STATE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress-at-Large.

JAMES DENTON HANCOCK, of Venango County.

The Senate on Monday night refused to confirm the appointment of W. B. Hornblower, of New York, as an Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, by a vote of 30 to 24. He was opposed by Senator Hill.

Ex-banker Rockefeller of Wilkes-barre, who was recently convicted of embezzlement, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, has been released on bail, his case having been appealed to the Supreme Court, where it will be argued in April.

It required but the distinguished assurance of Ex-Governor Beaver that the Democrats were not responsible for the wave of business depression, inasmuch as the wave in question came along in the periods when such things happen, and the assurance that Democratic policy must deal with a situation created by a Republican administration is very good for Ex-Governor Beaver to assume as the truth because it is the truth. Ex-Governor Beaver is quoted as saying: "It would have come anyhow, and if Harrison had been elected it might have been even worse." This is startling and has all the effect of a pyrotechnic without the drop. Between Carnegie and Beaver the organs have a jolly time just now. Let the panorama of truth roll on.—Times.

Protection, in its death throes becomes desperate in its dying agonies. Its gasping breath is putrid with the corruption of its internal and external rottenness. Fear of eternal oblivion, without hope of resurrection makes it all the more defiant in its demands for a new lease of life. The following waves of despairing breath but voice the judgments pronounced against it: "Send a postal card to your member of Congress to day, urging him to vote against the Wilson Free Trade Tariff." The sole cause of hard times and its attendant misery is the Wilson Free Trade Tariff. Defeat this and the wheels of trade and industry will quickly revolve as usual. The Free Traders don't like postal card protests." A package of the above cards was received at the Cambria post office last Tuesday night.

A postal card was received by a farmer at Bendertown, dated Philadelphia, Jan. 19, 1894, as follows: "I have your inquiry of January 4th in reference to the price of wool. I think you had better address your inquiry to some of the dignitaries of Washington. It is more within their line." "W. A."

Yours truly,
Wilmer Atkinson Co."

The farmer referred to never made any inquiry in reference to wool. He never kept any sheep. Down with the robber tariff, that is what was voted for—that is what Congress was commissioned for. The crusade against the Wilson bill is only an old trick. The Wilson bill is the pivotal point of democratic life and supremacy. Its failure means eternal death to the democratic organization.

To preserve a youthful appearance as long as possible, it is indispensable that the hair should retain its natural color and fullness. There is no preparation so effective as Ayer's Hair Vigor. It prevents baldness, and keeps the scalp clean, cool, and healthy.

Grow and the Populists.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY SAY THE CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE IS ONE OF THEM.

Have the Republicans of the State nominated a Populist for Congressman-at-Large?

The Populists claim that Galusha A. Grow is one of their own people and that he has gone back on them awfully to accept the Republican nomination. The Populists are going to wage an earnest fight against him now that he has left them.

During the fall campaign last year Galusha A. Grow, not having done any active work in the Republican ranks for something like twelve years on account of his disagreement with Senator Quay and other great Republican leaders, was in sympathy with the efforts of the Farmers' Alliance and the People's party.

He made speeches for the Alliance and showed every indication of belief in the principles of their party. It was over one of these meetings that the Populists and Grow fell out. Grow promised to speak at a meeting at Scranton. It was advertised all over Lackawanna county and great excitement prevailed over what was termed his conversion to the Populist faith.

This attracted the attention of the big Republican leaders, and they flocked to Grow and finally brought so much pressure to bear upon him that he backed out of the meeting at the eleventh hour and pretended to have misunderstood the object of the meeting.

These facts came out in Pittsburg lately. Chairman Thompson, of Indiana, one of the leading populist men of the State, came there to confer with C. A. Burrows and J. H. Stevenson, the leaders of the Populist party in this end of the State.

Thompson brought with him a letter from W. H. Thompson, Populist chairman of Lackawanna county, together with original letters to them from Galusha A. Grow regarding the meeting in Scranton. In the letter W. H. Thompson says, under date of January 4th, 1894, that E. G. Warden, a candidate last fall for Commissioner of Lackawanna county on the Populist ticket, asked Grow to come and speak for him. Grow had previously spoken in Farmers' Alliance meetings and promised Warden he would help him. Warden and two friends called on Grow.

"Are you familiar with the principles of the People's party platform?" asked Mr. Warden. "I am fully acquainted with it," answered Mr. Grow, and I expect to make a speech of an hour and a half on the lines laid down in it."

Then, in reply to a letter asking him to fix a date for the meeting, Mr. Grow wrote, under date of Glenwood, Pa., September 19th 1893, to E. G. Warden:

DEAR SIR: Yours at hand. I would speak for you at a meeting in Scranton next month (provided the meeting is in doors), and before you fix the day positive you let me know so I would say whether I could attend that day. If beforehand you arrange about the time you would like to have a meeting and let me know, I would write you then and agree on some day that would suit me, and then you could rely on me being there sure. I have never yet failed to be on hand at any meeting where I had promised to go. Yours truly, etc.

