J. J. Van Alen was confirmed by the Senate as Ambassador to Italy, last Friday.

Senator Hill has given the outlines of the proposed new tariff measure. Bounties and subsidies will be cut off, and raw material will be placed on the free list.

After a long contest in the Senate, repeal of the Sherman purchasing clause in the silver bill is now in sight. The fight is conceded by the silverites to be over, as they prefer unconditional repeal to the proposed compromise. A vote may be had by Saturday.

Twenty-seven people were killed and twenty-three injured by a collision on the Chicago and Grand Trunk line at Battle Creek, Michigan, last Friday, the result of disobedience of orders by the engineer. The cars caught fire, and twenty-six bodies were burned to a crisp. The engineer and conductor were arrested.

Democrats should bear in mind that the republican candidate for county treasurer has not withdrawn, and it is understood that he does not intend to do so. One of the inducements held out to Jos. P. Dewitt to run as an independent candidate, was that R. S. Bowman would withdraw and the republican vote would be cast for Dewitt. This was merely a trick, however, to get two democrats in the field, as the republicans have no intention of voting for Dewitt, but will make a strong effort to elect their candidate with Dewitt's help. But if Bowman should withdraw, Dewitt would then, to all intents and purposes, be the regular republican candidate, and any democrat who votes for him would be voting directly with the republican party. If Bowman does not withdraw, a democratic vote for Dewitt would be the same as a vote for the republican candidate. No one has attempted to give any reason why J. R. Fowler should not receive the solid democratic support, for no such reason exists, and from the reports that are coming in from every township, Mr. Fowler will be elected by the usual big majority.

Developments show that there has been a change in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road. It is now included in the Vanderbilt sphere of railroad influence. Forty thousand shares of stock of the road have been transferred to the name of William K. Vanderbilt. It is said that he had bought about 15,000 more shares, which would be formally put in his name.

It turned out that Mr. Vanderbilt had entered into an arrangement as to the Lackawanna with Frank Worth, the owner of 30,000 shares and with J. Rogers Maxwell, Harris Fahne stock and George F. Baker, who control the Central railroad of New Jersey and who also hold some 30,000 shares of Lackawanna stock. The combined holdings make about 125,000 shares. It is not a majority, but with other stock which can be relied upon for voting purposes, is sufficient to dictate the future policy of the Lackawanna. The Vanderbilts as a fact own an actual majority of the stock of none of the roads bearing their names except the Michigan Central.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

THE PROPOSED COMPROMISE.
 TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK.

Change of Senate Rules.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 23, 1893.

President Cleveland and the democratic Senators—all of them—have found that common ground upon which all democrats can stand without sacrificing either the party or their individual principals concerning the treatment of silver by the government. Readers of this correspondence will not need to be told that I have never for a moment during the long and sometimes seemingly endless controversy in the Senate doubted for a moment that the final result would be such a compromise. To repeat a hackneyed phrase, "the logic of the situation" pointed from the first to compromise as the only satisfactory end to the contest, from a democratic point of view.

The compromise, which has been accepted by the Senate committee that has been wrestling with the problem: ever since it was proven that a vote upon the Voorhees bill was an impossibility under the present rules of the Senate, and approved by Secretary Carlisle as President Cleveland's official representative, provides for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law to take effect October 1, 1894; for the coinage from time to time of the silver purchased and of the seigniorage in the Treasury and that to be accumulated by future purchases, and for retiring all greenbacks and Treasury notes below $10 and the issuing of silver dollars or silver certificates in place of them. It was at first proposed to include authority for the issuing of low interest bonds to replenish the gold reserve at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, but some democratic Senators were so much opposed to this that Secretary Carlisle suggested that if the purchase of silver was not continued for more than a year longer he thought the bond issue would be unnecessary, so the bond issue was left out.

It is hoped and expected that this compromise will be put through both Senate and House this week and an end be put to the uncertainty. If it is not it will not be the fault of the democrats. The republican Senators have given no indication of how they regard the compromise, although before it was agreed upon a number of them stated that they would support no compromise that did not include the issue of bonds. The populist Senators do not like the compromise even a little bit, but unless they are assisted by the republicans they can do no harm. If the republicans join them in voting against the measure and Senator Irby of S. C., votes with them instead of with the democrats the compromise may be jeopardized, if not actually defeated.

The business of the House is in such a condition that the silver compromise can be at once taken up if it passes the Senate this week. Should it be finally disposed of this week, it is altogether probable that Congress will take a recess, as many of the Senators and Representatives are anxious to take part in the closing day of the various state campaigns, and the new tariff bill is not expected to be ready to be reported to the House much if any before the beginning of the regular session. President Cleveland is also anxious to take a short vacation before the beginning of the regular session.

