The better to judge what constitutes his patriotic duty let the voter read the argument advanced by both parties, and after carefully combing out the political sophistry that has heretofore been known to work in through the warmth of political excitement, just exercise his great privilege and duty of voting as he pleases. That's the best plan where a man's first love is good, pure and equitable government as between the rich and poor and the high and the low.

To the voter we would say endeavor to weed out the positively bad wherever you find them, whenever their private or public character rises up to rebuke them. If you demand good men primaries will be more careful to give them to you in order to win at the polls. The equitably disposed in the matter of Government favors are the only ones worthy of your vote. In the open warfare between the two parties as at present aligned against each other, the question arises, and you must determine it, shall we longer protect particular representatives of particular rich and powerful industries, or shall we give the masses the benefit of the competition that will result naturally from little or no protection to the hitherto highly favored classes. I need not tell you which party now favors protecting the masses, for the alignment has long since been drawn to the advantage of Democracy.

The Northumberland County Democrat of last week in publishing Mr. Buckalew's Sanbury speech, says:

"Read the able and exhaustive speech of Hon. C. R. Buckalew, delivered in the Court House Tuesday evening. He spoke without notes and in an impromptu manner, which was very pleasing and entertaining to his large audience. We had a reporter on hand who took down the speech in short hand. The Democrat is right in this campaign as it always has been. Every person who desires enlightenment, especially on the inequities of the McKinley tariff law should read the speech."

The same paper in reporting the Watsonstown meeting Sept. 19, says: "Mr. Buckalew, in a speech of over an hour, touched on all the leading issues of the day. His speech was attentively listened to and liberally applauded."

One noticeable thing was that the audience kept increasing during the meeting and at the adjournment there were many more persons present than when the meeting commenced. This proves that the people are taking an interest in the approaching campaign and are studying the arguments presented to them by the speakers."

SENATOR HILL.

Now that Senator Hill is again brought into prominence through the nomination for Governor of New York being thrust upon him, just when the Presidential bee begins to buzz, his peculiarities private and public, and his social and political status are all of course being carefully weighed and measured.

While the Presidential nomination would have been more to his liking, perhaps, it seems to be fateful in his case and that of many other political marksmen to shoot above their mark proper by drawing their sight a little too high. In such cases they generally fail to drive the Presidential nail; and Mr. Hill, we think, will be no exception. While in our opinion there is no good presidential timber in Senator Hill in view of tariff reform and income taxation, yet his nomination for Governor of New York under the circumstances is a piece of political strategy on the part of Democracy which proves that evil is sometimes overruled for good, and that parties like individuals are sometimes wiser than they know. As a stroke of political policy there is no questioning the advisability of Senator Hill's nomination for governor. We can think of nothing more apt to disconcert Republican calculations, so far as the Empire State is concerned, than this very same nomination. If the money power is indeed a power anywhere within the Union then the very hub of that driving-wheel is in New York, and the power of its propulsion is to be found in the favored constituents of Senator Hill. Give him a poverty-stricken set of constituents and it is quite possible that he would endeavor to serve them as well and represent them just as faithfully as he now advocates the cause of the more affluent and luxurious. We think we do him no injustice when we say that Mr. Hill is a politician first, last, and all the time, and such being the case his geographical location if nothing else places him at variance with the more equitable lines of policy of the Democratic party north, south, east and west of New York.

In speaking of his personal characteristics and peculiarities he is referred to by those who know him intimately as a recluse from society who cares no more for female charms than for the inanimate attractions of the sphinx of Egypt. So, at least the belles of Washington charge against him after wasting their most fascinating allurements upon him in the vain effort to draw the bachelor out of his shabby room and into the vortex or giddy swim of Washington society. They say he is devoid of natural appetite and passion.

Though described as quiet in manners, quiet in dress, and quiet in every detail of his life, he is yet capable of making considerable political noise when noise is deemed policy. Neither wine nor woman having any special allurements for him the uprightness of his private life is never questioned and the foul breath of society scandal never sighs or sighs through his whiskers. From all of which we are driven to conclude that if his public career will bear the same crucial test that his private life has thus far borne then worse men than Senator Hill, after all, have represented New York in Congress; and some among them also have presumed to aspire considerably higher than they ever reached. If he enters the gubernatorial contest in earnest he will make a very hard man for Mr. Morton to beat for Governor.

