, dotted with pretty villages, and covered with highly cultivated fields and in a few minutes more the brakeman calls "Halls, all out, change for Williamsport," and you have completed a railway journey through a country where, thirty years ago the wild fox and bigger game dug his hole unscared, and the best engineers would have told you it was impossible to run a railroad—Dushore Review.

This is the time of year when everybody begins to think about cleaning up and making improvements, and new wall paper is usually one of the first things to be done. W. H. Brooke & Co. have a very large and elegant stock to select from. Call and see and get estimates. 3-31-tf.

Waldo Messaros Dead.

Ralph Waldo Messaros, who was one of the lecturers during the teacher's institute, at Bloomsburg about five years ago, died early last Sunday morning at the German hospital, Philadelphia.

Mr. Messaros recently lost his church in New York, and later domestic discord added to his troubles, his wife instituting a suit for divorce. This is said to have driven him to drink, and he had been dissipating heavily lately. He had been stopping at the Washington hotel Philadelphia, up to last Friday, when some friends induced him to try the gold cure for drunkenness.

It is said that his friends found him lying on the floor of a room in the gold cure establishment Saturday afternoon, sick and helpless. They sent for a physician, who pronounced his condition critical. He was sent to the German hospital in an ambulance, where his death occurred.

Mr. Messaros will be chiefly remembered for his turbulent career as pastor of the northwestern independent church, which culminated shortly after in his arrest, trial and acquittal of the charge of attempted assault on Mrs. C. W. Coulston, one of his parishioners. He was an eloquent speaker and was very popular as a platform lecturer.

He claimed that he was born in Greece, but this was disputed by many, who held that his name was Mackenzie and that he was born in Ireland of Scotch-Irish parentage, and that the name of Messaros was an assumed one. His death was caused by pneumonia, superinduced by dissipation. He was forty-one years of age.

The interesting story of how "Cape Cod Folks" came to be written is told in October Book News (Philadelphia), and a portrait of the author, Mrs. Sarah Pratt McLean Greene, makes a most artistic frontispiece to the issue. Portraits of Mrs. Miriam Coles Harris, author of "Rutledge," and of Maxwell Gray, who is Miss M. G. Futtiett, of the Isle of Wight, are accompanied by sketches of the literary lives of these popular writers. In its various departments and in the letters from Boston, Berlin, and "With New Books" Book News gives a clear and complete resume of the month's doings in the book world, with many useful hints of what is expected of the publishers for the coming Christmas season.

POOR ADVICE.

A case was recently disposed of at Sunbury, in which the Judge censured the justices for burdening the court with trivial cases. The Sunbury Daily says:

Jacob Clymer, of Milton, was the defendant in a case of malicious mischief in which his brother William was the prosecutor. The mischief complained of was breaking the lock on a cellar door; but it was found that there was a dispute as to the ownership of the property and the court directed a verdict of not guilty, as the case was evidently in the wrong court. The court said to the jury the only trouble in the case was the question of costs, and as the prosecutor had doubtless been advised by a Justice of the Peace to bring the case, had brought it in good faith, and as the county would be in for the costs at all events, the jury might as well put them there at once, which was done. The court asked the prosecutor if he had been advised by a Justice to bring the suit, and he said he had. His Honor then remarked if the prosecutor, had gone to a lawyer he would have got better advice, and if the jury would fine some of the Justices of the Peace who gave this kind of advice to the prosecutors and put the costs on them, as they had a right to do, it would put a stop to some of the Justice of the Peace law that gets so many people into trouble and costs the county so much money.

"Why Is He So Irritable?"

This question is often heard and nearly as often unanswered. It is not always remembered, as it should be, that the occasion of ill-temper and irritability is often to be found in the physical condition of the persons affected. What is the use of trying to "harmonize" a man whose liver has gone back on him? If a man is tortured with rheumatism, how can he be expected to be affable and agreeable? Can a confirmed dyspeptic be expected to be cheerful and always ready to tell a funny story? The only way to remove the difficulty is to get at the cause. Dyspepsia, rheumatism, impure blood and liver troubles yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla; this is why it is an effective tranquilizer, a peaceful messenger, and a preventive of domestic quarrels.

Wants $5,000 Damages.

Adelbert D. Fielding, a traveling salesman, has brought suit against the Reading Railroad Company for $5,000 damages for injuries sustained in alighting from a train at Shenandoah. He alleges that when stepping from the train he trod upon a coupling pin and chain carelessly placed on the first step of the platform of the car and was thrown on his back, breaking two of his ribs and sustaining other injuries.

Yellow fever still prevails in Georgia. Occasionally a day passes without death, but from ten upwards of new cases are reported each day.

The storm that passed over the Gulf States last week resulted in a loss of life of about 1,800 and the destruction of property amounting to over $1,000,000.

Cakes of tea in India, pieces of silk in China, salt in Abyssinia and codfish in Iceland have all been used as money.

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT CURED ME.

MRS. GERMAN MILLER. Saved from the Grave! Suffered Eight Long Years From Nerve-ness and Dyspepsia.

COULDN'T EAT OR SLEEP. Mrs. MILLER SAYS—"I had been troubled for eight years with stomach and heart difficulties. I lived mostly on milk, as everything I ate distressed me so. My kidneys and liver were in a terrible state; was so run down and nervous that at times I could neither sleep nor eat. I was treated by the best Physicians in Chicago and elsewhere without any benefit whatever. As a last resort I tried Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and before I had used the third bottle I realized that I was gaining in every way. The use of Swamp-Root has made a marvelous cure in my case. Now I enjoy every thing that I eat, and can go to bed and get a good night's sleep. Anyone doubting this statement may write to me and I will gladly answer."

"Only the Scars Remain,"

Says HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who certifies as follows: "Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."