Senators Voorhees, Hill and others are so anxious that the rules of the Senate shall be so changed as to allow a majority to order a vote upon any measure after thirty days have been devoted to its discussion that the resolution of Senator Voorhees providing for the change may be taken up as soon as the silver compromise is disposed of. Should that be done there will be a very lively debate, entirely outside of party lines, as it has friends and opponents in both parties, and the result will be doubtful, the chances favoring defeat.

Four democratic Senators—Martin of Kans., Hill of N. Y., Vance of N. C., and Irby of S. C.—voted against the confirmation of the nomination of Mr. J. J. Van Alen, to be Ambassador to Italy, but as 10 republicans voted for confirmation the nomination got through by a vote of 39 to 22. No Senator, either democrat, republican or populist, believes that there was any truth in the charge that Mr. Van Alen had been nominated as the result of a bargain and in payment for his having made a large contribution to the campaign fund of the party. The democrats who voted against his confirmation did so for other reasons.

From the best obtainable information here the attempt of the populists to capture Virginia will result in a democratic majority in that State little if any short of that given Cleveland and Stevenson last November.

The legislative day of Tuesday, October 17, will be a long one. From that day the Senate for the purpose of lessening filibustering has taken a recess every afternoon, instead of adjourning, so that the legislative day of Tuesday is still going on in the Senate and will probably continue until the silver compromise is finally disposed of.

The Carbon-Monroe Fight.

IT WILL BE QUITE AS INTERESTING AS ANY IN THE STATE.

Another strong contest is that in the Carbon-Monroe district. In the fight between Judge John B. Storm and the Hon. Allan Craig, Democrats, Judge Storm has secured a temporary advantage, which his political trickery may yet cost him. He is the candidate of Monroe county but not of the judicial district, while Senator Craig is Carbon's nominee, but not the nominee of the whole district. The Carbon-Monroe district gave a Democratic majority of 2,420 last year. Carbon's vote was 3,541 for Cleveland and 3,179 for Harrison, a Democratic majority of 362. Monroe gave Cleveland 3,078 and Harrison 1,020, a Democratic majority of 2,058. But while Monroe gives the greater majority Carbon has the larger number of electors, in the leading parties exceeding that of Monroe by 2,622.

Judge Storm has the almost undivided support of Monroe county, and of County Chairman Michael Cassidy, of Carbon. But Judge Storm is a Monroe county man and the people of Carbon think a Carbon county man ought to fill the position of judge of the Forty-third district. They did not like the appointment of Storm as Judge Dreher's successor and do not wish his election, while Carbon county Democrats enthusiastically endorse Craig and will give Storm a harder fight than he probably anticipates.

Senator Craig, the Carbon county Democratic convention's unanimously chosen candidate for president judge, is fifty-eight years of age and has resided during all that time in Carbon county. He became a member of the bar in 1858 and was elected district attorney in 1860 and re-elected in 1865. He represented his county in the state legislature from 1866 to 1868, and the senatorial district, composed of the counties of Carbon, Monroe and Pike, from 1879 to 1883. Mr. Craig has several times been the choice of the county for congress, but defeated in the conference by not being an adept in political manipulation. He has for many years enjoyed the largest practice in his county, has been engaged in the most important litigation and is the Nestor of the bar.

John B. Storm, the nominee of the Democrats of Monroe county, has been more prominent in politics than in the law, having been a member of the lower house of the Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth congresses. In late years he has given more attention to his law practice, and upon the death of Judge Dreher Governor Pattison appointed him to the vacancy in spite of the protests of citizens of Carbon county, who felt that their county was entitled to the judgeship, since Monroe county had had her share of the honor, particularly because Carbon is a much more populous county than Monroe. Judge Storm is also a prominent Methodist.—Patriot.

Blood Poisoning

Intense Suffering 11 Years.

Hood's Healed the Sore in Seven Weeks—A Perfect Cure.

"I will recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as first-class. It has proved its merits to us. Twelve years ago my wife was picking raspberries when she scratched herself on a briar, the wound from which soon developed into a terrible sore, between her knee and ankle. Notwithstanding all we did for it, it continued discharging for eleven long years. We tried medical skill on every side, with no effect. About a year ago she read of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it herself, and while taking her first bottle she felt better and continued with it until today she is entirely well and better than ever. The sore was healed up in seven weeks. Her limb is perfectly sound. We attribute her cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." JACOB N. AUGHENBAUGH, Etters, York Co., Pa.
