Right or Wrong Marriages.

Unconsciously, then, parents are influencing their children toward a right or wrong marriage, writes Mrs. Lyman Abbot in a thoughtful paper in the series " Before He is Twenty,' in which she discusses the boy's "Looking Toward a Wife," in the November Ladies' Home Journal. Not for an instant must it be felt by them that "children are a necessary evil," that household cares are on y a burden, that life would have been better and happier for them if they had never married. This root of selfishness will send its potson not only through the home of to-day, but into the homes of the next generations. Too often the vow taken to cleave to one another" for better or for worse," is forgotten as the months and years develop faults which did not appear in the days of courtship, and morbid criticism and unwillingness to recognize self failures breed ill-temper which turns love into hate. It is probab'e that in the majority of households one may be sure that for every fault discovered or imagined in another, there is one to mate it in the selfsatisfied critic. An early recognition of this truth, and a consequent humil ity and forbearance, wou'd preserve happiness and give abundant harvest of blessing. But leaving general and anconscious influences, there are direct and definite questions which occur to wise, earnest and devoted parents in respect to the marriage of their children. Perhaps the daughter seems more easily guided, and the duties of a parent toward a son more difficult to understand and to perform,
