WASHINGTON.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, October 12, 1894.

The administration will be represented at the Batavia, N. Y., cele-bration of the centennial of the Holland land office, which was the beginning of the public land system of the United States, by no less than five members of the cabinet. Secretary Carlisle will be the orator of the oc-Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, a revolutionary Secretary of the Treasury, and the originator of our public land system. The administration party left here to-day, accompanied by the ladies of their families, and will return early next about this trip the opportunity that it will give the members of the cabinet to let the prominent New York Democrats they will meet understand how deeply interested the administration is in the election of Senator Hill will certainly be fully taken advantage of.

The nomination of an independent Democratic candidate for governor of New York has no supporter in the cabinet, and if there is a single Democrat in Washington who does not condemn the movement he has kept so quiet that nobody has heard of him. Senator Faulkner, Chairman of the committee, who has just returned from New York, says Democratic prospects are improving every day in that State and that he now regards Senator Hill's election as a certainty.

House is complete and that portion of the building to which visitors are within the next ten days.

Above the roaring of the Republi can bluffers and calamity howlers is heard the clear notes of Democratic predictions of victory. Here's one, sounded by Capt. J. I. Crutcher, U. S. Marshal of Idaho, which indicates the gain of a State and of a U.S. Senator : "If Idaho doesn't swing into the Democratic column this year," said Capt. Crutcher, now in Washington, " I shall never more essay the role of a political prophet. I believe the State is going Democratic all the way through, but as to the election of the Democratic candidate for governor Shanghai are canceling freight con-there is hardly any doubt. Ex Secretary Whitney has always and he has become more popular than ever since he wrote that ringing letter in favor of Democratic harmony and ional committee Mr. Whitney's letter terfere with the export of coal to is regarded as a rattling campaign document, not only in New York but everywhere else, as the arguments he uses are in the main equally applica-ble elsewhere. It is believed that it by local applications as they cannot will exercise great influence with those Democrats who have been making the mistake of allowing their personal which they belong and to which they are still devoted.

There are several reasons for the belief that the recent cablegrams which have been published intimating that Germany intended to retaliate upon the United States because of the discriminating duty that is placed upon German sugar by the new tariff, by restoring the prohibitory regulations concerning the importation of American pork and by other methods, are inspired by the Republican managers of the Congressional campaign, solely for present political use. As a matter of fact, the conference committee on the tariff bill agreed without division free. to strike out the discriminating duty on sugars from countries which pay an export bounty on sugar, and it was only because of the peculiar circumstances which caused the bill as it passed the Senate to become a law that the clause was not struck out in accordance with the committee agreement. It is generally conceded that the discriminating duty is unjust, both to Austria and to Germany, and is generally believed that it will be repealed at the coming session of Congress. These things are as well known to the German government as to our own; hence it is folly to suppose that it is thinking of retaliation for what is

Harper's Magazine.

What is so cheap as a good magazine? Apparently the answer to this question is, "Nothing." Harper's, for example, during the past year has printed two novels, "Trilby" and "The Golden House," which, in book form, will sell for the subscription price of the magazine, or a little less. Add to these sixty short stories (enough for five books) by the best American and English writers, as many illustrated articles descriptive of merely a temporary objection. The Miner and High Protection.

It is said the miners of this country will vote for the Republican high tariff candidates. And we are willing to admit that it is more than likely they will. They will continue to do so in the further hope of receiving higher wages than Americans get. But their strikes are apt to continue all the same. There will be the usual brief spurt at liberal wages, and when the output is filled according to the quota allowed by the protected coal and iron combinations there will be the usual abundance of idle time in which the unprotected miner can smoke his pipe and reflect upon so-called "pauper wages" abroad and protected mineowners of America.

Harper's Bazar.

Picturesque demi-season toilettes in great variety will appear in the successive issues of Harper's Bazar for October. Sandoz and Chapuis have made studies of some of the most artistic costumes ever designed by Worth for walking and vistiting purposes. The usual fiction and household literature of the most practical type will make the Bazar a necessity at the fireside.

The order of the State Supreme Court, transferring the Dubs Evangelical churches into the hands of the Bowman-Esher people, was very generally obeyed Sunday throughout the East Pennsylvania Conference, and Bowman-Esher adherents worshiped in a large number of edifices.

Up to two years ago, when the split took place, they have been debarred from about half of the total number of these. It is expected that other churches will be transferred during the coming week. Farewell services in a number of the churches were held by the Dubs people.

THE ERSE LANGUAGE.