Our Candidate for Congress.

During the sitting of the conference of this District, the whole State was watching for the result, and when it was reached it was hailed with the greatest satisfaction by the Democratic press. The candidacy of Mr. Buckalew has a promise of a competent representative in Congress—one who would honor the district and the State and in whom his party could confide for sound votes and enlightened legislation on public questions. On the occasion of the nomination the Philadelphia Record said:

The Democratic Congressional conference in the Seventeenth district (Northumberland, Montour, Columbia and Sullivan counties) has brought its labors to a satisfactory conclusion by the nomination of ex-Senator Charles R. Buckalew. There are few men in the State who from experience or natural attainments are able to render better service to the country than Mr. Buckalew. He is as wise as he is able and honest."

The Seventeenth district is now represented by one of the most capable and efficient members of the State delegation in Congress—Hon. S. P. Wolverton. The district is so strongly Democratic that a nomination is equivalent to an election. For this reason it is a matter of pride that the primary choice of the party should have been so admirable. It is an example which all parties might imitate with advantage to the general welfare.

A satisfied customer is a permanent one. That's why we recommend DeWitt's Little Early Risers. They cure Constipation, Indigestion and Biliousness.—W. S. Rishton, Druggist. tf.

Sugar.

About the only industry now closing in this country, or running on short time, is the sugar refining industry of Louisiana. Report from that section is that Spreckels' Sugar Refinery has shut down for an indefinite period notwithstanding that the crop of cane is unusually large. It is the curtailment of the sweet sugar bounties and rebates that is twisting this very thrifty industry somewhat out of shape and making the faces of a very few rich manufacturers and planters look rather more sour than they used to look. We take it for granted that both Havemeyer and Spreckels and the Louisiana planters are rich enough to stand the shave much better than the poor consumers of sugar of the whole country can stand the bounty heretofore given the gentlemen engaged in this sweet industry. In this connection a well-to-do Louisiana sugar man was recently heard to remark:

"There is a determined feeling among the planters against the present administration on account of the new sugar schedule in the tariff bill and the delay in paying the former bounty, of which at least one-tenth of the whole or $1,000,000 is still due."

"A syndicate of planters has employed Louis Sorer, an ex-Government official, to weigh and inspect the forthcoming output of refined sugar, on which the bounty would amount to upward of $11,000,000. A sworn report of this is to be filed at Washington, D. C., and a fund is being raised to bring suit against the Government for the recovery of the amount of bounty claimed to be due upon this report. The former bounty on No. 1 grade, 90 test, was 2 cents per pound, and from 85 to 90 test, 1 1/2 cents per pound. The planters are in earnest about this matter, and the ablest counsel in the country will be employed to push their demands."

Report from Washington dated October 1st, is to the effect that Havemeyer and others have been formally indicted and held for contumacy before the investigating committee for refusing to answer questions put to them when under Senatorial examination. The cases will come up for argument on October 12. Inasmuch as the indictments against Havemeyer and Searles cover some twenty-eight type-written pages, considerable history of the sugar industry can no doubt be gathered from these pages by the earnest student of political economy. The questions were perhaps deemed impertinent by the sugar men for the reason that they tried to divulge which political party received the heaviest contributions from them. This was of course very impertinent.

A Southern Republican Fight.

Republicans in the south fight as earnestly as Democrats, it seems, when their political aspirations are likely to be thwarted. Republican heads were cracked in Gatlinburg, Tenn., recently. The fight took place in a Baptist church between the friends of Representative Houck and those of Henry Gibson, his rival Republican candidate for Congress. While Houck was educating his audience in the church Gibson's friends interrupted with hisses and howls. Here the deputy sheriff entered and the fight began. Stones and pistols were the weapons offensive and defensive. After the smoke of the battle reached the ceiling of the scarred edifice it was discovered that the leader of the Gibson men had his skull crushed, and a Houck man also had his bump of veneration interfered with.

The political party whose lines of policy will insure the greatest good to the greatest number is evidently the most deserving of the sovereign vote and support. The party promising the more equitable laws governing the commercial relations between the lofty is evidently the most deserving. As between caring for the classes and caring for the masses, both parties are just now in love with them asses.

That Tired Feeling