The meeting was fixed for October 5th and so advertised. Then the letter continues, a meeting of Republican leaders was held in Scranton and Grow summoned. When he came out he declared he thought he was to address a Republican meeting, and under the circumstances could not speak to Populists. Mr. Thompson says in his letter he has Grow's letter in his possession.

Nearly all women have good hair, though many are gray, and few are bald. Hall's Hair Renewer restores the natural color, and thickens the growth of the hair.

OLD TIMES AND NEW.

"No man after having tasted old wine straightway desireth new, for he saith the old is better." The above quotation I presume states a fact. My own experience with either old or new wine is not sufficient to warrant me in expressing an opinion as to the merits or demerits of either. There is a class of people who, whether lovers of old wine or not, seem to think that old times were better than the present.

They never weary of telling us young people about the good old times when they were boys and girls. Honesty, virtue and morality was then the rule and not the exception as at the present day. They even go so far as taxing our credulity as to tell us, that politicians were then honest.

People holding those opinions are generally old enough to be able to a certain extent to speak from experience in those matters, and it would therefore seem like presumption for a young chap like me to contradict them.

The feeling that the past was better than the present seems to be as old as the history of our race. The Israelites when journeying through the wilderness to the promised land, longed for the flesh pots of Egypt. When battling for possession of the land, they thought it had been better for them, if they had been left to die in the wilderness.

Those who see no good in the present, and no prospective good in the future,

Are inclined "to mourn for the days that are gone,
When a noble could do as he pleased with his own;
When the stealers of sheep and the slayers of men,
Were hanged up together again and again."

I think, that if some of our octogenarians could be turned back to their boyhood days, and have to tramp out their wheat with their horses, or beat it out with a poverty club and then cart it over the mountains to Easton in order to find a market, they would conclude that the old times were not quite perfect. They would long for some of our modern improvements quite as earnestly as the Israelites longed for the flesh pots of Egypt.

The careful student of history who is at the same time a close observer of the present, will conclude, that neither the past nor the present is quite perfect. I feel certain, that some modern innovations have not been an improvement upon the old style. Some things that have been done or suggested as improvements, has led me to adopt as a part of my creed the language of a certain poet, viz: "I am thankful that the sun and moon are both hung up so high,

And no presumptuous hand can stretch,
And pull them from the sky
If they were not, I have no doubt,
That some reforming ass
Would recommend to take them down,
And light the world with gas."

Among some of the modern innovations which by some have been advocated as improvements upon the old style, I will mention the protective tariff. Our Republican friends have been tinkering at that for about thirty years; but just at the time they supposed they had brought it to the highest degree of perfection, that it was possible for finite minds to compass; the people or a majority of them, became so disgusted with their work, that they turned them off, and got a new set of hands to overhaul their work, and try to turn out something, that would benefit the whole people, and not merely a few favorites who have generally shown both the disposition and ability to take care of themselves.

What those new hands will do is still an open question, but they are not unaware of what the people may do if they fail to do their work in a proper manner.

On the question of tariff, all honest, well informed men will agree, that the old style is better than the new. That is a tariff for revenue only, is better than the more modern idea of a tariff for protection.

If it were possible to frame a tariff bill that would protect alike all classes of our citizens, those who are now so anxious for protection, would clamor as loudly against its passage, as they now do against a reduction of duty, where they are the chief or only beneficiaries.

Such tariff as mentioned above would give those protectionists no advantage over their fellow men, and would therefore be distasteful to them. They have always been opposed to anything that did not put money in their own pockets.

To Test the Lottery Law.

Fred Price, a Wilkes Barre hotel keeper, was taken before the mayor of that city on Friday for violating the lottery law and was placed under $300 bail for his appearance at court. The complaint was made by Officer Scuhler, who swore that he went into the hotel and bought a ten cent cigar and received two tickets from the bartender that entitled him to two chances on a gold watch which would be drawn for on Saturday night. The officer did not win the watch but next day ordered Price before the mayor. Mr. Price said that he did no more than many other business men were doing in that city, but the mayor thought it had a tendency to draw young men to his bar to spend their money and placed him under bail.

The lottery law seems to be a dead letter as it is being violated in almost every town in the state. It is well a test case is being made to see whether the law can be enforced.

When I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I think it the best medicine for the blood. My six-year-old boy had sores on his feet, caused by POISONED BLOOD. A week after I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla the sores began to heal up and disappear, and when he had taken two bottles he was entirely cured." Miss C. H. Titus, South Gibson, Pa.