A Mellifluons Tongne Still Spoken by Upwards of Two Million People. We are glad to notice as an event of literary importance, says the New York Sur, the recent organization in Providence, R. I., of a Celtic society, the object of which is to revive interest in the mellifluous and influential tongue

No other language, having itself no great masterpiece of literature, has had such effect on modern literature as the Celtic. To it we owe many of the tairy tales of our childhood; some of Shakespeare's plays, some of the inei-ients detailed in the Arthurian poems, even some of those in the Divine Comedy, are drawn from Celtic sources. It was said of Washington: "Nature made him childless that he might be the father of his country;" so it might almost be said of the Celtic language: "Nature left it childless that it might be the mother of other literatures." The Celtie language is not a dead language. One-sixth of the population of the Emerald isle (in round numbers, eight hundred thousand persons) understand Erse; sixty thousand persons there know no other language than it; one-third of the territory of Ireland is still Celtic, so far as the ability to understand the language is concerned, and upward of two million in this country and Canada are familiar with the tongue. The path of the new society and of it predecessors is uphill, but the ascent has an end. A century ago the Welsh language was really in worse case than the Erse is now, but by the exertions of scholars and the local clergy of Wales it was rescued, and today is vigorous both in Wales and America. That similar success may await the Celtic societies of this country in their patriotic labors we sincerely hope.

A Spot in Persia Where the Thermometer Shows 130 in the Shade. The hottest region on the earth's surface is on the southwestern coast of Persia, on the borders of the Persian galf, says an exchange. For ferty con-secutive days in the months of July and August the mercury has been known to stend above one hundred degrees in the shade night and day, and to run up as high as one hundred and thirty degrees in the middle of the afternoon. At Bahrin, in the center of the most terrid part of this most torrid belt, as though it was nature's inten-tion to make the place as unbearable as possible, water from wells is some-thing unknown. Great shafts have been sunk to a depth of five hundred feet, but always with the same result -no water. Notwithstanding this serious drawback, a numerous population contrives to live thanks to copious springs, which burst forth from the bottom of the gulf more than a mile from the shore. The was ter from these springs is obtained in a most curious and novel manner. Machadores, whose sole occupation is that of furnishing the people of Bahrin with the life-giving fluid, repair to that portion of the gulf where the springs are situated, and bring away with them hundreds of skin bags full of the water each day. The water of the gulf where the springs burst forth is nearly two hundred feet deep, but the machadores -divers-manage to fill their goatskin sacks by diving to the bottom and holding the mouths of the bags over the fountain jets; this, too, without allowing the salt water of the gulf to mis with it. The source of these submarine fountains is thought to be in the hills of Osmond, five hund away. Being situated at the bottom of the gulf, it is a mystery how they were ever discovered, but the fact remains that they have been known since the

Queen" in the Face of Death. The Pall Mall Budget lately had the following account of how Maj. Wilson and his party met their fate in their attempt to capture Lobengula: On Maj. Wilson and his party returning with Capt. Borrow's reenforcements to the king's scherm in the morning they were received by a volley from part of the Inguba and Imbisu regiment, who had orders to take up their position on the road by which Maj. Wilson and his party would return. On receiving the volley Maj. Wilson retired into the bush toward the river, but he found his party surrounded on all sides by natives, numbering from twenty-five hundred to three thousand at the very least. The orders from the Indunas to their men were that on reaching Maj. Wilson's party they were to shoot the horses first. This order tha Matabele proceeded to carry into effect, Maj. Wilson's party keeping up a heavy fire all the time. The horses, which Maj. Wilson had tied together in a ring, were soon all shot. Englishmen then lay down behind them and kept up a steady fire with such good effect that they succeeded in driving off the Matabele for a short time, but, reenforcements arriving from across the river, the attack was again renewed. The fight must have lasted some three hours. A number of soldiers were seen to be wounded, and their ammunition began to run short. Then the natives gradually crept up closer, shooting anyone they could. The Induna describes Maj. Wilson most accurately by his dress and the wounded in several places and covered with blood, while another wounded man stood by his side loading rifles and handing them to him. Maj. Wilson and his men fought desperately to the very last. The Induna said that as the supreme moment came the Englishmen who were still able to rise stood shoulder to shoulder, took off their hats, and joined in a song, the kind of a song that he (the Induna) had beard missionaries sing to the nattives. The Matabele then rushed up, and while the men were singing what we suppose to have been "God Save the Queen, they were overwhelmed by the native and assigned. The Indu-na estimated that the Matabele lost
