For reporters-spice-cake and jumbles. For messenger-boys-ginger-snaps.

For politicians-election-cake and plum-cake.

For idlers and ne'er-do-wells-loafcake and fritters.

For tramps--sponge-cake. For greedy children-stomach ache.

KEEP MOVING.

An exchange prints a fable adapted to hard times. It is meant to do good, and in furtherance of that end it is here reprinted. Two frogs fell into a cream pitcher. After a few unsuccessful attempts to jump out, one of them gave up. "It's no use," he said. "We may as well die and be done with it." "Not so," answered the other

"You may do as you like. I shall keep jumping as long as there is any life in me. Who knows but something will turn up?"

This speech put new heart into frog Number One, and both began to try harder than ever to reach the top of the pitcher.

The natural result followed. The cream was presently churned to butter, whereupon the frogs got on top of it, and the next moment were out of prison.
