DEVELOPING THE HEIFERS.

they Should be Rept Growing Without Into ruption for the Best Results.

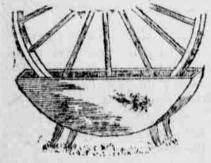

It was once a very prevalent idea (and is still in some quarters, unfor-tunately), that any kind of rough fodder is good enough for young stock, whether steers or heifers. Swale hay and dry cornstalks have made many a and dry cornstalks have made many a poor milker that with proper feeding might have been a credit to the herd. Stanted srowth and poor development can be seen in all kinds of stock, be-cause of insufficient food; but in no case do these have so depressing an effect, perhaps, as with the females that are to supply the dairy. The call that are to supply the dairy. The calf that, with proper feeding during the period of growth and after coming to before or grown and after coming to the milking period, might have be-come a 300-pound butter cow, will hardly exceed 100 or 125 pounds of butter per year under the neglectful, haphazzard plan of feeding, which is nlso quite likely to precede an insufficient milk ration when the calf has become a cow. To obtain a cow of the highest capacity for production, it is not too soon to begin nearly a year before she is born. That is, have due regard to the butter qualities of the sire and dam from which she is to be raised. It is as foolish to expect butter cows from poor stock as to look for figs from thistles. It is not so important that the dam should have the highest milking qualities, though this will undoubtedly give the most satisfactory results, as a rule; but it is assential that the size be pure-bred of essential that the sire be pure-bred of a butter family and from a high pro-ductiveness. A scrub bull may have no dairy qualities in his blood. It is simply a lottery, with the chances against one, to patronize such a sire. From the day of the calf's birth it should have the full measure of such food, as much as it needs for growth food, as much as it needs for growth, and as much as it can digest-but in no case more. It should be kept grow-ing without interruption. The sooner it is developed the less will be the expanse, both of care and feed; for it is certainly more expensive to spend three years in attaining a size that could have been reached in two. There is botter development also in the latcer case.

When practicable, it has been found well to feed skim-milk from calfhood till the helfer comes into milk herself. It is fed warm during the first month. Ground oats and fine bran will also be valuable assistants in growing bone and tissue. These are especially im-portant in the winter as an addition to the hay ration, which should be clover hay if obtainable. If sliage can be added, or an occasional feed of finely-pulped roots, so much the better. Such foods, with warm quar-ters, a dry bed, and plenty of good water, in winter, bring a heifer to ber full capacity as a producer of butter. When she begins to give milk, it should be kept in mind that, for largest yield, she must have as much of a well-bal-anced ration as she can digest. The measure of profitably feeding a wellbred butter cow ceases only when the well-balanced ration is fed in excess of her ability to turn it into dairy pro-ducts.-Webb Donnell in American Agriculturist ed the rim of the wheel is immersed and slowly turned around as the heated oil penetrates the wood until the entire rim is treated. The advantages claimed for this device over a rectan-gular trough of galvanized iron are, it requires less oil, as it conforms more nearly to the curve of the wheel; being of castiron, it serves as a vessel in which to heat the oil, as well as o soak the felloes; it is more durable than galvanized iron, and no more cosfly. It is not patented.

Indelfble Ink.

An indelible stencil luk, if for gen-eral marking, is not difficult to make if we do not insist too strictly upon our definition of "indelible." If it means that the marking must resist rain and the ordinary wear and tear to which it may be exposed upon a box, then the result is easily obtained by adding a little linseed oil to the mixture of turpentine and lampblack which is commonly used for the purpose. If the ink must be still more durable the proportion of oil must be increased, and some "dryer" added. This is practically a black paint, such as would be used for outdoor work, but with a rather large proportion of dryer. The latter is necessary in order to make the ink dry as quickly as pos-sible. Unfortunately the faster it dies the less durable it is. Black asphaltum varnish, thickened with a little pow dered color till it has the right body could be used for some purposes -14 good advantage.

Protecting Banks of Streams.

Many farms are damaged by streams that flow through them. In most cases this may be obviated by the use of the so-called mattresses. Place straw alone, or brush and straw with some willow brush or twigs; begin at the upper end and work downward, placing butts down streams, mixing in some straw, and weighting with stone. Where there are no stone strong stakes and gravel will hold until the willow its are grown. They will retain the alluvium and protect the bank. This work is first done in the spring, and repairs, if necessary, in autumn. The planting of water willows will also protect land from streams. The will ows should be kept cut off, and forced to throw out roots as much as pos-
